66,000 WAITING JOBS, BUT WPA ASKS FOR MORE

Policy Stirs Stormy IERC Meeting.

BY WILL O'NEIL.

Sixty-six thousand persons in Illinois, of whom 36,000 are not eligible for relief, have been certified as eligible for Works Progress administration jobs. They are all on a waiting list, because the jobs do not exist. Yesterday the Illinois Emergency Relief commission was advised of this situation and a stormy session followed over the policies responsible.

Leo Lyons, IERC executive secretary, gave the 66,000 figure to the commission and said it was time to stop the certification scheme, which was started last summer under pressure from WPA officials.

No More Jobs for a Month.

During the debate that followed Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, revealed:

1. The WPA has made no assignments to jobs for ten days and probably will not make any before the end of January, although winter is the time when relief needs are greatest.

2. The WPA wants to continue boosting the waiting list of those certified for WPA jobs. A longer list, Miner said, is wanted to aid the WPA in getting funds from congress early next year.

Miner was summoned to the commission meeting when Lyons told the IERC members that Miner would not give him an official statement about WPA's employment plans for the future. There is no sense in continuing to increase the pool of persons eligible for WPA jobs if there are to be no jobs, Lyons' recommendation said.

55 Per Cent Not Eligible.

A report prepared by Carl H. Martini of the IERC staf showed that only 5,732 persons were assigned to WPA jobs during November and that more than 18,000 persons were certified as eligible for WPA jobs during the month. Another report prepared by E. E. Ferebee, IERC statistician, showed that 55.5 per cent of the 50,911 persons waiting for WPA jobs at the end of November were not eligible for relief.

Ferebee estimated that of the 66,000 total number of certified WPA applicants 36,000 are not eligible for relief.

"We compromised ourselves when we went along with WPA on this system," said William H. Sexton, Chicago commission member. "I'm afraid that all these people will begin asking for relief if we stop certifying those who are not on relief. We have to face the legislature next month and have some estimate of our relief needs ready for them. We had better go slowly in this thing."

Neil H. Jacoby, another Chicago member, urged that the commission ought to return to its former system of certifying only persons who are on the relief rolls. Two other commission members agreed with Jacoby when he stated that he believed WPA competes with private employment.

False Hopes Held Out.

"False hopes of WPA employment are being held out to these people," Jacoby declared. "I think that congress made a mistake when it opened the doors to the certification of people who are not actually in need of relief."

Jacoby pointed out that the basis for determining eligibility for WPA is a much higher standard of living than most of the relief budgets, including the one in use here.

Miner agreed that the commission had the power to stop certification of those not on relief. He insisted, however, that local relief standards mean nothing to WPA and that the commission should either stop all certifications or continue on the basis of the last few months.

After two hours of debate and listening to Miner the commission went into secret session to decide what to do. They concluded that they ought to have more information of a nature not specified and that the situation should be allowed to drift for the time being.

2 Blind Squirrels Bite Off More than They Can Chew

Charles A. Hall called the Elgin police department yesterday about two blind squirrels. Hall said the squirrels, mistaking the roof of his home at 427 Dwight street for a nut, were chewing a hole in it.

BLONDE SLAYER MATCHES WITS ON CROSS QUIZ

Meets Prosecutor's Barrage Calmly.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Joseph, Mich., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Fern Patricia Dull underwent an all-day barrage of cross-examination questions today and came through as unruffled as the carefully braided tresses of her silver blonde hair.

Judge Mark D. Taylor [Tribune Photo.]

Prosecuting Attorney E. A. Westin pounded away relentlessly, hour after hour, with the force of all the evidence he had been able to pile up against her in her trial for the murder of William Holbrook, Benton Harbor attorney. But the office wife took her time, answering calmly and carefully. When the prosecutor quickened his pace she replied even more slowly.

Gives Picture of Herself.

Throughout her day on the stand in the courtroom of Judge Mark D. D. Taylor she managed to picture herself to the jurors as a kindly, forgiving woman, who devotedly loved the man she killed, worked hard as a secretary in his law office, took good care of her children, spoke no evil, and was fond of birds.

And a psychiatrist—Dr. Harley Sears, assistant medical superintendent of the Kalamazoo state hospital—who took the stand late in the day testified she could have shot Holbrook in her excitement, without knowing it was wrong, and have remembered nothing about it.

When Westin's cross-examination seemed most damaging, she met it with, "Why, Mr. Westin." Then she repeated his questions until he protested in seeming exasperation. When he asked her to answer yes or no, she appended long explanations until he demanded she stop making speeches.

Questioned About Weapon.

At one point the prosecutor picked up the curious four-barreled pistol with which she shot Holbrook to death in front of the Benton Harbor city hall early Oct. 17. She had testified she bought it in South Bend, Ind., at Holbrook's direction, because they had prowlers.

Q.—How did you happen to buy such a cute little gun, one that would fit into a lady's purse? A.—Why, Mr. Westin, that's the only one I saw.

Q.—Where did you buy it? A.—In a shop where they had birds and animals.

The prosecutor weighed the gun in his hand.

Q.—Why did you buy it in a pet shop? A.—I love birds. They're one of my hobbies. I saw the gun in the case. William had told me to buy one.

Q.—Where did you buy the bullets? A.—In another shop, at William's request.

Q.—How did you know it wasn't one of those guns that are filled with candy? A.—I didn't know, Mr. Westin.

Then she asked, wide-eyed: "Are guns sold with candy?"

Gun Threat Case Recalled.

Westin sought to show that Mrs. Dull had been arrested in 1934 for threatening Holbrook with a gun. The prosecutor made so much of this, that H. T. Dewhirst, head of the bearded House of David colony, who is associated with George B. Gould in the defense counsel, requestioned her about it.

Q.—[by Westin] Do you remember the time that you stuck a gun into Bill's ribs and made him promise to stay with you and forswear any other woman? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know if a warant for

BRINGING IN THE CHRISTMAS TREE

Windsors Plan a Mysterious Visit to India

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The duke and duchess of Windsor are planning a long visit to India as guests of several Indian princes and potentates.

The visit presumably would exclude reports that the former British king and his American wife would return to this country early next year and that the duke might accept the governor generalship of one of the British dominions as a result of the recent call paid upon him in Paris by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Seek Political Motive.

A courier from the maharajah of Jodhpur is en route to Paris with an invitation from himself and the maharajahs of Nawanagar, Bikaner, Kashmir, and Baroda, and the nabobs of Bhopal and Rampur.

Hunting expeditions and entertainment in lavish royal style are being planned, it is said. It could not be learned whether the purpose of the projected visit is political and connected with the Chamberlain-Windsor interview.

It will, at any rate, postpone the wish of the duke and duchess to return to England, which they have not seen for two years, until the controversy over whether the duchess rates a title of royalty and a curtsy subsides.

Social Leaders Split.

While some titled people, such as Lady Diana Manners, curtsied to the duchess recently as if she were a royal duchess, some others, such as the countess of Pembroke and Montgomery are against it.

London drawing rooms are echoing with arguments over the issue.

JUDGE GETS YULE MESSAGE: "GET US OUT OF JURY BOX"

Twelve men who are getting pretty tired of jury service yesterday asked Judge Charles D. Page of the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva to play Santa Claus. When he convened court, Judge Page found a printed slip, embellished with yule designs, which read:

"Will this jury be home for Christmas?"

Judge Page said he would hold night sessions if necessary to oblige them.

The jury is locked up for the embezzlement trial of Henry G. Griffith and David L. Armstrong, former officials of the W. W. Armstrong Investment company, of Aurora, now in bankruptcy.

HUSBAND REMEMBERS TO MAIL CHRISTMAS CARDS FOR HIS WIFE

Passersby thought it strange yesterday when they saw a well dressed, elderly man approach a trash box in Fountain square, Evanston, and carefully deposit some stamped envelopes in the box. They notified police.

Policeman Lowell Peterson fished out the envelopes. There were 200 of them, all apparently containing Christmas cards.

"Probably an absentminded Northwestern professor," said Peterson.

10, HE WHIPS OUT TOY GUN, TAKES A THIEF IN TOW

Jerome Itskovitz, 10 years old, is proud of the toy pistol his father, Sam, an ex-soldier, gave him. It looks exactly like a real pistol. Jerome had it in his pocket last night when a ragged stranger entered the Itskovitz second hand clothing store at 353 North Clark street.

Itskovitz was in the rear. The stranger snatched a coat from the rack and ran into the street. Drawing his toy pistol, Jerome chased him, shouting: "Stop thief, or I'll shoot."

Three blocks away the thief surrendered to Jerome, who was marching him back to the store when his father arrived on the scene. Back in the store Jerome kept the toy trained on his prisoner while Itskovitz went for the police. The thief said he was Murrel O'Connor, 49 years old, a recent inmate of the Bridewell. In his pocket was a long sharp shears.

TOO MUCH LAW AND ORDER; COP LOSES HIS JOB

Several weeks ago a citizens' committee of Hampshire, a village near Elgin in Kane county, complained too many local motorists were violating the village trafic laws. They suggested a special policeman be put on the job.

The village board, under President Herman Bahe, accordingly hired C. W. Everts of Crystal Lake and told him to arrest all trafic violators. Everts did his job so well that the townfolk complained again. The new policeman, they said, was making too many arrests.

So the village board fired Special Policeman Everts, refunded fines assessed against eleven villagers, and ordered that Harvey Peterson, the town marshal, be given a new uniform and a police car. And, they added, Peterson should confine himself more to warning violators than arresting them.

Yesterday there were no arrests—and no complaints—in Hampshire.

A Bartender in Elgin Sees Familiar Face

This story might be called "Mr. Van Overmieren and the Forty Elgin Bartenders," or "How to Get a Drink on the House."

Raymond Van Overmieren often lacked the money to satisfy his thirst, but he saw to it that his thirst got satisfied anyway. And, as Mr. Van Overmieren has so often remarked, here's how:

A young man of lush talents, he based his scheme on the simple fact that Elgin has forty taverns, in all of which are bartenders who appreciate a good joke.

What'll It Be, Mister?

His puckish face creased in a winning smile, Mr. Van Overmieren would sidle up to one of the forty bars. Sliding his foot over the brass rail, he would say with aplomb:

"Give me a drink, bartender."

As the barkeep waited expectantly for the ring of silver on the bar, Mr. Van Overmieren would draw himself up to his 5 feet 9 and ¾ inches, down his whisky in one gulp, smile, and say:

"I said 'give me a drink, bartender.' You gave me one. Get it?" And Mr. Van Overmieren would laugh heartily. He would also skip nimbly out of the nearest exit.

Now the one serious fault with the Van Overmieren plan was that it could work only once in any one tavern. In other words, he was good for exactly forty drinks in Elgin.

Makes a Slight Error.

Mr. Van Overmieren knew this well, but somehow—it may have been the liquor—his plan went haywire Thursday night. He staggered into the tavern at 17 North State street, thinking it was only No. 38 on the list. But, alas, he had begun to repeat. The tavern was No. 1.

Mr. H. A. [Swede] Peterson, the proprietor, looked without humor upon what Mr. Van Overmieren thought was a guileless face. It was all too familiar to Mr. Peterson, who quickly summoned the constabulary. Police Magistrate A. J. Strickman yesterday sent Van Overmieren to the county jail at Geneva to work out a $100 fine for drunkenness. As he entered the jail last night his mind turned to statistics. "In Chicago," he was heard to remark, "the taverns number 9,250."

EXPOSED DRUG CHIEF KILLS SELF; 3 BROTHERS SEIZED

INVESTORS TOLD PROFITS USED TO STRENGTHEN FIRM

An ironic note is found in the comments addressed to stockholders of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., in the recent annual reports issued over the name "F. Donald Coster, president."

The company has paid no cash dividends on its common stock in several years. The last payment, 75 cents a share, was made in 1931. The published earnings figures of the company during most of the period have indicated profitable operations.

Explained Lack of Dividends.

President Coster sought to explain to stockholders why they were getting no dividends in the report made on the 1936 operations of the company. The report he signed showed earnings that year were $3,286,359, equal to $1.32 a share, after payment of preferred dividends.

"Under ordinary circumstances," Coster's report said, "the obvious decision of the management would be to distribute a very substantial part of last year's earnings among the common stockholders. However, there are several considerations which led to the conclusion that such action might well be delayed in the best interest of the company and its common stockholders."

The impelling reasons given by Coster was the assertion "that the soundest and strongest businesses have been built on the policy of plowing a substantial part of the earnings back into the business."

Business Gain Causes Debt.

In the same report Coster again emphasized the same theme when he admonished stockholders as follows: "It has never been considered sound business management to withdraw and distribute profits from a business having substantial debt obligations, and in the case of this company increased sales of $21,000,000 necessitated a resort to bank borrowings to carry increased inventories and accounts receivable."

In his report on 1937 operations Coster again took the stockholders into his confidence in explaining the difficulties with which management was beset. The report was issued last March. It was an elaborate fifty page booklet.

Business Firmly Established.

Coster concluded his letter with this statement: "This business is firmly established, having been founded in 1833; it deals in staple merchandise of ordinary every day need. Its trend will ebb and flow with the tide of general business, which presently is struggling under an oppressive load of government regulatory measures and taxation. These obstacles your management will endeavor to cope with to the best of its ability, in the interest of stockholders."

Family Masquerade Bared; Old Crime Records Found.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Three surviving brothers of the most daring swindle ring in modern times were locked in jail tonight following the suicide of their guiding genius, F. Donald Coster, an Italian immigrant boy who buried a criminal record to become president of the huge drug corporation, McKesson & Robbins.

Coster really was Philip Musica, an ex-convict and notorious swindler, masquerading as the respectable head of a 105 year old company, the third largest drug concern in the country. The three brothers who were jailed, as well as two sisters and his mother, who are not under arrest, had been living under aliases for the last eighteen years.

Master Mind Kills Self.

The master mind of the Musica family shot and killed himself at noon in his richly appointed home in Fairfield, Conn., just as federal officers stepped on to the porch to take him in custody.

That act climaxed the fantastic story of the felon who fleeced New York and foreign banks of more than $1,000,000 in a fraudulent importing business a quarter of a century ago and reappeared as the grave, dignified drug magnate, clubman, and yachtsman, and elbowed his way into high social circles.

The three surviving brothers, held in bond of $100,000 each, are George, Robert, and Arthur Musica. George and Robert changed their surnames to Dietrich. Arthur adopted the name of George Vernard.

Roles Played By Brothers.

George Musica [Dietrich] is assistant treasurer of McKesson & Robbins.

Arthur Musica [Vernard], also under indictment for violating the SEC act, played the roie of fiscal agent and Canadian representative of McKesson & Robbins.

The third brother, Robert Musica [Dietrich], was arrested on information charging violation of the SEC act. He was the head of the shipping department and handled all bills of lading, invoices and vouchers.

With the revelations of the mass double identity practiced so successfully by the Musica family came one sensation after another.

Study Munitions Deals.

Startling developments today were as follows:

1. The United States attorney general's office announced evidence of "wholesale arms and munitions trading which may involve living persons." Coster was reported to have financed the expedition of the Mar Cantabrico, the Spanish loyalist munitions ship blown up near Barcelona, and to have trafficked in arms in the Gran Chaco hostilities between Bolivia and Paraguay.

2. Evidence was uncovered that Coster bootlegged alcohol obtained during prohibition under federal permit for use in Girard & Co., the hair tonic firm he controled. His name was linked with that of Dutch Schultz, slain New York gang leader, who, in 1935, operated his racket empire from Bridgeport, Conn., where the McKesson & Robbins manufacturing plant is located.

3. Police records of the crimes committed by the Musicas were missing.

4. Investigators found faked birth certificates for Coster and George Dietrich filed in Washington in 1935. These conflicted with other records unearthed.

5. Brokerage accounts showed that Charles F. Michaels, executive vice president of McKesson & Robbins, and members of his family had unloaded $118,530 in stock of the company shortly before the New York Stock exchange suspended the securities from trading.

FIRST HINT OF TROUBLE

Receivership Action Is Started.

The first inkling the public had that anything was wrong in the McKesson & Robbins picture came Dec. 6, when receivership action was begun in Hartford, Conn., on stockholders' claims of mismanagement. The New York stock exchange immediately suspended trading in the company's stock. Directors went to headquarters in Bridgeport. They found Coster in his office, but learned little from him.

From this unimposing start, the case developed with increasing momentum during the ten days before today's startling climax. Directors appeared before the stock exchange for questioning, the Securities and Exchange commission launched its investigation, and groups of security holders began trying to find out what it was all about.

"Too fantastic to believe" was the report of Julian F. Thompson, treasurer, and W. L. Cummings, a director, on Dec. 8. They informed the stock exchange a shortage of "more than $10,000,000" seemed to exist; that the supposedly vast crude drug department appeared to be "no more than a hollow shell." Application was filed for reorganization under the federal bankruptcy act.

U. S. Jury Quiz Started.

A grand jury inquiry was announced Dec. 9 in Washington by Assistant Attorney General Brian McMahon. John J. Bennett Jr., New York attorney general, and Thomas E. Dewey, district attorney began inquiries.

The $100,000 brokerage account of Coster's wife was tied up Dec. 10. Albert B. Ritts, senior accountant for Price, Waterhouse & Co., testified in the state inquiry. He said McKesson & Robbins warehouse stocks or accounts receivable had not been examined.

Inquiry by the state attorney general's office produced the information on Dec. 12 that large Canadian warehouses in which drug supplies were supposed to be stored could not be found and that Montreal banks supposed to represent the company were only mailing addresses. Directors called for the resignations of Coster and George Dietrich, warning they would be removed if they did not resign. Warants for the arrest of Coster, Dietrich, and George Vernard, Coster's fiscal agent, were issued Tuesday.

John J. Jenkins, brother of Coster's wife and a $35 a week clerk, testified that large brokerage accounts in his name actually belonged to Coster. The accounts were tied up.

Two Freed on Bonds.

The first hint that Coster was not Coster came Wednesday from Assistant State Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall. Earlier in the day Coster and George Dietrich were arrested, finger printed, and released in $5,000 bail each. Thompson, the company treasurer, testified that he had given Coster his start in high finance and told of his suspicions being aroused by Coster's refusal to explain his handling of the firm's crude drug department. He revealed he was the one who had started the inquiries.

Coster, Dietrich, and Vernard were indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury on charges of falsifying reports to the SEC and the stock exchange. Then, a few hours later, police announced that Coster's finger prints were those of Philip Musica. Today the final disclosure came that Vernard, Dietrich, and Robert Dietrich were Coster's brothers.

Decide to Increase Bail.

An old set of finger prints uncovered by the New York police led to the unmasking of Coster last night, and early today Acting United States Attorney Gregory F. Noonan decided to rearrest him as well as the two men then known as Vernard and Dietrich. The three had been set free in bail of $5,000 and the federal officials decided to boost the bonds to $100,000 because of the discovery of Coster's past.

Meanwhile Coster had been conferring during the night with his attorney, Samuel Reich. At 1 a. m. Reich left Coster's gaudy Spanish style stucco home, but his client did not go to bed. Instead, he started to drink and spent the rest of the night talking with Jenkins, his brother-in-law.

The identity of the other Musicas became known this morning because of the photo-image memory, or "camera eye," of Henry Unterweiser, an investigator of twenty-eight years' service in the attorney general's office.

Recognizes Two from Picture.

Ambrose V. McCall, the deputy attorney general in charge of the inquiry, showed him a picture on the witness stand and asked whether he could identify the men.

"I recognize two of them," said the witness. "One of them is William Johnson, now Mr. Coster, and the other is George Dietrich."

Unterweiser said Johnson, actually Philip Musica and now known as Coster, was employed in the office of the attorney general from shortly before the world war until after the armistice and that Johnson was a special investigator.

"He and I worked on investigations of foreign spy activities," said Unterweiser.

"You were the first person to suggest to me that Johnson and Coster were the same man?" said Mr. McCall.

"I was," answered Unterweiser.

Tells of Knowing Dietrich.

Unterweiser said he had met Dietrich in 1919 and said that he was known by at least one other name.

Attorney General Bennett was in the hearing room and rose to ask when Johnson had left the attorney general's office, apparently wanting to make it clear that Johnson vanished long before the start of the Bennett régime.

"He left this office," said Unterweiser, "when Mr. Becker, a special deputy attorney general, was being examined by the United States senate in connection with affidavits Mr. Johnson had obtained against William Randolph Hearst, allegedly tying him up with Germany."

Although it was not brought out during the hearing, members of the attorney general's staf said Unterweiser knew of his own knowledge that Coster, or Johnson, actually was Philip Musica.

M'KESSON & ROBBINS STOCKS, DEBENTURES FALL TO NEW LOWS

New York, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Securities of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., fell to new lows in "over the counter" markets today. The common stock was quoted at 75 cents a share bid, $1 asked, compared with the final sale at $7.50 on the New York Stock exchange before dealings in McKesson & Robbins issues were suspended Dec. 7.

McKesson & Robbins $3 preferred stock was quoted today "over the counter" at $7.25 a share bid, $8 asked, contrasted with the last stock exchange price of $36.50.

The convertible 5½ per cent debentures, $1,000 face value each, were quoted "over the counter" at $530 bid, $540 asked, compared with the last sale of $1,037.50 per $1,000 bond on the stock exchange.

COSTER KILLS SELF

Takes His Life as U. S. Officials Arrive.

As the hearing was in progress United States Marshal Bernard Fitch was on his way to arrest Coster. He was accompanied by his deputy, Stephen Lopresti, and Assistant United States Attorney Arthur P. Gorman and Coster's brother George, who already had been placed in custody. In a second car was Reich, Coster's attorney. The two automobiles moved up the driveway of the Coster home.

Inside the house Coster gulped down a drink and ran for the upstairs bathroom. From there he could see the approach of the officials.

Jenkins became worried about Coster.

"Are you all right?" he called through the bathroom door.

"Yes, I'm all right," Coster responded. "I'll be out in a few minutes."

Body in Bathtub.

Jenkins said he then went downstairs and joined Mrs. Coster. A few moments later he heard a shot. Jenkins forced the locked door.

Coster was lying on his back in the bathtub. A .30 caliber police positive revolver was on the floor. It seemed evident to the authorities that Coster had stood before the mirror to aim carefully. When the bullet struck, Coster toppled into the tub behind him. He was dead when Medical Examiner Dr. Stanton Smith arrived.

Reich ran down the stairs and said to newspaper men: "Get a doctor, quick."

Coster's Wife Collapses.

"Why did you do it?" cried Mrs. Coster as she paced the living room. She repeated the words for 20 minutes and then collapsed.

In a few minutes she revived and screamed:

"Some one just told me Donald shot himself. It's a dream."

Investigators reported that Mrs. Coster said she had not known until yesterday that her husband's true name was Musica or that he had a criminal past.

Coster shot himself in the right ear. He used one of three revolvers which he owned. Because one of the three weapons is missing, Chief of Police Arthur J. Bennett of Fairfield held in technical custody tonight Coster's butler, Willy Richartz; his gardener, William Williamson, and Mrs. Coster's brother, Jenkins.

Chief Bennett last Wednesday had warned Richartz to conceal the weapons. The chief apparently suspected Coster might kill himself.

Find $3 in Worn Wallet.

In Coster's pocket the police found a worn wallet in which were three $1 bills. Also in the wallet was a card conferring on him honorary membership in the International Association of Chiefs of Police, expiring April 30, 1940.

Coster had been in a highly nervous condition since the first exposure that all was not well in the accounts of his drug company. He had been under the observation of psychiatrists and the care of physicians connected with the heart clinic for indigents which he and his wife started in Fairfield.

THIRD BROTHER SEIZED

Threaten to Break Down Door of Home.

At the time of Coster's suicide a police crew was experiencing difficulty in arresting Arthur Musica [Vernard] in his home in Brooklyn.

Vernard gave himself up only after police had threatened to break in the door.

When police arrived a group of reporters was in the street, unable to approach the house because of a vicious dog.

The police penned the dog up in the back yard. Then they rang the front door bell without response. The door was locked.

Start to Pry Open Window.

They tried the windows and finally got a screwdriver and began to pry a window open. A woman peered out.

"What do you want?" she called.

"We are police officers," said Lieut. Neil Winberry of Brooklyn. "We want to get in."

"Well, you can't get in," the woman said. "Go away."

"We are coming in and we are coming in through the front door," Lieut. Winberry yelled.

Then Vernard called out: "See my lawyer."

"I'm not seeing your lawyer," said Winberry. "I'm seeing you—and right now. Do you want to let me in peacefully or must I break down the door?"

There was a pause.

"I'll let you in," Vernard said finally. He opened the front door and Winberry entered. He was in the house for half an hour and then emerged with Vernard.

Bonds Are Increased.

Robert Dietrich was arrested in his home at Fairfield. He was taken to the federal building in New York City and went with his brother, Arthur [Vernard], before Judge William Bondy, who raised the bonds to $100,000.

Acting United States Attorney Noonan told Judge Bondy that more serious charges would be brought against the Musicas and perhaps others. Robert Musica then remarked: "There is no grave for my dead brother, but I have no intention of committing suicide."

The two were taken to the Federal Detention home in New York City.

George Dietrich was taken to New Haven and was bound over under $100,000 bonds by United States Commissioner Robert Alcorn. Visibly shaken by his brother's death, the prisoner said not a word. He was expected to remain in the jail at New Haven until a federal judge signed a removal order to send him out of the state.

HOW THEY SWINDLED U. S.

As Hair Importers They Bribe Customs Men

In their looting of McKesson & Robbins, the Musicas adopted some of the practices which had proven successful in swindling the American government out of duties on imported cheese in 1909 and New York banks out of sizable loans in 1913.

Their father had been a Neapolitan barber who came to the United States in the '80s. The trade of the father, Antonio, furnished Philip and the other Musicas with their interest in human hair, the principal commodity in their 1913 swindling operations.

Philip got his start in the importing business about 1900. On the piers he discovered that some of the customs officials were willing to enter little deals on the weighing of cheese which were mutually profitable.

Because of exceptional arrangements Philip was able to make with certain men in the customs, the family's importing business prospered wonderfully. Philip moved them out to a big house in Bay Ridge, Brooklyn.

Some customs weighers had been under suspicion. Investigation showed that bribes had been used to obtain a markdown on weights on the Musica's cheeses, thus escaping heavy duties.

Philip Musica, his eyes flashing, his voice rolling dramatically, took the blame. His father was innocent, he told the United States district court and he, Philip, was to blame. The court believed him, fined him $5,000 and sent him to prison for a year. The late President William Howard Taft pardoned him after six months.

Hair Swindle Uncovered.

In the spring of 1913 Philip asked the Bank of Manhattan company to discount a bill of goods for human hair valued at $370,000. The bank advanced him $25,000 and because of a flaw detected in the bill of lading sent investigators to the docks. They discovered the boxes were filled mostly with rubbish and that the whole lot was not worth more than $216.

Credit had been advanced to the Musicas on other deals by twenty-two banks in New York and abroad, it developed. The Musica family was apprehended in New Orleans by detectives and brought back to New York.

Again Philip shouldered the blame and the rest of the family was allowed to go free. In 1916 he received a suspended sentence.

Philip subsequently was indicted for perjury in a chicken racket murder, but the case was dropped. He dropped out of sight in 1920 and did not reappear until 1922 as F. Donald Coster, the respectable hair tonic manufacturer.

FAMILY HIDES IDENTITY

Fabricates a Respectable Past for Members.

The Musicas went to elaborate lengths to conceal their identity and to fabricate a respectable past. The Coster-Dietrichs said they were born in the United States, and so it appears in the bureau of vital statistics in the District of Columbia at Washington.

On Aug. 7, 1935, three birth certificates were filed, one for each Coster and George and Robert Dietrich. One midwife supposedly brought all three into the world. Her name was given as Adele Vinard.

Coster's place of birth was given as Washington, D. C., and the date as May 12, 1884. He endowed his father with the name Anthony Coster and his mother Marie Girard Coster, both being natives of Baltimore. His father's occupation was given as a chemist.

George Dietrich swore that he had been born in Washington, D. C., on Feb. 22, 1894, a son of George Dietrich, a clerk then living at an unknown address in New York City. The mother is listed as Alice D. Miller, one time resident of Boston.

The certificate filed by Robert Dietrich said he was born March 18, 1900, at the same Washington address as Dietrich.

Documentation then becomes vague and confused until one reaches the point of Coster's marriages. All is here set forth concisely upon a non-existent foundation. The office of the county clerk of Queens in Jamaica produced today an affidavit signed by Coster and Mrs. Carol Jenkins Hubbard. The affidavit constituted an application for a license to marry and was dated May 1, 1926. In the "Who's Who in America" sketch, 1937-'38 edition, Coster gives the date of his marriage as May 1, 1921, or five years earlier.

Gives Age as 42.

In this document Coster gave his age as 42 and his home as 78-74 150th street, Jamaica, and said he was a chemist. In "Who's Who" he said he was a physician who had practiced in New York City from 1912 to 1914, a fact denied today by a spokesman for the New York Academy of Medicine. In the Queens marriage license affidavit, Coster's mother, who was Marie in the Washington affidavit, became "Assumptione."

The affidavit of the woman whom Coster married says her name was Carol E. Hubbard of 87-74 150th street, Jamaica; that she was 34 years old, had no occupation, and that she had been born in Brooklyn, a daughter of John O. Jenkins and Carrie Schieffelin. In the Coster "Who's Who" sketch her name is given as Carol Jenkins Schiefflin, a somewhat different spelling from the marriage license affidavit. It was her second marriage and Coster's first, according to the marriage affidavits.

The "Who's Who" sketch, for which Coster supplied the material, is a mixture of fact and fancy. Coster, who owned a seagoing vessel named the Carolita, is listed both in Lloyd's register of American yachts and the 1937 edition of "Club Members of New York" as belonging to the New York Yacht club, of which J. P. Morgan and several members of the Vanderbilt family also are members.

Many yacht owners who are not intimate with such families as the Morgans and Vanderbilts belong to this organization, however.

Clubmen Deny Acquaintance.

A casual reading of the "Who's Who" sketch would indicate that Coster had listed himself as a member of the University club of New York. The University club listed by Coster is the University club of Bridgeport. Several other clubs he listed deny knowing him.

"Who's Who" lists Coster as a Methodist, but in a lether case found by the police in the room where he killed himself a card was found bearing the statement: "I am a Catholic. In case of accident notify a priest."

When he was supervising a little hair tonic factory [hair having brought him low in a custom scandal years before] he called himself Frank D. Coster. The more imposing F. Donald Coster did not appear until he became involved with high finance in Wall street.

It is said that he made reasonably large and anonymous gifts to charity both in Connecticut and in this city.

He had quiet, little parties aboard his sea-going vessel and might have been seen on many Sundays puttering around his Fairfield place like any other quiet and prosperous citizen. Apparently he wanted to be a respectable native born American and acquired the habit of making out affidavits to prove that he was.

Two Sisters in Seclusion.

The two Musica sisters remained in seclusion. One is Louise Musica, living as Mrs. Robert Guex of Wicosee, N. Y. In the spring of 1913 when detectives arrested the Musica family as it attempted to flee the country on a boat at New Orleans, $18,000 was found secreted in her corset. The other sister is Marie Musica, who went under the name of Marie Girard and lived in Westbury, N. Y. Their mother, Mrs. Antonio Musica, who called herself Mrs. Marie Girard Coster, also lives in Westbury. The father, Antonio Musica, is dead.

NAME IS PRONOUNCED MOO-SEE-KA; IT MEANS "MUSIC" IN ITALIAN

New York, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The pronunciation of "Musica," identified as the real name of F. Donald Coster, indicted president of McKesson & Robbins, who killed himself today, is moo-see-ka, with the accent on the first syllable. In Italy, where Musica was born, it means "music."

PUZZLED BY TANGLE OF NAMES IN FRAUD STORY? HERE'S A KEY!

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—The following "Who's Who" will enable readers to unravel the tangle of aliases in the Musica family, which is involved in the 18 million dollar McKesson & Robbins drug swindle:

F. Donald Coster [Philip Musica], president of concern, who killed himself today.

George Dietrich [George Musica], assistant treasurer of drug firm.

George Vernard [Arthur Musica], fiscal agent and Canadian representative of company.

Robert Dietrich [Robert Musica], head of shipping division and in charge of bills of lading, invoices, and vouchers.

Mrs. Robert Guex [Louise Musica] of Wicopee, N. Y., a sister, whose husband is a gardener on the estate of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

Marie Girard [Marie Musica] of Westbury, N. Y., also a sister.

Mrs. Marie Girard Coster [Mrs. Antonio Musica], also of Westbury, their mother.

Their father, Antonio Musica, who came to the United States from Italy in 1883 with his family, is dead.

SWINDLE CHIEF, QUIZZED IN 1919 INQUIRY ON REDS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—The criminal past of Philip Musica, president of McKesson & Robbins, who killed himself after being indicted in an 18 million dollar swindle, was once before exposed in a sensational investigation, it was revealed today. Musty files of the senate judiciary committee disclosed that he figured in a congressional inquiry of German and Bolshevik propaganda in this country in 1919.

It was brought out that Musica, then a special investigator for the New York attorney general's office under the name of William Johnson, had pleaded guilty to charges of grand larceny three years before. Alfred L. Becker, a witness before the committee, defended him.

"He is the friend of my children," Becker said. "He gives them Christmas presents. I have watched the coming to life of a beautiful spirit, a beautiful Christian spirit, in a man, which convinces me there is such a thing as reform."

COUPLE SAVED BY FIREMEN.

Edward Becker and his wife, Margaret, were revived by firemen yesterday. The couple had been overcome by coal gas from a stove in the kitchen of their home at 1510 South Kolin avenue.

SWINDLE CHIEF'S MOTHER LEAVES NEW YORK HOME

Westbury, N. Y., Dec. 16.—(AP)—The mother of Philip Musica, who as F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson & Robbins, ended his dual career with a bullet today, lived here until late Wednesday when she and one of her daughters, Marie, departed "to enjoy a warmer climate."

Mrs. Hugo Weth, a caretaker, said that Mrs. Marie Girard Coster, as she called the mother, was 76 years old.

Mrs. Weth said Coster-Musica, who was indicted in an 18 million dollar drug swindle, telephoned his mother daily and motored out to Westbury in summer time, and added that McKesson & Robbins trucks frequently stopped at the place.

INJURED BY STREET CAR.

Mrs. Betty Peterson, 35 years old, 417 North Clark street, was seriously injured yesterday when she was struck by a street car in front of 1533 Madison street.

MUSICA'S SUICIDE ECHOES KREUGER, STAVISKY DEATHS

New York, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The suicide of Philip Musica, alias F. Donald Coster, recalls Ivar Kreuger and Serge Stavisky—men who, like Coster, reared huge financial enterprises, saw them collapse, and killed themselves.

Kreuger made millions in matches. Born in Sweden in 1880, he came to the United States. He had small jobs in Chicago, Canada, London, and New York before starting in Stockholm in 1908 to build Kreuger & Toll, a holding and finance company which had world-wide match monopolies and business, and reached so great a financial position that he could lend France $75,000,000 and Germany $125,000,000.

He killed himself in his Paris home March 12, 1932.

Stavisky—nicknamed "Handsome Alex," Russian born, a naturalized French citizen, friend of cabinet ministers, and suspected swindler—founded the Credit Municipal of Bayonne, France, a pawnshop whose collapse in December, 1933, revealed frauds amounting to $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 and played a part in the downfall on Jan. 27, 1934, of Premier Camille Chautemps' government. There were other political and economic ramifications. French police caught up with him in Chamonix on Jan. 8, 1934, but he was dead. It was officially called suicide.

When you get into a tight place, and everything goes against you, till it seems as if you couldn't hold on a minute longer, never give up then, for that is just the place and time the tide will turn. . . .
—Harriet Beecher Stowe

F. Donald Coster, alias Philip Musica, disregarded this advice and took his own life yesterday after he had been exposed as an ex-convict. The motto, framed, stood on a library table in his home.

DAUGHTER'S LOVE ALIENATED, SAYS MRS. M'LAUGHLIN

Irene Castle McLaughlin yesterday accused her estranged husband, Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, coffee merchant and sportsman, of alienating the affections of their daughter, Barbara, 13 years old. Barbara is a student at Ferry hall academy in Lake Forest.

Her charge was contained in a petition presented to Judge Robert C. O'Connell in Superior court. The petition asked the court to change the girl's school so that she could not see her father so often and be influenced by him against her mother. The petition was entered during a hearing on Maj. McLaughlin's request to force his wife, who is in Hollywood working on a moving picture, to return their son, Billy, to him during the holidays. The hearing was continued until Monday.

SEDATIVE BLAMED IN DEATH.

Miss Elizabeth Leahy, 27 years old, died last night in her home at 1223 Lawrence avenue. Police said she apparently took an overdose of sleeping tablets.

PUBLIC FUNDS SUPPORT SIXTH OF ILLINOISIANS

One out of every six persons in Illinois received public aid during November from general relief funds, WPA employment, or old age assistance. There were 535,784 cases, or family groups, containing 1,348,268 persons, on the public assistance rolls during the month.

This report was made yesterday to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission by E. E. Ferebee, commission statistician. He said that there were 184,456 cases with 512,123 persons on general relief, 242,439 cases with 800,049 dependents on WPA, and 123,580 persons receiving old age assistance.

Chicago had 252,187 cases, or 648,133 persons, on its various rolls, the report said. The 101 downstate counties reported 263,285 cases containing 643,771 persons. The balance of the reliefers were in Cook county outside Chicago.

Newsstand Operators Will Hold Yule Dance Tonight

Southwest side newsstand operators will hold a Christmas fund dance tonight in School hall, 48th and Honore streets. Receipts will be used to provide 600 Christmas baskets for needy families in the "back o' the yards" neighborhood. Edward E. Shields, who has been a newsdealer at 47th and Paulina streets for twenty-three years, heads the committee.

SEIZE JOBLESS SAILOR AS SENDER OF EXTORT NOTE TO SOCIETY GIRL

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—James C. Edwards, an unemployed sailor, was arrested by federal agents tonight and accused of sending a $10,000 extortion note to Eileen Balfe, daughter of Thomas W. Balfe, vice president of National Distillers. The society girl has been guarded by federal agents for several weeks following receipt of notes demanding $3,000.

Edwards went to the federal bureau of investigation headquarters with a story calculated to divert suspicion from himself. He reported that a man approached him in Chinatown and offered him $20 to pick up a package at the Seaman's Church institute and deliver it to an information booth at Grand Central station.

Federal agents took Edwards to the spot yesterday and, when no one appeared with a package, he admitted he had concocted the story. Edwards said he read about the original threats against Miss Balf and figured it would be easy to "chisel" in on the case. Federal agents said they were convinced Edwards had nothing to do with the original extortion notes.

STABBED TO DEATH IN YARD.

Miss Fay Pope, 19 years old, colored, was found stabbed to death yesterday in the back yard at 1352 South Peoria street. She lived at 1245 Miller street.

LEWIS BREAKS UP ICKES' MEETING ON MINE SAFETY

CIO Czar Sends Brother with His Order.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Burly A. D. Lewis, brother of the head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, broke up tonight the two day coal mining safety conference called by Secretary Harold L. Ickes.

A. D. Lewis. [Acme Photo.]

Lewis stalked into the conference late in the afternoon to demand it confine itself to discussion of arrangements for a larger conference "representative of the coal mining industry." He represented John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

"This conference could complete its work in ten minutes by adopting a resolution for a national conference of labor, mine operators, state departments, and other officials as proposed in the January resolution of the U. M. W. A.," Lewis insisted.

Vote for Later Meeting.

Delegates to the conference followed his suggestion by voting for a meeting of the industry some time in the future and immediate adjournment of today's conference, which Secretary Ickes had planned to continue Saturday.

Lewis, slumped in a chair at the head of the conference room, engaged in a verbal altercation with Under-Secretary of the Interior Harry Slattery, conference chairman. He asserted the conference should operate in accordance with the resolution adopted by the U. M. W. A. calling for a national gathering of miners, mine owners, state mining department officials and interior department officers.

"I wouldn't want to commit the U. M. W. A. to sponsor action in this meeting with respect to safety in mines," Lewis told Slattery. "I came here thinking we merely were to make arrangements for a large meeting of the industry."

Pleads for Continuance.

Slattery pleaded for continuance of the current conference to determine agenda for the future meeting. Lewis was obdurate, so the meeting adjourned.

Slattery, indignant over the sudden stop to legislative discussions, declared the plan for the two-day meeting previously had been given approval by the United Mine Workers.

A proposal that a federal bureau take over enforcement of safety and health conditions in anthracite and bituminous coal mines ran into opposition a short time before the adjournment. The main objection, opponents said, was to giving the federal bureau of mines police powers.

Greece Acts to Oust Last of Communists; Seizes 46

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Athens police announced today what they termed a decisive blow at the remaining communist element in Greece with the arrest of 46 persons and seizure of documents, leaflets, and a printing machine.

They'll Decide Blonde Slayer's Case

BLONDE SLAYER MATCHES WITS ON CROSS QUIZ

Replies to Prosecutor Calmly and Slowly.

your arrest for having a deadly weapon was lost, destroyed or stolen from the justice of the peace's office? A.—I do not.

On redirect examination, Dewhirst brought out from her that Sheriff Charles Miller had taken her to the jail at the time of her arrest.

"Had you been sticking a gun in William's ribs?" Dewhirst inquired.

"No, sir," she replied.

Mrs. Dull testified she was freed from jail without court action at the time and that some one told her Holbrook had her arrested for a joke.

Reaches Story of Shooting.

The courtroom crowd was tense when Westin came to the story of the shooting. She testified that Sergt. Eugene Murphy had detained her a moment in the police station after Holbrook had complained about her.

Q.—Wasn't it a fact that he was on 5th street and you caught up with him? And you started an argument and you began to fight, and you drew this gun? [Weston's voice rose to a roar.] And he started to run, and yelled, "Help, help," and you shot him in the back? A. [In a low, untroubled voice]—No, sir.

Q.—When did you start forgetting? A.—I'm trying to remember everything, Mr. Westin.

Mrs. Dull said her mind was a blank from the time Holbrook ran toward her with a raised fist until after the shooting.

Q.—You want to tell this jury, then, that all you remember of all you told at the station is that you gave your name and address? A.—I can't remember what went on.

Marital Issue Raised.

Westin tried to get Mrs. Dull on record as to when she learned that Holbrook had a wife and four children in Kalamazoo. She replied that she had never seen documentary evidence.

Q.—What did you ask him about his marital status? A.—I never made it my business to inquire into other people's business.

When the prosecutor asked Mrs. Dull why she never left Holbrook, if he beat her as much as she testified, she replied: "I worshipped him. I loved him very much."

INDICT 3 FORMER BANK EMPLOYES AS EMBEZZLERS

The federal grand jury yesterday indicted three former bank employes on charges of embezzling a total of $8,881. Two of them, Ignatius A. Chap, 8208 South Loomis street, and David C. Sonne, 608 West 61st place, were bookkeepers at the Chicago City Bank and Trust company, 831 West 63d street.

Assistant United States Attorney Daniel A. Glasser said both credited money to their personal accounts. Chap is charged with taking $3,367 and Sonne with $2,680.

The third man named is John Allen Stewart, 2617 Eastwood avenue, Evanston, former assistant cashier of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Evanston. Stewart is accused of failing to deposit $2,834 in rent collections. His father-in-law, Don A. Jones, a former deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, is awaiting trial on a charge of income tax evasion.

2 WPA WORKERS GUILTY IN DEATH OF PROJECT BOSS

Face 1-10 Years in Prison for Manslaughter.

Two former WPA workers were found guilty of manslaughter by a Criminal court jury last night in connection with the slaying of Charles W. Cummings, their project superintendent.

The two— Benjamin Simons and Walter Wielgoreckl, both of Calumet Park—face prison terms of one to fourteen years each. The original charge against them was murder.

Deliberate Two Hours.

The jury returned its verdict before Judge Benjamin P. Epstein after deliberating two hours and five minutes. The defendants heard it read without show of emotion. Benedict J. Short and Charles Bellows, defense lawyers, promptly moved for a new trial. Judge Epstein set the hearing for Dec. 23. The lawyers announced they would plead for probation if a new trial is denied.

Cummings, who was 59 years old, was fatally injured in a fight Nov. 10 in the WPA headquarters in the Calumet Park village hall. He was head of a project in the suburb and Simons and Wielgorecki were employed under him. Simons is a former amateur boxer. Wielgorecki is a brother of Police Chief Matthew Wielgorecki of Calumet Park.

Fight Starts After Firings

The prosecution contended that the fight in which Cummings was fatally injured rose over the dismissal of Wielgorecki and Simons for quitting work 30 minutes ahead of time. Simons testified he and Wielgorecki called on Cummings to protest their dismissal, and asserted that Cummings struck him.

There was a general melee, he said. Someone threw a chair. Simons said he dodged. The chair struck Cummings, causing the fatal injuries. Wielgorecki's story was substantially the same. State witnesses testified Simons beat Cummings.

The jury was given five possible verdicts, ranging from acquittal to death in the electric chair.

CONVICT FLEES; TAKES GUARD'S MONEY; SEIZED

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Sergt. John W. Malaney of Southern Michigan prison reported to police here today that a paroled convict he was returning from the McAlester, Okla., penitentiary was gone when he awakened about noon in a hotel room they both had occupied.

Several hours later the prisoner, Dr. Walter R. Armstrong of Fort Wayne, Ind., was arrested on a train at Clinton, Ill., and held for Warden Joel Moore of the Jackson, Mich., prison.

Malaney told police the prisoner's commitment papers, their railroad tickets, and his cash and baggage were gone when he awakened. Dr. Armstrong was being returned to the Michigan penitentiary to complete six years of a term as a parole violator.

FREE BUGS MORAN AND 6 UNION MEN ARRESTED IN RAID

George [Bugs] Moran, former north side gang leader, and six union officials were released early last evening after they had been held and questioned for eight hours by state's attorney's police. They were seized in a raid on the headquarters of the new Wholesale Grocery Workers' union at 702 Fulton street.

Merchants had protested against high pressure methods and threats they said the union was using to sell tickets and program space for a dance to be given by the union Feb. 5. Proceeds, it was reported, were to be used as a defense fund by Moran in his trial which opens Jan. 3.

Moran and two associates, Frank Parker and Frank Hicketts, are charged with a $1,000,000 fake money order plot against the American Express company.

Moran, however, told Lieut. Thomas Kelly, who led the raid and did the questioning, that the money for his defense is not coming from unions, but from another source which he refused to disclose. Moran said he had dropped into the union headquarters merely to visit friends, and the others arrested backed him up.

HUNT BROKER'S SON INDICTED IN LOAN CO. HOLDUP

Suspect Heintz Is on Way to Europe.

A widespread police search was ordered last night for Hubert Heintz, son of a Winnetka broker. Heintz was secretly indicted by the grand jury on Thursday on a charge of robbery. Deputy sherifs who entered his home at 6447 North Rockwell street yesterday found that he had left a week ago — probably, they learned, for Europe.

Hubert Heintz.

Heintz was arrested under mysterious circumstances on Nov. 21. Although a member of a good family [his father, Philip, is a member of the New York and Chicago Stock exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade], the young man fitted the description of the robber who held up the Household Finance corporation office at 3150 Lincoln avenue on Nov. 4, getting $100.

Follow Up Hair Clew.

After his arrest, Heintz, who is 30 years old, was found to have blond hair. The robber was described as having dark hair. The descriptions otherwise tallied so closely, however, that a formal charge of robbery was filed, and police suggested Heintz had dyed his hair. Then in the Felony court a report was brought in showing that microscopic tests of Heintz's hair failed to show it had been dyed.

The charge was nol prossed, but Assistant State's Attorney Joseph O'Connor continued to investigate.

Yesterday he announced that he had taken six witnesses before the grand jury. Three of the witnesses said they could identify Heintz as the robber from facial characteristics, although they say the color of his hair is different. The other three witnesses, according to the prosecutor, said Heintz's hair was darker before the robbery than it is now. The prosecutor, however, could give no explanation for the report of the chemist which said no dye was used in Heintz's hair.

Policemen Watch House.

Deputy Sherif Patrick Keenan and Charles Kordecki and a police squad under Lieut. Kyran Phalen began watching the Heintz house immediately after the indictment was returned Thursday. Yesterday, seeing no activity, they decided to enter it.

William Dorant, who said he was a roomer there, told them Heintz and his wife had left a week ago, and said he understood they were bound for Europe.

The police department immediately called seaboard cities and instructed them to watch for the fugitive.

Although Heintz was not identified by witnesses after his arrest, the police received from one witness the license number of the car which the robber entered. The license was traced to Mrs. M. B. Clark of 4456 North Ashland avenue, the mother-in-law of Heintz. Mrs. Clark said she lent the car to Heintz, who told her he was going to Joliet. Police were watching the Clark home on the chance Heintz might go there.

Mother of Two Gets Year for Forging Dope Orders

Mrs. Eleanor Connelly, 24 years old, 3027 North Francisco avenue, a graduate nurse and mother of two children, was sentenced yesterday to a year in the women's reformatory at Dwight. She pleaded guilty before Judge Oscar S. Caplan in Women's court to charges of possessing narcotics and to forging prescriptions to get the drugs.

3 YOUNG ROBBERS ADMIT LOOTING 35 WEST SIDE HOMES

Three young men, two of whom were released recently from the St. Charles reformatory, were under arrest last night at the Fillmore street police station as members of a burglary gang. Police said they confessed looting more than thirty-five west side homes.

The two released from the reformatory, where they had been sent for juvenile delinquency, are Harry Zelmanovitz, 18 years old, 3341 Douglas boulevard, and Harry Bookstein, 19, of 1113 South Troy street. The third member is David Klinger, 19, of 2855 Washington boulevard.

Zelmanovitz told Policemen George Cohen and William Mangan that he had planned to be married today.

Last Thanksgiving the three said they broke into several butcher shops to get turkeys for a party they planned. About $100 worth of stolen merchandise and a fur coat worn by Klinger's wife were recovered. The gang was seized through the efforts of Policemen Cohen, Mangan, Louis Otto, and Charles Trilling.

MAYOR PRAISES POLICE HERO FOR SLAYING BANDIT

Two Surprised; One Flees in Gun Battle.

A heroic policeman who shot it out with two bandits at the risk of his own life, killing one of them, was praised last night for his courage.

Raymond Miller.

Mayor Kelly, Commissioner Allman, and Capt. George Lynch of the Austin station, in whose district the gun battle occurred early yesterday, joined in paying tribute to the policeman. He is Frank L. Murphy of the North avenue station. He already has six citations for bravery.

The slain bandit, an ex-convict and former parolee, was Raymond Miller, alias Leonard Ewing, 38 years old. Miller and an unidentified accomplice, who escaped, were trapped by Murphy in the Rudin Brothers liquor store and grocery at 5040 Madison street.

Force 2 to Lie on Floor.

The gunmen entered the store with guns drawn. They compelled William Rudin, an owner, to hand over $50, and then forced him and Frank Cortina, 17, a delivery boy, to lie on the floor in the rear. The bandits then began taking liquor.

At this moment Policeman Murphy, who was off duty and on his way to his home at 317 South Lavergne avenue, stopped by. He saw the two bandits. Miller saw him at the same time and fired a shot through the window at Murphy. The policeman fired six bullets through the window at Miller, killing him instantly. The second gunman fled through a rear door, leaving behind an automobile in which two sets of stolen license plates were found.

Act Praised by Kelly.

"Policeman Murphy's act is an example of the efficiency of the Chicago police department," said Mayor Kelly. "It is also an example of the courage of the men who daily protect the lives and property of Chicagoans. The policeman was not on duty at the time, but he was ready to meet any emergency. I congratulate Murphy upon his observance of duty when called upon to face two dangerous criminals."

Miller was first sentenced to prison at Richmond, Va., in 1922 for robbery. He escaped in 1923 and was caught in Chicago in 1929. He was sentenced to prison in 1930 on a larceny charge, turned over to Virginia parole officials in 1934, and discharged from parole and sentence in August, 1937.

DIES AFTER FALL.

Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Returning from a shopping trip yesterday, Mrs. Blondine Case found the body of her son, Charles, 34 years old, at the bottom of the cellar steps. A coroner's jury decided that his death resulted from a cerebral hemorrhage caused by a fall.

URGE PRESIDENT TO AID TRADE IN CABINET CHOICE

Ask Commerce Secretary with Sound Views.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—With opposition flaring to the appointment of Harry L. Hopkins to the cabinet organized business appealed to the President today to choose for his new secretary of commerce a business leader capable of restoring confidence in the future of private enterprise.

Harry L. Hopkins.

Whether he is to keep to the left by naming Hopkins to the commerce portfolio or is to turn to the right in deference to the November election returns, which recorded a popular repudiation of the New Deal, is the question confronting the President as he enters upon his holiday task of reconstructing his cabinet.

Want Responsible Leader.

The plea for the appointment of a responsible business leader to administer the government's business department was voiced by George H. Davis, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, following the announcement of the resignation of Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper.

"Confidence must be restored to get business going at full speed and at full time," said Mr. Davis. "Confidence in public officials and their economic views is essential if business is to increase its activities so as to absorb the unemployed.

"An important opportunity to help restore confidence is now offered to the President. It is an opportunity to promote the business development which the country so greatly needs and to give assurance that will have a heartening and quickening effect throughout the country — assurance that the point of view of the men who have business responsibilities will be accorded a hearing when new policies and new measures are being given consideration.

Issue Termed Vital One.

"This opportunity lies in the choice the President is to make for a new secretary of commerce. The occupant of this cabinet position should be a man recognized as a competent spokesman in cabinet councils for those business interests of the country which it is in the public interest to protect, foster, and develop.

"Events have made it most timely and most urgent, too, that he should be a man to take the leadership in rebuilding and reinspiring the services of the department of commerce which in the past have done so much to assist American business men in developing their foreign trade. The prestige, the activities, and the successes of the department in these directions can be restored with the right kind of leadership, and it was never more to the benefit of every one that they should be restored.

"At the present moment no department of the government offers greater possibilities for promotion of the public interest of the United States. The head of the department can easily be a pivotal man in our national affairs. The choice of the new incumbent for this cabinet place consequently has high public importance."

Roper Forced Out.

Secretary Roper was forced out of the cabinet by the young left wingers of the Roosevelt inner circle, who opened fire on him immediately after the election with a view to providing a berth for Hopkins. The chief of the Works Progress administration is the President's closest friend and adviser and Mr. Roosevelt will name him to the post unless deterred by the attitude of the business community and of the senate, in which there would be great opposition to confirmation of the nomination.

If the President were disposed to turn to the right for a commerce secretary he would have a large field of possibilities to choose from. Topping the list of administration right wingers suggested for the post is Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, now home on leave.

Then there is Averill Harriman who has endeavored to shepherd business for the New Deal as chairman of Mr. Roper's business advisory council. Others suggested include John D. Biggers, a Republican who conducted the unemployment census, Assistant Secretaries of Commerce Richard C. Patterson and J. Monroe Johnson, and Paul V. Shields, a New York broker who is the New Deal liaison with Wall street.

The President declined at his press conference to be drawn out on the subject of appointments.

OPPOSES CHERRY TREES OF JAPAN IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told newsmen today that he had received several letters protesting the emphasis on Japanese cherry trees in the national capital. Many letters, he said, suggested a concentration on American dogwood.

So, the chief executive disclosed, the national park service will start planting next spring a very large number of both pink and white dogwood in an area north of the cherry trees. The latter circle the capital's tidal basin.

A reporter brought a laugh when he asked whether a five to three ratio of dogwood and Japanese cherry trees would prevail. His reference was to the five to three naval ratio between the United States and Japan which prevailed during the life of the now inoperative London treaty.

ALASKAN STORM BALKS AID FOR 18 ON BARREN COAST

Rescuers Unable to Reach Shipwreck Camp.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Dec. 16. — (AP) — Gales on the Alaska coast today balked attempts by sea and air to aid eighteen survivors of the grounded motorship Patterson. For the fifth successive day the sailors were marooned in their improvised camp on an isolated beach near Cape Fairweather.

Arrow indicates location of shipwreck camp.

The Patterson, a veteran Alaskan whaling ship, went aground early Monday morning, causing the death of two of the crew. They were Chief Officer Gustaf F. Swanson of Seattle, Wash., and James Moore, able bodied seaman of Los Angeles, Cal.

Pilot Forced Back.

Pilot Sheldon Simmons, who left Juneau in a plane this morning with food, oilskins, axes and tobacco to drop to the party, turned back at Hirst because of threatening weather. Yesterday he had attempted to fly to the camp with three guides who hoped to bring the sailors overland through wild country to safety, but was forced back by a storm.

The guides afterward boarded the coast guard patrol boat Morris, which proposed to try a landing. This idea was abandoned, however, because of the heavy weather.

Confer On Rescue Plans.

The coast guard cutter Haida, which had stood by offshore, met the Morris today at Cape Fairweather, and their officers conferred on rescue plans. A heavy surf again prevented attempts to land small boats.

The coast guard said that if the Morris is unable to find a nearby landing spot, guides will try to lead a party overland to the wilderness hemmed beach.

The survivors yesterday told coast guardsmen by means of flashlight signals that all were weak from exposure and sore feet. They said they had food to last two more days.

3 DENY "GIMP" SHOT ALDERMAN IN SELF-DEFENSE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Rebuttal witnesses today attacked the claim of Martin [Gimp] Snyder that he shot Myrl Alderman, new husband of Ruth Etting, to defend his own life.

The trial of Snyder, former Chicago and New York rialto figure, appeared near a close when it was recessed at noon until Monday morning. Final arguments are expected to be made Monday.

The defendant is accused of wounding Alderman, young pianist; of attempting to kill Miss Etting, who was Snyder's wife for seventeen years, and threatening the life of his daughter by a former marriage, Ruth Snyder, 21 years old. He faces maximum sentences totaling 115 years if convicted.

Miss Etting, Alderman, and Miss Snyder returned to the stand today to refute Snyder's testimony that he shot to save his own life.

BODY OF SECOND LAKE VICTIM IS FOUND BY SKATER

The body of Frederick Hirschmann was recovered from Lake Como, near Lake Geneva, Wis., yesterday, near the spot where his wife's body was found Thursday. A coroner's jury found that the couple had drowned accidentally.

Hirschmann, 55 years old, a Chicago engraver, and his wife, Theresa, went to Lake Como on a fishing trip Nov. 19. Three days later their hired rowboat was found overturned and subsequently their dog's body was taken from the lake. Authorities were unable to find the bodies of the couple, and a reward of $150 was posted.

Elmer Chamberlain, a farm hand, located Mrs. Hirschmann's body near the north shore. Yesterday Roy Muzzy of Lake Geneva was one of twenty skaters who continued the search. He found the husband's body under the ice at the center of the lake. The Hirschmann home was at 2930 Eastwood avenue.

HIS WAR BUDDIES CALL ON GREEN TO SEEK MAYORALTY

First Chance to Vote for Veteran, They Argue.

World war veterans will have their first opportunity to vote for one of their own number for mayor of Chicago if Dwight H. Green becomes a Republican candidate. A delegation of veterans used this argument to Green yesterday in urging him to run.

Green, the former district attorney who sent Al Capone to prison, told the visitors that he had not yet made up his mind. Friends expect him to announce his decision this week-end.

The veterans called on Green in his law offices at 231 South La Salle street. Here he has practiced since completing two years as district attorney in 1935. On the walls are the original drawings of newspaper cartoons celebrating his prosecution of gangsters.

Praise Service Record.

"You have a fine war service record as well as a fine civic record," said William E. Helander, a former judge of the Municipal court. "For both these reasons, and the fact that you have outstanding character and ability, we veterans want you to run for mayor."

"Yes, you can serve your city in 1939 as you served your country in 1918," said J. F. Novotny.

All members of the delegation were past officers of American Legion posts, the Forty-and-Eight, or the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Besides Helander and Novotny, those present were George Sugarman, Thomas A. Patrick, David L. Shillinglaw, Dwight J. Anderson, William M. Devine, Emmet F. Byrne, and Frank H. Collins.

Green is 41 years old. When he was 20 he left Wabash college to enlist in the army. He became a 2d lieutentant in the air service and was an instructor in flying. In 1919 his two years of service ended with an honorable discharge and he returned to college.

Green was indorsed as a mayoralty candidate last night by eighty-eight precinct captains of the 47th Ward Regular Republican club. The meeting was held at 4220 Lincoln avenue. Frank R. Leonard, ward committeeman, presided.

Directs G. O. P. Activities.

A. K. Stiles, Republican state chairman, said yesterday that arrangements have been made to keep the G. O. P. state headquarters open through 1940. State committee offices have been established at 11 South La Salle street, where Stiles will direct activities of the publicity, research, and speakers' divisions.

Stiles will coördinate all party action for the 1940 program, and for the election next spring, outside Cook county, of fifty-one Circuit court judges and one Illinois Supreme court justice. An appeal for funds is being made.

"We know that Illinois will be in the Republican column at the next election, if we are enabled to do the necessary work," Stiles said. "Had our organization been financially able to bring 90,000 'stay at home' Republicans to the polls on Nov. 8 we would have elected the senator."

ALMOST READY TO CUT FLOW OF LAKE INTO RIVER

All major work on the $2,500,000 control gate at the mouth of the Chicago river was completed yesterday with the driving in of the last sheet piling in the wall connecting the lock with the government pier north of the lock. Partial shutoff of the river from Lake Michigan will occur in January, in accordance with the United States Supreme court order reducing water diversion from 6,500 to 1,500 cubic feet per second. The lock will be closed when there is a danger, because of an excess of storm water, of the river flowing backward, according to William Trinkhaus, chief engineer of the sanitary district.

DIES AT FARM HOME.

Woodstock, Ill., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Joseph Guth, 71 years old, life resident of this community, died today at his farm home in Greenwood township.

Abandoned

Three children whose mother said she no longer wanted them were turned over to the St. Joseph's Home for the Friendless, 739 East 35th street, by Chicago avenue police yesterday. They are George Mairajanis, 5 years old; his sister, Fay, 3, and John, 20 months. Their father, Peter, is suffering from tuberculosis. The children had been living with their mother, Marie, at 675 North Clark street. She disappeared three days ago and later phoned the rooming house to have the police pick up the children.

DOWNSTATE G.O.P. PUSHES FIGHT TO ELECT SPEAKER

Caucus Today Seeks to Settle Differences.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Seven downstate Republican representatives will meet in Springfield today to seek agreement upon one of their number as a candidate for speaker of the Illinois house. He would run against Elmer J. Schnackenberg, leading contender in the Chicago bloc.

If the downstaters can compose their differences, they are likely to choose Hugh Cross of Jerseyville or Robert J. Branson of Centralia to make the caucus race on Jan. 3 against Schnackenberg, who was floor leader in the 1937 session.

Schnackenberg's supporters, while prepared to watch today's meeting closely, said the forty votes necessary to control the caucus have already been pledged to him.

Dispute Control Claim.

Some of the downstaters hooted this claim. They believe that the majority of the fifty-seven representatives elected from outside Cook county on Nov. 8 will stand behind a downstater, and will be supported by anti-Schnackenberg Chicagoans. Cook county will have only twenty-two members in the caucus. The G. O. P. total of seventy-nine is two votes greater than the seventy-seven majority necessary to elect the speaker.

Downstate and Chicago camps agreed yesterday on one major point. This is that the chance of any of the seventy-nine Republicans voting with the Democrats and permitting Gov. Horner to organize the house is negligible.

In Springfield or on their way there last night were the following downstate aspirants for the house rostrum: Branson, Cross, Reed F. Cutler, Lewiston; Denis J. Collins, De Kalb; Oral P. Tuttle, Harrisburg; Ira H. Streeper III., Alton, and Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove.

May Be a Caucus.

Their meeting today may turn out to be a sort of caucus. Other downstaters are scheduled to attend. There may be one or two from Chicago.

The appeal made in soliciting downstate votes against Schnackenberg is that downstate sent 57 representatives to the house against 22 elected in Chicago and Cook county. Therefore, it is reasoned, the speakership belongs downstate.

BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $500 BY 3.

DEMOCRATS URGE KELLY RUN AGAIN; REPLY PROMISED

Mayor to Give Answer on Radio Thursday.

Mayor Kelly received the official bid from the Democratic organization yesterday to announce himself a candidate for reëlection.

A group of forty ward committeemen, members of the city central committee, called on the mayor in his office in the city hall. They presented a resolution approved by the committee last Tuesday which praised the mayor and his administration.

Included in the delegation was Ald. Frank Keenan [49th], one of the two members of the committee who supported Assessor John S. Clark in Tuesday's roll call. Keenan joined with the others in urging the mayor to make the race.

Gives Answer Thursday.

Mayor Kelly thanked the delegation and said he would give his answer Thursday night. He also made a statemen which some thought was aimed at the anticipated candidacy of State's Attorney Courtney, who has been expected to announce himself for the mayoralty.

"The word 'boss,'" the mayor said, "is one which can be used by any one to his own advantage. Some would knock down to build themselves up.

"I have never asked for the privilege of running for mayor," Mr. Kelly continued. "I have never solicited the action of this committee. As to the question which is before us, you men know that there have been many organizations, some of them not in politics, that have visited me with the same proposal.

"I believe these organizations should know the answer just as soon as you do.

"I suggest that you secure radio time next week—say on Thursday night. I don't want it any sooner because it must not interfere with my Christmas show for needy children. I will be happy to go on the air and give my answer to the people."

Arvey Praises Organization.

Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th] was chairman of the Democratic delegation. He reminded the mayor that only two of the committeemen had voted against him at the indorsement meeting.

"Our firm belief is that your reelection is necessary to give the organization its full opportunity of further service to the people of Chicago," Arvey said. "The welfare of the city is tied up with your reëlection. Things are better than when you took office in 1933, and we look for further improvements in the next four years."

Ald. Keenan told Mr. Kelly that he had voted for Assessor Clark because of friendship and because he considered Clark a fine public official. "But I want to go on record," he said, turning to the delegation, "that Kelly is the best mayor we have ever had and we need him again."

No Reform Needed.

Ald. James J. McDermott [14th] said he had heard some talk of a "reform" ticket.

"We don't need reform here," the alderman declared. "Mayor Kelly's administration has been progressive and liberal. His record speaks for itself."

Others in the delegation included County Treasurer John Toman, Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d], Edward M. Sneed [3d], Joseph L. Gill [46th], James M. Whalen [6th], Edward J. Kaindl [31st], John A. Szumnarski [35th], Louis Rixman [50th], and Christ A. Jensen [40th].

La Grange Official Quits; He's Going to Legislature

A. W. Sprague, Republican state representative-elect from the 7th senatorial district, resigned yesterday as police magistrate of La Grange. He has served six years and left the office, he said, because of his election to the legislature. A successor to fill out his term, which does not expire until next April, is expected to be named by the county board.

EMPLOYE OF LOOP STORE SOUGHT IN $5,000 SHORTAGE

Police last night were seeking Louis Smith, 52 years old, 3826 South Wolcott avenue, on a warant charging larceny obtained by the Boston store. Smith was employed as cashier at the 23d street delivery station of the store.

Louis Smith.

Henry May, superintendent of the station, said Smith's accounts were found to be $5,000 short after he left work Wednesday night. An examination of the books was made Thursday when he failed to appear for work. His wife, Grace, told police that Smith had not been home.

PHI PSIS TO AID GOOD FELLOWS WITH LUNCHEON

Raise Fund to Aid 325 Needy Children.

Philip Maxwell, The Tribune's Good Fellow editor, will speak at 12:35 p. m. today on the Midday Service program over W-G-N. He will report to Good Fellows on the progress in their campaign.

Brig. Gen. Nathan William MacChesney, a member of the Alpha chapter of Phi Kappa Psi at Northwestern university, will be the principal speaker Monday noon at the third annual Phi Psi Good Fellow fraternity luncheon, to be held in the La Salle hotel's Red room. Several hundred men are expected to attend, including scores from other fraternities.

The Rev. Edwin J. Randall, superintendent of city missions for the Episcopal church, will give the invocation. The Interfraternity Glee club, directed by Capt. Lew Bodine in the absence of the conductor, Fred Morris, will sing and Miss Marguerite English, pianist, will play.

Entertainment will include a glass blowing exhibition in which Paul Jahn, dressed as Santa, will make Christmas crystals; a comedy address by Charlie Wilson of W-G-N, and vocal solos by Louise Dunne of Happy Felton's band and Shirley Sadler of WBBM. Claude Kirchner, W-G-N announcer, will be master of ceremonies.

First Chairman's Wife a Guest.

Robert F. Smith, Phi Psi Good Fellow chairman, has received the acceptance of Mrs. Roy J. Maddigan, widow of the first Good Fellow chairman of this fraternity group, to be guest of honor. The original Mr. Good Fellow, the late Edward C. Fitch, was a member of Phi Kappa Psi at Indiana university. At a recent grand arch council of this college organization, held in Chicago, a resolution was passed which called upon each campus and every alumni group in the United States to sponsor a Good Fellow campaign at Christmas time.

On the local committee, besides Mr. Smith, are Paul Mooney, Randolph Scott, Harold Townsend, former national president, and William N. Walling. Three hundred and twenty-five children will be remembered by these fraternity men on Christmas eve with the money raised at this luncheon. The baskets will be distributed from the Phi Psi houses on the Northwestern university and University of Chicago campuses.

Other fraternity members and college men wishing to attend the affair may make reservations through the Interfraternity club headquarters, phone Franklin 6540.

500 to Be Radio Guests.

Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock more than 500 workers in the Good Fellow campaign will be entertained at the Harold Stokes "Your Sunday Date" radio program in the W-G-N studios. Among those who will attend are Byron O. Jones, Chicago Rotary club sunshine committee chairman, recently named No. 1 Mr. Good Fellow in Chicago, and the following Good Fellow leaders of large groups: Arthur Schwietert, Trafic Club of Chicago; William Westlake, Aviation Good Fellows; Joseph Epstein, Chicago Carriers' association; J. Wesley Jones, Metropolitan Community church, and TRIBUNE department Good Fellow directors, Walter Gregson, Edward Krantz, Sigmund Poklacki, Roy Anderson, and Paul Schroeder.

Names of unfortunate families to which you may take a basket of food, toys, and candy on Christmas eve may be obtained at the Good Fellow bureau, 1 South Dearborn street. Just fill in the accompanying Good Fellow coupon and send it in, or phone Superior 0100.

EX-FOLLIES GIRL IS DIVORCED ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Howard M. Brown, an insurance executive, won an uncontested divorce before Judge Robert C. O'Connell yesterday from Dorothea Joy Brown, former Follies girl. She received a $2,700 settlement in lieu of alimony.

Questioned by his attorney, Benjamin B. Davis, Brown told of three occasions on which his wife was cruel to him. In May, 1936, she threw a heavy bunch of keys at him when he brought three friends to his apartment at 210 East Pearson street for a bridge game, he said, and then she took out all the light bulbs to make certain the foursome couldn't play.

On June 3, 1936, when he protested her incurring of $1,500 in bills, she scratched his face, and again, on Aug. 31 of that year, she kicked him when he wouldn't buy her an expensive bracelet, Brown testified.

Brown, who is 54 years old, now lives at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Mrs. Brown, 32, lives at 180 East Delaware place.

REFUSE TO PAY THOUSANDS BET ON PENN VOTING

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—In an order on which the disposition of many thousands of dollars in election wagers hinges, the Luzerne county court—Democratic by three judges to two—today reversed the official election returns and declared that Governor Elect Arthur H. James, Republican, was winner in this, his home county.

The court's award made Judge James winner by 388 votes. It gave him a total of 97,373 to 96,985 for Charles A. Jones, Democratic nominee.

At least $85,000 of election wagers are involved. They were placed on the question whether Judge James would carry his home county.

The court's order gave no reason for its action, but it promised to "write an opinion citing our reasons" if an appeal was taken to a higher court. This action seemed certain tonight.

Good Fellow

(Story in adjoining column.)

Lossie Chamblin, 4 years old, a junior Good Fellow who lives at 6800 Sheridan road, can hardly wait until Christmas morning. She knows she is going to have a good Christmas because she will have taken a basket of food, toys, and candy to an unfortunate family.

ALIMONY ROW'S 31 MEN HAVE AN IDEA FOR SANTA

They'll Ask 2 Judges for Freedom.

Thirty-one men will try to talk their way out of Alimony Row today. Sixteen will appear before Judge Robert C. O'Connell and the rest in Judge Philip Finnegan's court. If they are persuasive enough all will be given their liberty as a Christmas present.

The thirty-one have three things in common. All owe money to wives from whom they are separated. All are eager to be free. All are bitter against the law which permits them to be jailed for not paying money which they say they haven't got.

Take Harvey Parrish. He's 32 years old, and in 1933, he says, was the world's champion alligator wrestler. He was in Chicago, displaying his artistry at A Century of Progress exposition, and met his wife after that ended. He's been in jail since Oct. 3 and owes $320 for support of his wife and two children. His wife, he says, is working and can support herself, and he has no objection to aiding the two children. He was divorced eight months ago.

He Has a Job Waiting.

Parrish has a job as an automobile bumper polisher waiting when [and if] he is freed today. His real reason for wanting to get out, however, is to line up a contract to wrestle alligators at the New York World's fair.

Or consider Joseph Liska, 28, a machinist. He's been in the county jail for sixty-eight days and owes about $500.

"The answer to married life is don't get married," Liska says. He is divorced and says the former Mrs. Liska is now Mrs. something else. However, he says he doesn't mind paying $5 weekly for support of his son when he has the money.

Refused Divorce by Wife.

David L. Johnson, 45, a former real estate broker, has a clerical job promised him. He owes $200 to his wife for her and their three children. He says she won't give him a divorce and he was rather pleased at the thought that it cost her $2.85 a day [in alimony that didn't accrue] while he's in jail. He has been in for brief periods twice before since his wife was given separate maintenance in December, 1937.

Henry Vincent is a boat-builder. He's 48. He has been married twice, but pays alimony only to his second wife from whom he was divorced a year ago last June. He owes $103.50.

"I'll tell the judge I'll pay as soon as I can," he said. "I think I have a job waiting. My wife has two grown sons and I was supporting them, too. When we separated she took my car and the furniture, everything I had but my suitcase. And wherever I go she always makes trouble where I work."

Vincent sighed, then said, "I offered to pay part, but she said: 'No. Put him in.'"

RAGGED URCHINS BRING CHRISTMAS TO LONELY GIRLS

Youngsters Steal Show at Yule Party.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

Three years ago the working girls who live modestly at the Girls' Friendly society, 54 East Scott street, decided their Christmas party lacked something. Each year the girls had gathered around a fir tree blazoned with color.

They had unwrapped gay packages and laughed loudly at their contents. They had squealed at Santa Claus and sucked on toy candy canes. And always, after their parties were over, they were lonelier for their homefolks than ever.

Arrive by Cab—Just One.

Last night, however, the girls had that something that earlier parties lacked. Eighteen ragged little boys and girls from the stockyards furnished the thrill. The children came from the House of Happiness settlement. All eighteen of them and their two counsellors arrived in one taxicab.

And the children entertained the working girls in return for the party. The stars among the children were:

Loretta, in return for a dainty pink hairbow and a dish of ice cream, stood on her head. She did it expertly and every few minutes. As an entracte she smoothed the hair bow and sucked her finger. She is 4 years old.

Wallie, an undernourished little boy with a thin face, tapped his foot and sang "Jingle Bells." For an encore he showed them his black eye.

Johnnie, a heart patient, whirled round and round in the middle of the room until he sank happily to the floor.

Others Do Their Stint.

There was Charlie, who played that high heeled shoes were tunnels and scooted his tiny train beneath them. Tommie spent the evening balancing a piece of candy on his nose.

Most of them sat quietly, wonderingly. Each of them clutched large paper shopping bags which contained their treasures—candy, an orange, an apple, a dress or overalls, underwear perhaps, and some small toy.

This was not just a party to these children, Miss Ruth Blacktop of the House of Happiness staf explained. It was the only party they would have this year. It was Christmas itself.

BLOOD DONORS FLOCK TO HELP STRICKEN BOY

Physicians at the Municipal Contagious Disease hospital on Thursday appealed for blood donors to save the life of a boy 14 years old seriously ill of a rare disease. Donors responded in such numbers yesterday that they almost disrupted hospital routine. Many attendants were required to drop other work to type the blood of the volunteers.

Dr. L. M. Lorance said that twelve of the volunteers were selected to aid the patient, Raymond Potter, 11347 Church street, a pupil in the Morgan Park High school. Only those who have recovered from the same ailment are suitable to give blood. The boy was stricken a week ago with a form of meningitis, staphylococcus aureus, which has attacked the blood stream, the joints, and the brain.

Dr. Lorance said no more donors would be needed for a while. Raymond was given a transfusion yesterday, his fifth since Monday. Dr. Lorance said his condition was favorable.

Police Report Solving 7 of 12 Bombings in Year

Seven of the twelve bombings in Chicago during the first eleven months of the year have been solved, Lieut. Andrew Aitken, head of the detective bureau bomb squad, reported yesterday. In the same period in 1937, only one of seventeen bombings was solved.

INJURIES FROM BURNS FATAL.

Mrs. Esther Penn, 33 years old, died yesterday in the County hospital of burns suffered Thursday in her home at 1664 North California avenue.

RELIEF CHEATER IS SENTENCED TO 30 DAYS IN JAIL

Walter Kuzniewicz, who tried to collect two relief checks in the same day, was sent to jail yesterday for 30 days by Judge Francis J. Borrelli in Municipal court.

Kuzniewicz, who lives at 317 South Throop street, received his regular monthly relief check of $15.16. Then, the court was told, he reported that it had been stolen. Relief officials found that he had cashed the check.

MOVIE THEATERS TO HOLD BASKET PARTIES TUESDAY

The fourth annual movie Christmas basket parties will be held Tuesday morning with special programs in nearly all neighborhood movie theaters in the city, it was announced yesterday. Admission will be by presenting nonperishable food at the ticket offices. Last year enough food was collected to fill 27,000 baskets for needy families.

Co-chairmen of the parties are Morris G. Leonard, president of the Chicago Motion Picture Exhibitors' association, and Jack Kirsch, president of the Allied Exhibitors' Association of Chicago.

The baskets are to be distributed in coöperation with women's clubs. Free movie film will be supplied by producing companies and all theater employés are donating their time for the benefit.

HEIRESS, 7, MAY VISIT MOTHER, JUDGE DECIDES

Judge Rudolph Desort ruled yesterday that Alberta Louise Gray, 7 years old, heiress to a brewery fortune, may visit her mother, Mrs. Alberta French, in Oil City, Pa., over the Christmas holidays. The girl has been living with her father, William B. Gray of 2748 Lake View avenue, while the parents battle for her permanent custody.

Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., counsel for Gray, objected to the child being sent to Pennsylvania.

Alberta is heiress to part of the million dollar estate left by her maternal grandfather, Albert Lieber, Indianapolis brewer. The Grays were divorced in 1936. The mother is now married to James French, an oil man.

STOLEN SECRET ARMY APPLIANCE FOUND NEAR FORT

A secret instrument used by the United States army, which was stolen Aug. 18, was found yesterday one-half mile north of the North Western railroad station at Fort Sheridan.

The instrument is described by army officers only as a communications test set. It resembles a small radio. There are only two in existence. The one found yesterday was consigned to the fort. It reached the railroad depot, but disappeared soon afterward.

Investigators believed the instrument was stolen by a spy. It was found yesterday in weeds along the railroad right of way. It was undamaged.

COLLISION HALTS CHRISTMAS TRIP; FATHER KILLED

3 Critically Hurt as Truck and Auto Meet.

A trafic collision in Gary last night halted the journey of a mother and father who were bringing their son and a schoolmate home for Christmas. The father was killed and the others were critically injured. The driver of the other vehicle, a truck, escaped with minor injuries.

The man who lost his life was Mel Gilliand, 34 years old, an insurance dealer in Grand Rapids, Mich. With him were his wife, Jeanette, 34, their son, Paul, 12, and John Johnson, 10, of Detroit, Mich. The boys are students at a Missouri military academy. The driver of the truck was Tom Bramlett, 458 Elsworth street, Gary.

Truck Driver Is Held.

The auto and truck collided on U. S. highway 12, at the eastern approach to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad viaduct at the eastern limits of Gary. Police said Bramlett apparently tried to turn abruptly into a side road. He was ordered held under a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Frank Kuffel, 53, of 842 North California avenue, a junk peddler, was fatally injured yesterday in a freak accident in Western avenue, just north of Division street. He was pulling his cart out of an alley just as an automobile driven by Roland Pukall, 19, of Wittenberg, Wis., approached north on Western avenue. Kuffel was unable to stop the momentum of his cart, and it pushed him into the side of Pukall's car. Kuffel died later in St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Boy Killed by Truck.

Bruce Burns, 5 years old, 1439 Jackson boulevard, was killed by a truck last night at Rockwell and Evergreen streets. Bruce was playing with two other boys. Witnesses said he ran into the side of the truck as it turned the corner. The driver, Fred Lipkowitz, 30, 1742 Humboldt boulevard, was held for the inquest.

Nelson Prince, 60 years old, 2233 North Spaulding avenue, was fatally injured last evening when he was struck by an automobile at Humboldt boulevard and Dickens street. The driver was Paul Komm, 40, of 6533 West 26th place, Berwyn.

Benjamin Shuton, 62, was killed by an automobile last night at South Parkway and 47th street. He lived at 6128 Vernon avenue. Percy Dixon, colored, 5134 Prairie avenue, driver of the car, was held by Wabash avenue police.

Indiana Deputy Dies.

Chief Deputy Sherif Charles Carlson of Lake county, Indiana, died yesterday in the Methodist Episcopal hospital in Gary from injuries suffered Thursday night when his car struck the rear of a hayrack on state route No. 55, two miles south of Crown Point. Carlson had been chief deputy sherif for four years. Prior to that he was chief of police of Hammond, Ind., for five years.

Mrs. Bessie Wellik, 68, died last night in St. Paul's hospital of injuries suffered a week ago when she was struck by an automobile near her home at 2933 Wallace street.

Ben Rasins, 50 years old, 2634 South Montgomery street, died in the People's hospital of injuries incurred early yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by James F. Bransfield, a contractor with offices at 3681 Archer avenue. The accident occurred at Archer avenue and Brighton place. Police charged Bransfield with reckless driving.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 851 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 652 were killed in Chicago, where 19,652 were injured in the same period.

TRAIN CRASHES AUTO; 5 KILLED, 2 ARE INJURED

Dresser Junction, Wis., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Five persons were killed and two others, one of them a seven months old baby, were seriously injured when their automobile was struck by a Soo line passenger train late today on a grade crossing a mile and a half north of here.

The dead:

Mrs. Devillah Hazel, 28 years old, Dresser Junction.

Jimmy Hazel, 4, her son.

Charles Bergeron, 26, Dresser Junction.

Mrs. Charles Bergeron, 19, Dresser Junction.

Ruth Hill, 17, Taylors Falls, Minn.

Injured in the crash were Devillah Hazel, 30, Dresser Junction, driver of the automobile, and the seven months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Bergeron. Hazel suffered a brain concussion. The baby's right leg and left arm were broken.

CITY'S CHAMPION RUNAWAY TIES HIS OWN RECORD

James Barker, 9 years old, is the city's champion runaway. He was back home again yesterday at 1429 North Clark street.

It was his fourth return from an adventure trip this year, tying his 1937 record. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Barker, brought James home from Gary, where he was found by Gary police. Since he was 5 years old James has been taking to the open road every few months.

His parents don't know why. Neither do child psychologists. And James won't talk about it. But from others the Barkers have learned that James possesses a vivid imagination. He picks ou some friendly soul after reaching an outlying town, sobs a story of hardship, and is taken in as a wandering orphan. How he travels is still a mystery.

Rail Official's Son Given Delay on Auto Charge

A reckless driving charge against Harlow Voorhees, 23 years old, son of H. B. Voorhees, vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio and Chicago & Alton railroads, was continued to Jan. 13 by Judge Stephen Adamowski in the Safety court yesterday. Voorhees, who lives at 1442 Sedgwick street, struck the rear of a truck at Clark street and North avenue early in the day, and was arrested by the Hudson avenue police. His wife, Mary Lou, 22, was injured slightly in the accident.

Trace License and Charge Driver with Hit-Run Death

John J. Walsh of 800 South Keeler avenue was arrested as a hit and run driver yesterday when he appeared at the inquest into the death of Mary Flaherty, 5 years old, of 3844 Flournoy street. The girl was killed Nov. 1 by the car of a hit and run driver in front of her home. Walsh denied the charge. Police said he was traced through a license number. He was charged with manslaughter.

INDIANA'S STATE POLICEMEN HOLD JOBS ON MERITS

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—The Indiana state policeman didn't need to be a politician to get his job. To keep his job, he can not be a politician. The Hoosier patrolman is under a civil service such as is advocated for Illinois.

The Illinois police department is under the spoils system. Gov. Henry Horner has been a restraining influence among his fellow political bosses, retaining many efficient cops who are not efficient for the Democrats at the polls. But there is a minority on the force whose leading qualification is that they can deliver their precincts, or that they have obligated a ward or county committeeman.

"This has a direct bearing on high way safety," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club. "Misconduct of automobile drivers is responsible for a large portion of the accidents. The conduct of drivers is determined to a large measure by the efficiency of the police."

Don Stiver, Indiana director of public safety, this afternoon told how his 300 men are selected, trained, and supervised. He also told of improvements that are being made with counsel from the Northwestern university trafic bureau of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Sept. 1, the appointment of fifty more patrolmen was authorized. Three thousand aspirants filed applications. From their written responses to questionnaires, it was indicated that 1,200 were qualified. Civil service examiners picked 250 for the tests. The 250 were reduced to 160 by a grading of intelligence through the army alpha method.

A police board, consisting of two Republicans and three Democrats, picked 90 of the 160 to take final examinations. The 45 rating highest became patrolmen and received a 60 day training course. High school education was prerequisite. Half of the 45 had at least one year of college. Age limitations were from 21 to 35.

Anthony Eden Homebound After Week's Visit in U. S.

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Anthony Eden, former British foreign minister, wound up a one week visit in the United States today with calls upon Alfred E. Smith and Gov. Herbert H. Lehman before sailing for home on the Queen Mary this afternoon.

ROME'S SHORT SWORD

By CALEB

FORTUNATE indeed is the man who finds interest and inspiration in reading history. Through an absorbing past, it lends added point to the present, precedent for the future. It rounds out the perspective of events, helping to separate today's trivial from the truly important, the significant from the ephemeral.

Not long ago I reread the account of one of Rome's great military triumphs, commenting upon which the historian said, "Once more Rome's short sword that conquered the world had prevailed." The sword to which he referred is familiar to every grade school reader of history. It was the foundation of a whole military technique, and triumphed over every weapon marshaled against it by countless foes.

That short, flat sword made the bearer an in-fighter. It meant that he had to move into the thick of things, making every thrust count, battling his way inch by inch and blow by blow without a moment's let-up. It meant slow, determined, dogged advance—in person—by hand-to-hand combat. The going was tough every step of the way. But that method produced the sought-for victory.

There are a good many jobs these days just like the one assigned to Roman legionaries. There must be generals and strategists, of course—commanders of legions and captains of centuries. But, too, there is much hard, detailed infighting to be done by the man upon whose shoulders rests the outcome of every battle.

Our own business is made up of literally millions of relatively small transactions and operations, each one essentially like the rest. It is replete with examples of steady, dependable performance at close quarters, an abundance of skillful operation with the good short-swords of common sense and business technique.

In the last analysis, any project rests upon the shoulders of individuals. Develop machines as we will, perfect system and method without end—none of these can replace the element of responsibility that falls ultimately on the shoulders of every individual in our employ. Our executives perform functions of guidance and direction. But upon our thousands of salespeople and other employes inevitably rests responsibility for the steady progress which comes only through successful completion of thousands of individual tasks.

BOOST OF 76% IN NAVAL BUDGET O. K.'D IN FRANCE

Deputies' Vote Is Warning to Mussolini.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 16.—If Premier Mussolini has any doubts that the French meant business when they warned that any Italian attempt to seize their possessions in Africa would mean war, the government did its best tonight to erase them.

The chamber of deputies, which is rushing through the formality of approving a new budget, accepted without protest or debate the estimates raising naval expenditures for the coming year by 76 per cent. The estimates include a fund to provide an ironclad defense of Tunisia and Corsica.

These are the French holdings which Italy most covets, to judge by last week's demonstration of Italian deputies and demands of the Italian press.

Double Coastal Defense Fund.

Notable among provisions of the naval ministry budget is one of 208,000,000 francs [about $5,500,000] for "coastal defense." This is double last year's appropriation for the same purpose.

This coastal defense fund actually is designed to strengthen the position of the French fleet in Corsica—which officially is a part of continental France, and not a mere colony or possession—and Tunisia. Bizerta, military port of Tunisia, already is one of the largest and best equipped in the Mediterranean.

The naval budget was presented by Cesar Campinchi, navy minister, who is a Corsican. As passed by the chamber of deputies in its third session late tonight, it totals 8,174,000,000 francs [about $215,000,000].

Shows Big Increase.

Making allowances for the fact that the franc has declined about 30 per cent since the last budget, this still represents a formidable increase. The budget for naval aviation also was raised by about 19 per cent.

This can be explained only by the fact that the French are determined to let Il Duce know they are not inclined to be bluffed, and are going to make ready for a showdown on empire defense if there is to be one.

The figures are particularly striking in view of the fact that the present budget is one of stringent economy, in line with Finance Minister Paul Reynaud's principle of paring all expenditures to the bone to balance the government's accounts. This is a principle, however, which the French modify without hesitation when a question of national defense is involved.

To Spur Shipbuilding.

In line with this attitude, the government is expected to make strenuous efforts during the coming year to catch up on its shipbuilding program. This has lagged so far behind schedule as to create genuine alarm—especially in view of reports of rapid progress by the Nazi régime in building up the German war fleet.

Though French military preparations on land never slackened, it is a different story in the air and on the sea. For example, the 26,000 ton battle cruiser Strasbourg, sister ship of the Dunkerque, is supposed to be in service now. Actually it is still far from completion. The 35,000 ton battleships Jean Bart and Richelieu are due to enter the service in 1940.

At the present rate of progress there is little likelihood they will be ready by that date. The diversion of the French national effort to the task of social reform, particularly to indiscriminate application of the forty hour work week law, is held largely to blame.

Tunisian Arabs Stage Big Anti-Italian Demonstration

TUNIS, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Arab chieftains and sheiks headed demonstrations at the eastern city of Grombalia today on behalf of French firmness against Italian clamor for French African territory. Paraders marched through the principal street shouting "Long live France, long live Tunisia, Tripoli for us." A number paraded before the Italian consulate and Italian club.

ENVOY KENNEDY MAKES REPORT AT WHITE HOUSE

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Joseph Patrick Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, flew into the capital today. In a conference of almost an hour with President Roosevelt, the administration's red headed trouble shooter is said to have endeavored to sell his handling of his post during the trying Czech crisis to his chief.

J. P. Kennedy.

He strove to induce the President to turn off the heat which has been put under him by Thomas Corcoran, Benjamin Cohen, and other left wing White House intimates.

For the last few weeks the White House advisers have turned their purge program from legislators to Kennedy. They are seeking his scalp because he believes in dealing with dictatorial states and the British appeasement program.

Enemies in Administration.

Kennedy is regarded by them as a traitor to the cause the President is making against dictators and for oppressed minorities. Into the presidential ear they have poured criticisms of Kennedy's every move.

In this they have been aided by a deluge of complaints that the Boston Irish boy has become a Britisher. The President has been told that a few visits to Buckingham palace have taken Kennedy in.

Pulling for La Guardia.

The brain trusters are holding up Fiorello H. La Guardia, who has stated he would exhibit Adolf Hitler in a waxworks museum at the city's fair, as an ideal type for the country's No. 1 diplomatic post—the court of St. James's.

Kennedy would not discuss the nature of his conference with the President after he left the executive offices except to say that the conference embraced international affairs.

The ambassador returned to New York by plane following his White House conference. Later he will fly to his winter home at Palm Beach, Fla., for a vacation.

NEW AMERICAN NOTE ON JEWS IS HANDED TO NAZIS

Hitler to Confer with His Envoy on U. S.

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The latest United States note demanding exemption of American Jews from anti-Semitic measures was handed to the German government, it was disclosed today, just as Reichsfuehrer Hitler returned to Berlin from a long absence. The Fuehrer has arranged to receive Hans H. Dieckhoff, Nazi ambassador to Washington, for his report on the situation in the United States.

Hitler reached Berlin last night and was expected to see Dieckhoff soon. Dieckhoff was recalled for a report after President Roosevelt summoned home Hugh R. Wilson, United States ambassador to Berlin, for the same purpose, following the Nazi anti-Jewish drive last month.

The new American note, it was indicated, was prompted by the vagueness of German replies to previous communications.

Schacht Continues Talks.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German Reichsbank president, who is in London in connection with Germany's refugee and trade problems, conferred today with Oliver Stanley, president of the board of trade, and other officials at the treasury.

Schacht, it was learned, put Chancellor Hitler's terms for settlement of the Jewish emigration question before the inter-governmental refugee committee at a secret meeting last night. The German plan is understood to link emigration of Jews with increased German exports.

The German expert's contacts with British officials and, particularly, with Stanley, were believed to have these aims:

1. To impress upon Britain the fact that the Nazis are unable to provide emigrating Jews with funds because of a shortage of foreign exchange and that increased German exports would be the only solution.

2. To sound out Stanley on the trade war Britain has threatened against Germany in retaliation for German methods in southeast Europe.

Italy Takes Over Land.

ROME, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Italian cabinet today ordered Jews to exchange all their land and buildings exceeding a fixed value for bonds bearing four per cent interest.

The order carried out provisions of decrees adopted Nov. 10 forbidding Jews to own land with a taxable income exceeding 5,000 lire [about $260] a year and buildings whose taxable income exceeds 20,000 lire [about $1,040.]

A government corporation will be created to take over Jewish owned property and operate it pending resale as conditions permit. The corporation will issue bonds, which Jews will be compelled to accept in payment for their property on the basis of its assessed valuation.

The corporation also will take over the management of Jewish owned firms employing more than 100 persons, issuing bonds in payment. Last month's decrees forbade Jews to own businesses exceeding this size.

AMERICAN EDUCATOR SAYS U. S. SHOULD BE RULED BY BRITISH KING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 16.—George McLean Harper, American author and professor emeritus of English literature at Princeton university, believes George Washington was a misguided rebel and that the United States ought always to have remained a British colony.

He says so in the latest issue of the British magazine, Quarterly Review, in which he writes: "I regard the severance of the American colonies from the mother country as one of the most lamentable mistakes in human history."

Prof. Harper's article appears in an edition of Quarterly Review which is marked "not for sale in the United States."

The professor deplores the formation of any American culture.

FOURTH OF JEWS IN AUSTRIA FLEE REGIME OF NAZIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Dec. 16.—Nearly one-quarter of all the Jews in Austria have emigrated since the Nazis assumed power last March, Nazi officials said today. Of approximately 300,000 Jews who then lived in Austria, more than 70,000 have departed to date. Roughly, 60,000 left the country by Nov. 10, and the emigration machinery was speeded up since the last anti-Jewish drive began, enabling another 10,000 to leave. Nazis pointed out that at this rate Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's threat to rid Austria of Jews in four years will be fulfilled.

GERMANS BEGIN REGISTRATION OF UKRAINIANS

Press, Radio Boom Hitler's Newest Project.

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—(AP)—With the Balkans already in Germany's economic orbit, signs point to increasing Nazi interest in the Ukraine. This interest manifested itself today in a number of ways.

FIRST—Press announcements asked all "stateless" Ukrainians—Russians who declined to become soviet Russian citizens—to send their names and personal data to "the Ukrainian confidential office which takes care of the interests of stateless Ukrainians living within the German reich."

SECOND—Editorials discussed the situation of the Ukrainians and there were radio broadcasts from Germany in the Ukrainian language. Reliable Polish sources reported that German radio sets had been offered to Ukrainians in Poland under a discreet system of distribution.

THIRD—Nazi economic writers indicated Germany would hold to a steady course in her economic push to the east even in the face of a possible British subsidized trade war.

Decision Lies with Hitler.

Evidence of active German interest in the Ukrainians was shown by attention paid to their fate by representative German dailies and weeklies. The weekly Reichwart, for instance, bluntly asserted: "Only within the framework of the entire Ukraine can the problem of self-determination and independence of Carpatho-Ukraine be solved."

This as well as other editorial utterances indicated that Nazi thoughts run toward erection some day of a Ukrainian national state, comprising Ukrainians now under five flags—soviet Russian, Polish, Czecho-Slovak and, to a lesser degree, Rumanian and Hungarian.

[There are 32,000,000 Ukrainians in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist republic, a unit of the soviet union. The 1931 Polish census listed 3,222,000 Ukrainian speaking persons in Poland.]

Sounds Warning to England.

Referring to the Balkans, which are blanketed by Nazi economic influence, Der Wirtschafts-Ring, an economic weekly, took notice of attacks recently by R. S. Hudson, secretary of the British overseas trade department. He criticized German trade methods in the Balkans, and impliedly threatened to "fight fire with fire." The paper said that "not only shall we be on guard politically, as the Fuehrer has declared, but also economically.

"England has resorted to a trade and currency policy which has led to a burden on all peoples. Even if it took pains and sacrifices, nevertheless we have realized how to safeguard our population."

21 American Nations Approve U. S. War on Trade Barriers

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 16.—The United States delegation to the eighth Pan-American conference walked away with the show today. The conference, by a unanimous vote, adopted a resolution submitted by the Washington delegation recommending a reduction in international trade barriers.

Francisco Castillo Najera [Mexican delegate].

Before submitting the resolution to a vote Secretary of State Cordell Hull had obtained the approval of all the twenty other delegations to insure that no dissenting voices would be raised in the conference. Seven countries filed reservation on what were described as minor parts.

Framed in General Terms.

The resolution, which was framed in general terms and does not bind the signatory nations to any specific measures, set forth the principle that restrictions on trade have an adverse effect on world economy. It listed specifically "excessive barriers whether in the form of unreasonably high tariffs, quotas, licenses, exchange controls, and other types of quantitative restriction," and "methods of administering commercial, exchange, and monetary policies which impair the maintenance of commercial opportunity between all foreign suppliers."

It remains to be seen what steps the respective governments which approved the resolution may take to remedy these restrictions.

Bolivia tonight raised the question of the Gran Chaco, over which it fought unsuccessfully with Paraguay. Eduardo Diez de Medina, Bolivian foreign minister, demanded that his land locked country be given an outlet to the sea, which the Chaco territory would provide.

Border Dispute Raised.

Another controversial subject raised before the conference was the Ecuadorean-Peruvian border dispute. The delegate of Ecuador submitted a resolution asking that two permanent commissions of investigation and conciliation be set up.

Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexican ambassador to the United States and head of the Mexican delegation, called upon the nations represented at the conference to show a united front against any menace to democracy. Declaring that peace is an essential condition for the expansion of democracy, he warned that preparations must be made against difficult times.

The classification of the world in the geographical terms "old" and "new," the Mexican delegate said, should be replaced by "old" and "new" Europe.

Cites Several Nations.

Declaring that Europe also has progressive countries, he paid compliment to the Scandinavian nations, the Netherlands, Switzerland and Belgium. These countries, he declared, are "an open denial of the argument that war is an inevitable phenomenon inherent in human development."

Tomorrow the conference is scheduled to receive the United States' resolution for continental solidarity against aggression from abroad. The original United States plan for a pan-American military pact has been dropped as a result of opposition by some of the Latin nations.

CALL POISON DEATH SUICIDE.

A coroner's jury found yesterday that Dr. George Vogelsang, 74 years old, a retired chiropodist, killed himself by poison Thursday in his room at 620 North State street because of financial worries.

NAZI "MARSHAL" SURRENDERS FOR HEARING ON RIOT

Roy Zachary, who is styled a "field marshal" of the Silver Shirt legion, Nazi anti-Semitic organization, surrendered yesterday before Municipal Judge Joseph A. Graber on a warant issued for his arrest when he failed to appear in court Nov. 30 in connection with a riot at a meeting he addressed.

Zachary was accompanied by an apparent bodyguard of five men, four of them wearing stiffly waxed mustaches. Judge Graber set aside his bond forfeiture, entered on Nov. 30, and set charges of disorderly conduct and inciting a riot for hearing Tuesday.

The judge also dismissed seven youths arrested the evening of Nov. 28, when the Silver Shirt meeting was broken up, and a reporter and a photographer for a communist newspaper who were present during the riot.

THE COMMON ENEMY.

The address before the Economic club of Chicago by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was beyond all question one of the most important speeches of his career. He summarized the program of his organization in its relations with industry and with government. The position was stated so clearly and forcefully that no one who heard him could have had any doubt about the aims of the organization for which he speaks.

The occasion was a dramatic one. The other speaker of the evening was George H. Davis, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and as such the spokesman for the employers of the nation. Though the two men view the economic and political problems of the nation from different points they have come to almost identical conclusions. In the presence of the dangers which confront the nation their differences have become insignificant. Both of them realize that they have a common enemy in a government whose policies, if unchecked, will destroy them and with them the prosperity and freedom of the people of the United States.

Mr. Green and his organization have had the hardest kind of a fight for the last five years. They have seen the administration in Washington give every aid and comfort to the C. I. O., a rival organization within the labor movement, and this support has continued in the face of repeated evidences that the C. I. O. is committed to violence and many of its leaders to revolution. Mr. Green referred to disregard of contractual obligations, lawless sitdown strikes, the promotion of mutiny on the high seas, destruction of property, and the capture of cities as among the C. I. O.'s offenses which had been not only condoned but even approved in Washington, but which the voters on Nov. 8 last roundly condemned.

The record as he presented it is an amazing one and the most amazing part of it is the unwavering support which avowed communists within the C. I. O. have received from the administration.

Mr. Green appealed for a return in this country to a régime of law. Experience with the so-called National Labor Relations board has convinced him that no confidence can be placed in such administrative agencies. They place their own interpretations on statutes with the result that no one knows his rights under the law. The consequence, as Mr. Green well said, has been "a restraining influence on those who engage in business ventures. Many who are restrained by this state of mind cannot definitly answer why they are reluctant to risk new ventures or to expand their business. They only know that they are governed by a feeling of uncertainty."

The administration boasts that it has never wavered in its determination to restore prosperity. In fact, as Mr. Green demonstrated, the government has discouraged recovery and even prevented it. We have had numerous severe depressions in this country, but we have never had one which lasted as long as this one and we have never had one in which recovery, when it came, did not bring the nation to higher levels of well-being than it had ever known before.

The labor movement which Mr. Green leads finds no satisfaction in unemployment. The A. F. of L. and its members do not prosper in hard times. Its revolutionary rival does. The communists in the C. I. O. and their comrades in high places in Washington have a stake in prolonging the depression. Mr. Green and Mr. Davis have a common enemy and it is a good augury for the country that they know it.

A PUBLIC NUISANCE.

Alderman Kadow's ordinance providing for a fine for owners of dogs who permit their pets to commit nuisances in the public places will have the support of a good many citizens.

Americans are more squeamish than Europeans in such matters, but the carelessness of dog owners is rather general and very offensive. Most of us like dogs but there is no reason why they should not be restrained in their natural processes as humans are. We cannot blame the dog but we can those who are responsible for his habits. City life imposes the duty of consideration for our neighbors and fellow citizens, and though Alderman Kadow's ordinance fails of strict enforcement, its mere existence may, as he hopes, call public attention to the nuisance and induce some amendment of obnoxious conditions.

GIN WEDDINGS.

There can be no complete check upon gin weddings in this region until Indiana takes action against them. Our Cook county judiciary is doing what it can to discourage them by refusing to grant annulments to individuals who have crossed the state line to escape the requirements of notice and delay imposed by Illinois law, but this is tardy and unsatisfactory correction. The men and women who, either under the influence of liquor or from lack of conscience and common sense, avoid the wise provision of their own state laws are not likely to be deterred by the foreknowledge that they cannot get rid of their bad bargains at will. Illinois has done what it could by forbidding impromptu weddings. We can only appeal to our neighbors to enact similar restraints. We do not presume to say what the laws of Indiana shall be, but the considerations of public welfare which brought about marriage legislation in Illinois are equally strong in Indiana, and neighborly coöperation for the correction of deplorable conditions is not an unreasonable appeal. We hope the Indiana legislature will take action at its next session.

SO, A SUBWAY.

They are to sink a spade in State street today and turn the astonished soil which, if it had voice, would exclaim: "Gosh! At last!"

Some thirty-five years ago a few traction magnates—an extinct species—came out of the office of Lawrence McGann, commissioner of public works in the city hall, late one afternoon. They were smiling, Mr. McGann was smiling, and Mayor Carter Harrison was smiling. The traction magnates departed, then into the street but they later disappeared into the past. The mayor and the commissioner called in the city hall reporters. They said that Chicago was to have a subway. It had all been agreed upon. Everything had been arranged. The subway was in the bag.

That was front page news on all the morning papers the next day and Chicago was prepared to get its subway by Christmas. The magnates have gone. Most of the city hall people of that day have gone. So, also, have most of the newspapers. The spade which turns the soil has been in the tool house for nearly two generations. All of this time Chicago, by fits and starts, has not been getting a subway. To have or not to have was for years a major political question.

And along came I. M. O. Immediate Municipal Ownership ought to have prepared Chicagoans for many features of the New Deal. Years ago we were on now familiar ground. TVA has no fanaticism which I. M. O. could not equal. As the spirit of the partisans rose the humanities involved expanded. Much of the present day vituperation is but an echo of the local past. Without I. M. O. equality and fraternity would die, civilization would be lost, democracy would perish, the bloom would be rubbed off culture, and the cold blooded few would triumph on the ruins of the country.

In those days Jimmie Quinn of the 21st ward created the Knights of the Fork, who could spear the free lunch over the shoulders of the customers nearer the counter. They were the vanguard of the I. M. O., and Mr. Quinn proposed to heat the parks for them. It was a bitter fight, now so little known to the proceedings in Judge Wilkerson's court. There is plenty trouble still in what we used to call traction, but I. M. O. is no part of it. Time seems to have passed over this paramount issue like an eraser, and behold, it is not. Which causes pause for thought. Sound and fury do die away and we hurry on to a new rumpus—prohibition, say, or pacifism, or the league of nations, or the New Deal.

No one has been fussing about a subway for ten years—and now we take the spade out of the tool box and lift the earth.

ART EXPERTS BLUSHING.

If authoritarianism is prospering in politics in the old world at this moment, the authority of the expert in art has had of late some shrewd blows. The latest blow has been delivered by a young and obscure sculptor, named Francesco Cremonse, who comes forward to claim the so-called Venus of the Turnip Patch as his own work.

This Venus was unearthed in a peasant's field in south central France and was declared by art experts from Paris and other parts of France as a perfect example of the Neo-Attican period, a contemporary of the Venus of Milo and a product of the reign of Augustus or Hadrian. Cremonse says it is his own and he has supported his claim, rather plausibly it would seem, by producing a nose, arm, and legs, parts lacking in the statue when dug up. Now a Polish night club singer announces that she was the model for the work and it is not asserted by the experts that she dates back to the Augustan age.

The controversy is not yet closed, but it is apparent that the art authorities of France have some explaining to do. The French government has officially classified the Venus as one of France's art treasures. It has not yet charged the Italian government with conspiring to discredit French authority in art, but these are suspicious times. Certainly the confraternity of art critics must be disquieted by what seems to be a revelation of fallibility.

Of course, the art of forgery is no new thing. Only last year there passed away at Rome Alceo Dossena, the remarkable genius whose counterfeits long deceived art experts in Europe and America and found places in several of the greatest museums. No doubt his gifts were as genuine as those of many of the artists of the past whose work he imitated. The Venus of the Turnip Patch may be as worthy of praise as many authentic pieces of Neo-Attic sculpture, but it, of course, lacks value as a relic of ancient art.

The experts might save their faces by hailing Signor Cremonse as a new genius, but he had better not count on that. If, as seems likely, he proves his claim the market in antiquities may drop a bit, though not for long. Private collectors, especially those with the deepest purses, are easier to deceive than to discourage. There is no hocus pocus more impressive than that of art. Taste is often mere snobbery with which real merit has little or nothing to do.

WORLD SHIFT OF OPINION.

[New York Times.]

In announcing the Maria Moors Cabot prizes, a new annual award for the recognition of outstanding journalistic achievement in advancing sympathetic understanding between the peoples of North and South America, Dean Ackerman of the Columbia School of Journalism points out a definite shift of free opinion from the old world to the new. In many countries of Europe and Ahia there is now a systematic governmental suppression and distortion of news, but the channels of communication to other countries have nevertheless been kept open. This Dean Ackerman rightly holds to be a great journalistic achievement. "The result," he says, "is that today all news routes lead to the western hemisphere, where the press is the recorder and interpreter of world opinion." He calls on the cartographers for a new map showing how the news trafic of the globe centers here and what this means in widening the American horizon.

In making use of these still open channels for reporting great events and fateful crises the journalists of the west are for the most part objective. So today the largest reservoir of public opinion, fortified by copious fact, lies in the two Americas. If the "balance of power" rests, in truth, with world opinion, it is lodged with us. It is dominated or controled by no political minority or ideology. It is in no danger of capture by any aggressive propaganda. The American republics, insatiable in their consumption of news, have a fuller knowledge of what is going on in the world than any other nation.

CHRISTMAS DICTIONARY.

Yule: Christmas and the festivities connected therewith; hence Yuletide, the complete Christmas season, before and after shopping and up to New Year's, and also Yule-log, ceremonial fuel for the Christmas harth. This word runs back through Old English, geol, geohol, to the Old Norse, jol, heathen feasting period of twelve days which became the Christmas season. Yule is still in popular use in Scots and North English dialect; in correct English it has been a literary archaism since 1850, chiefly used by sentimental authors and Christmas card manufacturers.

* * *

Noël: A word for Christmas that passed into English in various spellings from the Norman-French. It has dropped out of the spoken language except when fond parents want to give male babies born on Christmas day a fancy name. Its current usage may be regarded as a Frenchified affectation. The Oxford dictionary defines it as "a word shouted or sung as an expression of joy, originally to commemorate the birth of Christ." One must be an adept in the philology of the Romance languages to understand why it refers to Christmas and how it got that way. In various racial forms, such as nadal, nadan, nadau, natal, natale, it is traced back to the Latin for natal day. Boys named Noël sometimes turn out to be playwrights; for example, Noël Coward. If the French people have a Santa Claus [a matter open to doubt] they call him Père Noël or Le Petit Noël.

If you have a girl child born on Christmas day, please do not name her Noëlla, although it has been done. Natalia or Natalie, which have the same meaning, will be less of a burden to the helpless infant.

Everybody's Doing It Now.

How far do you think this smuggling investigation will go? I've still got to sneak five more Christmas presents into the house. J. F. G.

CHRISTMAS CAROL

(for a modern family).

Give three cheers for joyous Yule—
Junior has come home from school.
Now's the time for fender denting
And hasty alibi inventing,
Dates with Kay and Toots and Polly.
('Tis the season to be jolly!)

It's time for parties and romance,
Next month's allowance in advance,
Scanty breakfasts, due to fate or
Raids on the refrigerator.
Begone, parental melancholy!
('Tis the season to be jolly!)

Farewell, parties gay and splendid!
Junior's gone, vacation's ended;
He's off to academic thickets,
Leaving sixteen traffic tickets.
(Until summer and its folly,
'Tis the season to be jolly!)

Tintinnabulation of the Bells.

The bells of Christmas in the Loop! . . . The high, slow bells of the cross-topped tower; the lusty jingling of the red-cloaked lassies' bells; the hearty carillon of Old Heidelberg; the minor bells in the gift laden stores, all pervading, inescapable; stately in the old, old hymns, bold in the robust carols, soft in the quiet melodies long since learned [and forgotten].

Soon they will be still, and only the brusque warning of the cars, the urgent threat of emergency bells will remind the streets of the Christmas bells. I wonder what would happen if some year the bells kept ringing into the new year? Would the furrows of tired faces gradually smooth themselves away, and the penetrating vibrance of the bells some day soften the hard bitten hearts that now so soon dismiss the Christmas?

Perhaps the harsh, unfeeling ways of the city have been second nature too long for us to find again the gentle, patient faith of the beasts that shared a Manger long ago, but let us pause a moment now, and listen to the bells that all too soon will be silent again. Quizzicuss.

Hush, my baby; look and listen,
Through this double-feature show;
Watch the Karloff eyeballs glisten,
When he rolls them to and fro.
Nestle, baby, warm and cozy,
While the woodwind's eldritch moans
Mark the time for B. Lugosi
Gnawing flesh from human bones.

Hark, the voodoo-drumbeat's rumble!
Hear the zombies whine and mewl
'Mid the graveyard's weird ensemble—
Banshee, vampire, wraith, and ghoul.
These were old releases, honey,
Ere your dad became a man;
Gosh—and were they coining money
Long before your day began!

You were born too late, my pretty,
For this merry graveyard-cult;
But the moguls bent in pity—
Here you have the chaste result.
In this new revival-issue
All my favorites grace the list!
Think—while I devoutly kiss you—
Think of what you might have missed!

YOUR CHILD'S VISION.

FOND parents who delight in showing off their cherubs—calling attention to this or that precocious trait—may not realize that the ability to see with both eyes alike [binocular vision] and to judge of depth and distance is not fully developed during the first two or three years. This means that no attempt should be made [in fact the reverse practice should be employed] to center the tot's gaze on objects, particularly if they are small. Brightness is attractive and often a weakness may be created if a shiny article is held too close to the face, thus demanding performance of a function which has not yet come into its own.

It is well known that most youngsters are farsighted. In consequence, some effort is required to make out things that are near. If this is done routinely, strain is bound to result and one eyeball or the other will be inclined to turn. If this tendency is noted, a careful examination should be made by a competent physician to decide whether glasses are necessary to correct the potential squint. We need not be disturbed, however, should we be told that a predilection in this direction exists, as it can be righted by proper lenses. To allow an optic to remain "out of true" is to increase the chances that sight will be lost in that particular organ because it is not used.

Another factor relates to bright illumination and we must recall that the eyes of the young do not withstand light as do those of their elders. The pigment deposit is not completed until later in life and strong sources of rays should be shaded.

Before the youngster starts to school it is well to determine that the focusing apparatus is in good order; furthermore, that coördination is well in hand. This should be ascertained before formal reading lessons begin as occasionally muscle defects may be present, most of which can be remedied easily. As has been reported frequently, 15 per cent of children in the primary grades have poor vision and most of this large group can see with ease if spectacles are fitted.

We have no right to accept low visual strength as something which just happens or which cannot be helped. There are usually basic reasons. While more than half of those in schools for the blind are placed there because of hereditary or congenital faults, such as cataract or hardening of the eyeball, nevertheless a substantial number might have been saved. We are well launched on a campaign against syphilis, and this ailment, with chronic alcoholism on the part of the parents, predisposes to eye troubles in their progeny. Another social disease—gonorrhea—accounts for nearly 10 per cent of these unfortunates despite the fact that physicians know exactly how to protect the orbs of the newborn against this malady. All that is needed is that the physician or midwife shall drop in to the infant's eyes at birth a solution [1 per cent] of sliver nitrate. If this precaution were taken always another cause of blindness would be wiped out.

As the child grows older the question of indoor lighting must be considered. With the coming of electricity great improvements have been made. But it is essential that reflections from highly polished surfaces shall be guarded against. Futhermore, direct rays should not strike the eyeball, and the beams should be distributed evenly over the surface of the page. Most of our reading and studying is done indoors. In fact sight is employed for all close work in homes, shops, factories, offices, and schools. Up to a certain point the greater the candle power the more mental and physical comfort will follow because of the reduction in muscle fatigue. But too much is overstimulating and if glare becomes obvious we are defeating the objective by introducing a most harmful factor.

Walter B. Lancaster proposes certain standards, and for reading 10 to 50 foot candles are suggested, depending upon size of type and the amount of study. An electrical instrument, called a photometer, can be employed to check the quantity in your home and your public service station will be glad to coöperate with you in fixing upon requirements.

MUFFLE IT!

J. W. writes: Every time I sneeze I make such a noise that one would think my whole body was doing the sneezing. Is there any danger of affecting the heart, ears, or other parts of the body by this violent exertion? I have tried unsuccessfully to lessen the detonation.

REPLY.

Loud sneezing is due to the anatomical makeup of the nasal and other respiratory passages. The only danger is to the ears and the nerves of other persons. The sound may be lessened by muffling it with a handkerchief [which you should use for prevention of droplet spread]. Holding the upper lip firmly pressed against the upper teeth will sometimes prevent a sneeze if you get into action soon enough. Why not investigate the cause and avoid the necessity of so much trumpeting?

BRONCHITIS.

W. E. writes: Each winter I suffer from bronchitis. Besides going to a warmer climate, are there any other helpful measures?

REPLY.

Bronchitis victims do best in a warm, dry climate but if this is impossible, there are a number of beneficial procedures, such as wearing a firm abdominal binder and using steam inhalations medicated with tincture of compound benzoin. The trouble is occasionally due to a slightly weakened heart. More detailed directions will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CLUBFOOT.

W. V. writes: Is the cause of clubfoot known? Can the condition be corrected?

REPLY.

The exact cause is not known, but it is said sometimes to be due to improper position of the child in the uterus before birth. Early and skilled treatment will bring about a cure. The chance of improvement depends upon the age of the child when first seen, the type and degree of the deformity, the persistence of the treatment, and similar factors. Active treatment may be necessary for months and care and supervision for years.

YES.

A. W. writes: Can one catch cold from sitting in a draft?

REPLY.

Yes, especially if the body is somewhat below par. Chilling lowers resistance.

THE BABY VS. THE AUTOMOBILE.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Lots of people have an idea that they can afford an automobile, but that a baby is too expensive. The first expense for a baby is smaller. For an auto you get nothing but the air in the rubber tires as a free gift. To keep an auto is expensive. It eats ten gallons of gasoline while a baby takes one cup of milk. Shoes for the auto cost thirty times as much as a pair of baby shoes. After a few years the family has to be ashamed of how shabby the automobile looks, but after a few years the fond parents are in love with their baby and proud of it. Year after year the baby grows more lovely while the auto becomes nothing but old junk.

PUPPIES AS A GIFT.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Christmas is but a few days away, and many boys and girls have been begging for a puppy as a gift. To the child or adult who really loves animals, and has a correct place wherein to keep a pet, and knows how to care for a dog—such a gift is one of the most welcome that can be made.

But many are ignorant of the fact that a dog in any home means an added responsibility, for it needs plenty of exercise, good food, and intelligent training if it is to be healthy and a pleasure, though these will be repaid with a wealth of devotion and loyalty even unto death. Readers are urged, before purchasing a puppy or dog for a Christmas gift, to be certain that the recipient is eager to have the pet and qualified to give it right treatment. Otherwise, once the novelty of ownership is gone, the unfortunate animal may join the many strays on the city streets.

ANOTHER DOC TOWNSEND IN THE FIELD.

Matthews, Ind., Dec. 14.—My plan for prosperity in 1939:

1. The federal government will send a questionnaire to every head of a family and single persons not living at home in this country.

2. Parties will fill out this questionnaire which will tell merchandise they will be willing to purchase in 1939 if guaranteed a full time job.

3. Federal government will guarantee every breadwinner a full time job if he will sign sales contract to purchase durable merchandise up to 66⅔ per cent of yearly earnings.

Study this plan over and I think you will see every one employed next year. Let me know your reaction, as I will like to hear from you by return mail. Why won't this plan work?

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Aside from the questionable propriety of Mr. Roosevelt's deciding for posterity whether he will deserve a memorial, why bother? Hasn't he already erected the most colossal memorial of all time to commemorate himself, in the national debt?

TAXPAYER.

Libertyville, Ill., Dec. 12.—As to Mr. Roosevelt's self-planned memorial I would say that the President has already built himself a memorial for which he will be long remembered. I refer to the nation's monumental debt. Anything more would be superfluous.

TERESA SNOW MICHAELS.

Charleston, Ill., Dec. 13.—So the President is leaving his own memorial. Will he not have left "footprints in the sands of time" for our children and our grandchildren and their children to be forced to follow? Footprints that spell TAXES every turn of the road. Footprints that lead down the weary road, going nowhere and ending nowhere. Footprints that bring no hope, no incentive to build and construct for the future.

HUNGARIAN GIRL WANTS A JOB.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 5.—Three years ago I was a very young girl in a small provincial town and as it is customary with good families' children I played nicely the piano and took part in charity performances.

Meanwhile I secretly dreamed about a literary career. One day I woke up with the determination to continue my dream during the day.

Two days later I came to the capital, Budapest, and six months later I became the staf reporter of the largest Hungarian newspaper group. This is three years ago.

At present I am the most well known woman staf reporter in Hungary. And besides my second film is being shown now with a big success.

I now made up my mind to do newspaper writing in the United States. I should like to work for your paper.

I want a trial engagement for three months and after that time I leave it to you to decide whether you want to keep me.

A young Hungarian newspaper reporter might notice many things in your country that would escape the attention of those who live there. By this I mean that I have a fresh eye for conditions in the United States. LILI RENDY.

HINT TO SURFACE LINES.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Now that the Rapid Transit lines have given prizes for the best gardens, why don't the surface lines get busy and give prizes for the most attractive windows? I would suggest Alvin Leeser's drug store at St. Louis avenue and Harrison street as having a very attractive window. Am sure that other passers-by will agree with me.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am one of eighteen heirs to a Massachusetts estate. My share is one-seventieth of the total. The administrator has during the last two years sent me four checks for various amounts and now sends a check described as the "fifth and final" and requests a receipt "in full payment of the balance of my distributive share as one of the heirs of said estate."

1. Is it safe to sign the receipt before seeing an inventory of the estate?

2. From whom would I obtain an inventory?

3. How do I ascertain the exact amount they realized on the assets of the deceased?

4. How do I ascertain what the administrative expense was and how much the administrator received for his services?

5. Is it customary for each heir to receive an inventory? Thus far no information has been sent me except the checks and a letter with each check stating "the amount we now have to distribute."

M. L. B.

ANS. 1. In general, you should not sign a receipt in full unless you are satisfied that you have received your full share.

2. You could obtain a copy of the inventory and final account from the clerk of the court by paying him. Conceivably the administrator might be willing to send you copies.

3. Presumably a recital will appear in the final account. If you wish to go back of this recital it will be necessary to follow up clews on the spot.

4. See 3.

5. No. Your first step should be to ask the administrator for a showing as to how your distributive share was arrived at.

REMOVE SLUMS BY STRICT ZONING, SPRAGUE URGES

Suggests New Laws to Speed Program.

Slum areas can be eliminated by strict zoning laws based on intelligent city planning, Col. A. A. Sprague said yesterday. As chairman of the city plan commission, he told the city council finance committee that the plan commission is the logical branch of Chicago's government to set up and superintend the enforcement of these laws.

Only the city zoning board of appeals now has the power to administer zoning ordinances, Sprague said. The plan commission is merely an advisory body and the department of planning proposed recently by Ald. John Egan [13th] would be nothing more.

Suggests Change in Laws.

"With enabling legislation," he said, "the commission could use the results of its $1,800,000 land use survey and redraft the zoning laws. Then by administering them in line with a long range development program, the commission would be able to speed the elimination of backward areas.

"This is the way the plan commissions in New York and Cincinnai operate. The Chicago commission would increase its value to the city if given broader powers by the legislature."

Col. Sprague told the committee that a system of superhighways serving all parts of Chicago would cut the accident toll.

Alarmed Over Conditions.

Leading citizens have expressed alarm over the spread of backward areas in Chicago. A few days ago 400 representatives of the building industry met in the Palmer house to plan a reconstruction program. To carry this out they formed the Chicago Building Congress, Inc.

The plan commission is asking for a 1939 appropriation of $110,000, as follows: For regular expenses, $35,000; for planning the lake front airport, $25,000; for work on superhighway plans, $10,000; for the west side medical center, $5,000, and for the city's share of the land use survey, $35,000.

THIN PRISONER SLIPS THROUGH FENCE AT JOLIET

The pickets in the steel fence around the administration yard at Stateville prison are seven inches apart and Prisoner Robert Hampton, 58 years old, of Chicago, is a thin man. Yesterday Hampden, a trusty working in the administration yard, was unable to resist temptation, and he walked out. He had a good record, according to prison authorities, and they expect he'll come back, but he'll lose his good time for the lapse. Hampden was sent up from Cook county last April on a 1 to 10 year sentence for operating a confidence game. He was dressed in regulation prison blue denim when he departed.

MERRY FAHRNEY APPEALS RULING VOIDING DIVORCE

ALD. KONKOWSKI GOES BEFORE GRAND JURY IN POLICE LIST QUIZ

Ald. Frank E. Konkowski [26th], whose real estate office at 1030 Chicago avenue has been the target of bullets, was questioned for two hours by the grand jury yesterday. The jury is investigating the alleged payment of money for influence in getting high places on the police eligibility list.

Ald. Konkowski.

Konkowski appeared at the state's attorney's office with his attorney, James M. Burke. It was understood he signed an immunity waiver before testifying. "Ald. Konkowski comes willing to tell anything he knows," Attorney Burke said. "He is secure in the knowledge he has done nothing wrong."

Neither Konkowski nor Assistant State's Attorneys Wilbert Crowley and Mal Coghlan would comment on the testimony. It was reported that several jurors showed an interest in information that Konkowski was a heavy better on horse races.

Harry Rothberg, 30 years old, an unemployed polisher, was found dead last night in his room at 1829 South Lawndale avenue. Nearby was a bottle which had contained poison.

DIGGING STARTS TODAY ON FIRST UNIT OF SUBWAY

Ceremony to Be Held in State Street.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon amid appropriate ceremonies ground will be broken for the first unit of the State street subway. Public officials and civic leaders will gather with subway engineers near the corner of Chicago avenue and State street to signalize the start of the work.

Mayor Kelly, accompanied by Harold L. Ickes, Public Works administrator, and leaders of civic organizations from all sections of the city, will leave the La Salle street entrance of the city hall at 2:15 p. m. to begin the celebration.

Colorful Escort to Lead.

They will be escorted from the city hall to the scene of the ceremonies by the Chicago Black Horse troop and the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps of the Chicago police department.

They will proceed north in La Salle street to Chicago avenue and east to State street. From a speakers' platform on State street just south of Chicago avenue, Ald. James R. Quinn [50th] will introduce the mayor and Ickes. Quinn is chairman of the city council's local transportation committee.

Ickes is participating in the ceremonies because the subways are to be built partly with federal aid. The PWA is contributing 18 million dollars of the estimated 40 million dollars cost. The balance will come from the city's traction fund.

Chicago Far Behind.

With the start of the work, Chicago will become one of four cities in the country and sixteen in the world that have subway systems in operation or under construction. The first subways were built in London in 1863. Then followed Glasgow and Budapest.

In 1898 Boston became the first city in America with passenger tunnels. Then came Paris and Berlin. In 1904 New York began what has become the world's greatest subway system. Philadelphia joined the ranks in 1908, followed by Madrid, Barcelona, Tokio, Buenos Aires, Sydney [Australia], Osaka [Japan], and in 1935, Moscow.

CHRISTMAS BOOK REVIEWS

Book of Beauty Can Be a Thing of Joy Forever

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Each year there is one luxurious book [at least] which is so beautiful in typography and plates that it would make a spendthrift of the traditional Highland laddie. This year's is Flower and Fruit Prints of the 18th and Early 19th Centuries, by Gordon Dunthorne, M. A. [Lakeside Press, $20].

It contains 37 reproductions of famous prints in amazingly true colors and 42 others in black and white. For sheer beauty it is a joy. As a reference book on the subject it is the very last and ultimate word. Garden devotees and those who love flowers on a page as well as in a garden would consider it a treasure. And each of the plates is pretty enough to live on a wall, framed. It is a Chicago product of rare beauty.

Picture Books for Adults

This Is Living, by Donald Culross Peattie and Gordon Aymar [Dodd Mead, $4]. One of the most unusual books of photographs ever published, because it has not only extremely unusual pictures but the explanatory text is literature. Donald Culross Peattie, author of many lovely books about nature, here gives in a sentence or two the deeper significance of each of the photographs, obviously significant in themselves, concerning life and its living all about us.

Adventures of America, 1857-1900, edited by John Kouwenhoven [Harpers, $3.50]. An album of more than 250 of the most exciting pictures published in Harper's Weekly during its heyday. Amusing and instructive. Interesting text.

A History of American Graphic Humor, 1865-1938, by William Murrell [Macmillan, $6.50]. A serious history of all phases of humorous art in America filled with funny pictures.

Old New England Churches, by Elise Lathrop [Tuttle, $3]. Description, historic data, and pictures of famous old places of worship.

Cecil Beaton's New York [Lippincott, $4.]. Vivid pen pictures, photographs, and drawings of New York by a fashionable London artist. Chic in literary style and physical makeup.

Circus, by Bertha Bennet Burleigh [Putnams, $2.50]. Pen drawings of the greatest show on earth, in a big book for grownups.

Youth at the Zoo, by Nona Scott Langley [Scribners, $4]. Beautiful pencil sketches of young life at the zoo, with adult text.

The World of Horses, edited by W. E. Lyon and G. H. S. Dixon [Scribners, $5]. Short articles on every phase of horses' activity illustrated with photographs from all over the world.

The Horn, by Patrick Chalmers, illustrated by Lionel Edwards [Scribners, $8.50]. A long hunting novel in verse with illustrations by a famous English hunting artist.

In the House and Garden

Flowers East-West, by J. Gregory Conway in collaboration with Elinor Wallace Hiatt [Knopf, $5]. This is a lovely book on the art of flower arrangement, with 100 photographs of unusual groupings, unusual enough for the most sophisticated amateur, simple enough for a beginner.

Flowers and Still Life [Studio, $2.50]. Sixteen plates in full color and 54 in black and white of paintings of flowers and still life, with short explanatory text.

The Garden Dictionary, edited by Norman Taylor [Houghton Mifflin, $7.50]. This most complete book covers all phases of gardening in the United States and southern Canada. Besides being a dictionary of horticultural and botanical terms, it gives complete descriptions and details on how to grow all the commonly cultivated plants in the country. It is nontechnical, and therefore as happy a book for the beginner as for the seasoned gardener. It has lots of pictures, some full page plates in color.

The Furniture Designs of Chippendale, Hepplewhite, and Sheraton, with critical estimates and introductions by Arthur Hayden and Charles Messer Stow [McBride, $4.50]. Here in one volume are reproduced the original design books of the great masters of English furniture. The portfolios from which this book was made are among the rarest books of our time.

The Encyclopædia of Furniture, by Joseph Aronson [Crown, $3]. A mass of pictures—1,000 of them—illustrates the informative text of this useful big book.

Provincial Furniture, by John Gerald Shea and Paul Nolt Wenger [Bruce, $3.50]. Not only explains in word and picture how the basic pieces of provincial French furniture are designed but gives accurate working drawings for doing it yourself if you are a craftsman. A perfect present for the man who loves to fiddle with a piece of fine wood and a saw and a plane. And sure to delight his wife as well, if he puts its suggestions to use.

How to Be Your Own Decorator, by Helen Koues [Tudor, $1.25]. A real bargain in a decorating book—chock full of pictures, many in color and excellent workable advice about all kinds of ways to make a home more attractive.

Space for Living, by Paul T. Frankl [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50]. The last word in advice about modern and ultramodern home decoration, with fifty full page illustrations.

Yuletide Theme in This Cheery List of Volumes

A Christmas Carol, by Charles Dickens [Garden City, $1.98; special boxed gift edition, $3.50]. The great Christmas classic illustrated in full color by Everett Shinn, with a foreword by Lionel Barrymore.

Christmas Day, by Joseph C. Lincoln [Coward McCann, $1.50]. A Cape Cod story by the Cape's most popular chronicler. Illustrated by Harold Brett.

A Town Is Born, by Tom Sayres [Macmillan, $1.25]. A touching Christmas story of today, with the scene a train tearing through a Christmas eve blizzard.

Christmas Gift, by Lucy Agnes Hancock [Penn, $1.50]. The homey story of two old people who were made happy by a surprise Christmas reunion.

Christmas: An American Annual of Christmas Literature and Art [Augsburg, boxed, $1]. Christmas poetry, prose, pictures, and carols—words and music. Many illustrations in color.

There Really Is a Father Christmas, by Douglas Flintan [Willett Clark, $1.25]. Incorporates in a fairy tale the legendary facts about St. Nicholas.

Art Books

This year there have been some very important as well as beautiful books which any one interested in art would want to possess, some which are vital to any library. The most outstanding is The Notebooks of Leonardo da Vinci [Raynal and Hitchcock, 2 vols., $15], translated for the first time into English by Edward MacCurdy. They are handsome volumes and are beautifully illustrated. Others follow:

Leonardo da Vinci, by Antonina Vallentin [Viking, $3.75]. A fine and also exciting life of the greatest man of Renaissance. Nothing could be more attractive as a handsome gift than this biography plus the "Notebooks."

Toulouse-Lautrec, by Gerstle Mack [Knopf, $5]. The first complete biography in English of one of the most popular of the gay nineties French painters, a strange life story as well as a great artist's saga. Profusely illustrated.

Goya: Rebellious Genius, by Marion Chapman [Egmont Press, $2.50], and Goya, by Charles Poore [Scribners, $3.50]. Two exciting life stories of a Spanish genius who has for many years gone unsung in biography. Profuse illustrations.

Queer Thing, Painting, by Walter Pach [Harpers, $4.] Lively reminiscences by a famous critic-artist who sees modern art with forty years' perspective. All the great names are here of artists, connoisseurs, and movements.

El Greco [Oxford University Press, $3]. A superb volume of reproductions in black and white and in colors in a famous series, Phaidon Press, which brings to lovers of art comprehensive records at low prices.

Charles Sheeler, by Constance Rourke [Harcourt Brace, $3]. A critical biography of an "artist in the American tradition" which relates his work to contemporary culture.

Silhouette, by E. Nevill Jackson [Scribners, $15]. A luxurious volume on a highly specialized subject, profusely illustrated.

Primitivism in Modern Painting, by Robert J. Goldwater [Harpers, $5]. Explains an esoteric subject simply and makes modern painting more comprehensible. Fifty-eight illustrations from famous canvases.

Art Criticism from a Laboratory, by Alan Burroughs [Little Brown, $6]. The only book ever published which tells how paintings are studied with X-ray and microphotography. Gives fascinating detective work as well as criticism. Illustrated.

The New Vision, by L. Maholy-Nagy [Norton, $3.75]. Explains the basic elements in the famous Bauhaus education. Profusely illustrated.

Tropic Warmth Glows in Many Recent Volumes

BY PERCY WOOD.

Many good books about the tropics were published this year. Novels and travel narratives with picturesque jungle backgrounds came abundantly from the presses, along with histories, sociological studies of the hot countries, and analyses of current political movements near the equator.

Central and South America provided settings for several exciting novels, while others were placed in India, the Caribbean islands, and the South seas. Travel writers continued to find Africa a fruitful storehouse and some of these wanderers, having mastered the camera, turned in competent photographic records as well as interesting texts.

Some of this entertaining reading is here briefly described:

The Sword and the Rose, by A. W. Smith [Little Brown, $2.50]. Those readers who found "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" fascinating reading would like this novel of a British regiment on Indian duty, written by a former captain of just such a regiment. Army life on a colonial station is told in minute but fascinating detail.

The Bridge in the Jungle, by B. Traven [Knopf, $2.50]. The mysterious author whose identity is unknown even to his publisher produces another of his somber tales in this story of the Central American jungles. It concerns the death of a little boy who falls from a bridge during a festival and whose body is recovered through a mystical procedure deeply rooted in primitive religion. The action covers only 24 hours; the book can be read in two hours.

From Jungle Roots, by Marcos Spinelli [Covici-Friede, $2.50]. A Brazilian writer contributes this saga of boyhood in the wild Matto Grosso, where the youth is a man at 12, knows that he is, and takes on all manly prerogatives. It is a tempestuous but wholly credible story.

A History of Mexico, by Henry Bamford Parkes [Houghton-Mifflin, $3.75]. It would be difficult to write a completely dull history of Mexico, but it is at least as hard to be completely objective toward a subject with such a turbulent background. Prof. Parkes appears to have been objective, and certainly he has been exhaustive.

Run Masked, by Robb White [Knopf, $2.50]. How the English govern their islands in the West Indies is made the subject of an interesting novel by a young American writer who does not flatter the colonial administrators.

Dahomey, by Melville J. Herskovits [Augustin, 2 vols., $12]. Ancestors of present day American Negroes were enslaved in Dahomey, that ancient West African kingdom now under French protection. This scholarly work is essentially for the student, but the lay reader need not shy away on this account.

Death by Moonlight, by Robert Henriques [Morrow, $3.50]. Henriques bagged fourteen lions and nineteen leopards in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan—not killing for sport but exterminating beasts who preyed on the flocks and the herds. He did his shooting mostly at night, which makes for some unusual and exciting writing.

African Mirage, by Hoyningen-Huene [Scribner's, $3.75]. One of the world's leading portrait photographers took his paraphernalia into equatorial Africa and returned with 126 fine studies of native life.

Last Port of Call, by Heinrich Hauser [Stackpole, $2.50]. Loving hands wrote this devotional to the disappearing sailing vessel. Hauser shares the same fine feeling toward the stately old barques as Alan Villers, and his novel of a voyage to Australia well may come to be regarded as one of the eminent contributions to marine fiction.

Cross Section from Byways of Book World

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Some seventy-five books read in the last year have brought a wealth of new literary experience. These books, in general, were not the accepted best sellers, but they were tangent to that exclusive company and had much to offer.

In biographies, the following stood out:

King's Counsel, by Roland Wild and Derck Curtis-Bennett. [Macmillan, $2.50.] This is the life story of the late Sir Henry Curtis Bennett, one of the great English barristers. Bennett fought for lost causes. His courtroom maneuvers will be remembered after his clients are forgotten.

James I. of England, by Clara and Hardy Steeholm. [Covici-Friede, $3.75.] The first biography in many years of the wisest fool in Christendom pictures him as an ineffectual man, with streaks of goodness at times refining a coarse and headstrong nature.

Napoleon, Soldier and Emperor, by Octave Aubry. [Lippincott, $3.75.] Probably the season's best biography of Bonaparte, it relates his tremendous hold on the French people. His faults and his greatness are discussed in equal measure.

Of novels, these were impressive:

Starting Point, by C. Day Lewis. [Harpers, $2.50.] This is a well written sensitive story of four young men thrown together at Oxford. The years twist their dreams into nightmares.

Each Dawn I Die, by Jerome Odlum. [Bobbs Merrill, $2.] A young newspaper man is railroaded to prison. His fight to get out, and his ultimate success, in a startling way, makes good reading.

Four other books told interestingly of the theater and its people:

Backstage with Henry Miller, by Frank Morse. [Dutton, $5.] This is the story of one of the great actors of the early 1900s. It is full of anecdote.

Backstage with Actors, by Helen Ormsbee. [Crowell, $3.50.] The criterion of great acting does not change, and here are the great actors from Elizabethan days to the present.

Two on the Aisle, by John Mason Brown. [Norton, $2.75.] The critiques of a distinguished dramatic editor have been selected and classified in this volume.

A Handbook of Drama, by Frank O'Hara and Marguerite Bro. [Willett Clark, $2.] There is much here for the student of the theater and the playwright. Definitions of stage terms and an analysis of technique are included.

These Anthologies and Omnibuses Offer Many Pages for Few Dollars

Many pages for few dollars characterize these impressive big books. They make generous Christmas gifts.

Oxford Anthology of American Literature, edited by William Rose Benet and Norman Holmes Pearson, 1,705 pages [Oxford, $6]. A fine, comprehensive historical anthology from John Smith to Ernest Hemingway.

The Complete Greek Drama, edited by Prof. Whitney J. Oakes and Eugene O'Neill Jr., 2,421 pages [Random, 2 volumes, $5]. Contains every one of the forty-seven Greek plays that have been preserved. Very important.

Buddenbrooks, by Thomas Mann [Knopf, $3.50]. A two volume modern masterpiece now available in one volume.

The Thorne Smith Triplets, 955 pages [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50]. Three of Thorne Smith's hilarious tales, "Topper Takes a Trip," "The Night Life of the Gods," and "The Bishop's Jaegers."

The Barly Fields, by Robert Nathan, 523 pages [Knopf, $3]. "The Fiddler in Barly," "The Woodcutter's House," "The Bishop's Wife," "The Orchid," and "There Is Another Heaven," all under one roof.

Andrew Jackson, by Marquis James [Bobbs Merrill, $5]. Both volumes of this monumental work now in one.

An American Reader, by Burton Rascoe, 1,026 pages [Putnams, $3.50]. American writings by both famous and forgotten names, many of them out of print, which were published by one distinguished publishing house during the last one hundred years.

English Novels Make Gay and Amusing Fare

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Among the most amusing books this reader reviewed this year are a number of English novels. The Ant's Nest, by Muriel Daly [Appleton-Century, $2], is not laid in England, but it's about a little ant's nest of Britons who are basking in the sun of the Italian Riviera. In light, witty, scintillating narrative the author tells you of their daily doings, of the romances, intrigues, and little adventures of their lives.

Summer Half and Pomfret Towers, both by Angela Thirkell [Knopf, $2.50 each], are delightful, sketchy, intimate novels of English country life. There's a chuckle on every page, and the characters are so well done you'll probably recognize them, some day, riding to hounds, or walking down a hawthorne lane, or munching their crumpets and tea before an open fire in one of the lovely old Georgian houses on the tight little isle. These books have a rare charm and flavor all their own.

Fruit in Season, by Anthony Thorne [Random, $2.50], is a more serious angle of the same scene. It is the story of the influence of a magnificent old country mansion on the lives of the little English children who live there. The first half of the book pictures their youth against the background of the house, and the latter half describes their later life when, reunited by the eldest sister, they return for a brief holiday. "Fruit in Season" is as rare fruit and as lovely as the golden apples of the Hesperides.

A young Belgian writer, May Sarton, painted a memorable portrait of three exquisite old ladies in The Single Hound [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50]. Doro, Clairette, and Annette may be old in years but in heart they are young as the dawn because in them all flows a great undercurrent of wisdom tempered by a delightful sense of humor and the keenest appreciation of all the beautiful small things of life. They live in a paradise of their own making, a school for children in the ancient city of Ghent.

Waterway, by Eleanor Dark [Macmillan, $2.50], is about a group of people, old and young, married and single, simple and complicated, and how all their lives were drawn together by a single tragedy, the sinking of a ferry boat that took them back and forth to Sydney from their homes in a suburb across the bay. It's a powerful story that sweeps you along on its strong current of emotion and ideas.

Even more gripping is a tense but utterly simple word portrait of a girl named Julie, a girl whose mind died as the result of a frightful experience she had at the age of 17, but whose body goes on living. Painted against the somber background of a little Vermont town, she stands out with an awful clarity that is as poignant as it is unforgettable. Edwin Lanham, in Another Ophelia [Longmans, $2], has achieved a small masterpiece.

One of the most hilarious books of the year was Evelyn Waugh's Scoop [Little-Brown, $2.50]. Any one who has ever worked on a newspaper and almost every one who hasn't will appreciate this delicious satire. The story is about an English chap who was sent through error by a big London daily to cover a war in Ishmaelia [really Ethiopia]. Mr. Waugh debunks the heroic war correspondent and hands you barrels of fun in this witty, aptly phrased account of William Boot who stumbles and blunders his way to a scoop.

Comprehensive Study of Great Philanthropic Foundations in Nation

"Money to Burn," by Horace Coon [Longmans, $3], is an analysis of the great philanthropic foundations in the United States. It is a thoroughly done study of the pecuniary piles left by Carnegie, the Rockefellers, Duke, Mrs. Sage, and most of the others of any importance. One is surprised when shown the large part these piles play in ordering our lives.

* *

Story of New Yorkers.

"The New Yorkers," by Smith Hart [Sheridan House, $2], tells the story of the people of New York City since the time of the American revolution.

This Group Will Delight Amateur Photographers

Every year books of photographic reproductions are more numerous and more beautiful than they were the previous year. Some of the year's outstanding volumes certain to delight amateur photographers are:

Wildfowling with a Camera, by Lorene Squire [Lippincott, $7.50]. One hundred action photographs of one of the most difficult creatures to "shoot" in flight, the wild duck; a text filled with intimate information about their habits, and delightful reminiscences of the amusing trials which went into the making of these interesting plates. A de luxe volume for the duck enthusiast as well as for the action photographer.

U. S. Camera Annual, 1939, edited by T. J. Maloney [Morrow, $2.90]. Bigger and better than ever, with 196 plates, some of fascinating scientific subjects, many oddly conceived, and incorporating a portfolio of lovely color photographs. A must book for the enthusiast.

American Photographs, by Walker Evans [Museum of Modern Art, $2.50]. A factual record, often surprising, of the American scene.

County Fair [Stackpole, $2]. A book of photographs, with explanatory text by Phil Stong, novelist, who chose the same essentially American background for his novel, "State Fair," and photographs by Josephine Von Miklos and sixteen plates which won in a nation-wide contest for the best photographs of a county fair.

Valhalla in the Smokies [Exline, Cleveland, $5]. The collaboration of Phillip Herbert Maxwell, who describes the beauties of the Great Smoky mountains, and Edouard Evartt Exline, who photographs them, produces twenty-three stories and a foreword and twenty-four full page illustrations.

Photography and the American Scene, by Robert Taft [Macmillan, $10]. A history of the art of photography, with many reproductions of daguerreotypes and photographs in every one of the historic media. A scholarly book and an impressive one.

Color Photography for the Amateur, by Keith Henney [Whittlesey House, $3.50]. Our expert reviewer on books on photography pointed out that this is intended for the amateur in color photography, not for the person just starting snapshooting, for color photography is no tyro's business.

Photography Is Fun, by Russell Doubleday [Doubleday-Doran, $1.50]. Explains in a small book how one man found it so.

The Fun of Photography, by Mario and Mabel Scacheri [Harcourt Brace, $3.50]. Our expert reviewer says this book "is unique among its kind" and valuable to amateurs and professionals alike.

F. B.

Volume About Ballet Unusually Attractive; Others About Theater

One of the most unusual beautiful books of the year is Tribute to Ballet [Macmillan, $7.50], the collaboration of a poet and an artist, both of whom are balletomanes. Poems from the pen of the poet laureate of England, John Masefield, are accompanied by full page plates of paintings and drawings by Edward Seago.

The American Theatre, by John Anderson [Dial, $5]. A concise survey of the American theater, lavishly illustrated. Rene Fulop-Miller contributes an article on motion pictures.

Theatre in Action, by Geoffrey Whitworth [Studio, Ltd., $4.50]. A collection of photographs of famous stage sets since 1933 all over the world.

Dressing the Part, by Fairfax Proudfit Walkup [Crofts, $5]. A history of costumes for the theater, telling how to make as well as choose costumes.

George Gershwin, edited by Merle Armitage [Longmans, $5]. Tributes written by the friends of George Gershwin, among whom are dazzling names in music and drama. A very special kind of book, and unique.

Artists of the Dance, by Lillian Moore [Crowell, $3.50]. A history of the dance, ballet, Spanish, naturalistic, etc., told through the work of famous dancers. Illustrated. F. B.

Gowns of Victoria's Era Swirl to Modern Music at Assembly

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

BACK to the late Victorian and early Edwardian days went the ladies who attended the Assembly late last night. They returned to those days for their styles in gowns and hair-dos, but far from those days were the music and dancing. Victoria's reign was noted for its stiffness and propriety; her son, Edward, brought new life and new ways into English circles when he became king, but even in the gayest of Edwardian days there never were music and dancing such as were heard and seen last night in the Palmer house. Not that the music was hot swing—I don't mean to imply that—but it was good, and as a consequence every one who danced seemed to be enjoying it.

So it was a modern, up to date party despite the bustles and full skirts, upswept tresses, and elaborate hair ornaments which would have made a ghost think he was back in the days when the twentieth century was very young or the nineteenth very old.

The entire fourth floor of the Palmer house had been reserved by the governors of the Assemblies, Chicago's most exclusive balls, for the party. There was plenty of room for the eight hundred or more guests to dance and to sup comfortably. There was music in the ballroom and in the Red Lacquer room, a champagne bar in the foyer, and supper tables in the Red Lacquer room. The decorations were not traditionally Christmasy, although garlands of Christmas greens outlined the balcony. The only flowers were Sally [pink] roses. Great trees of these luscious blooms were used in the ballroom.

The Red Lacquer room does not lend itself to much decorating, so only the tables were ornamented there. Gold pine cones, southern pine boughs, and white cathedral candles were the table centerpieces.

Even the supper was old-fashioned, for creamed chicken was the entrée. Consommé, Julienne potatoes, peas, cheese and crackers, and coffee completed the menu.

In the receiving line were Mrs. William McCormick Blair, wife of the chairman of the governors; Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, whose husband is the dean of the governors now that Arthur Meeker, Morris L. Johnston, and Harold F. McCormick have retired; Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. John A. Stevenson, Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. Solomon Byron Smith, Mrs. Edison Dick, and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III.

Mrs. Watson Armour, Mrs. Dick, and Mrs. Smith were making their first appearance as wives of governors, for their husbands just were elected this year. Mrs. Armour, petite and piquant, was charming in white brocaded satin with faint gold and jeweled beading. Her skirt was full and her bodice tight, and low in back with thin shoulder straps. White was a favorite color with Assembly hostesses and guests. Mrs. Dick, Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Lester Armour, and Mrs. Mitchell all were in white.

Mrs. Mitchell's gown was of crêpe with rhinestones sprinkled on it; Mrs. Lester Armour's was of brocade with a design in gold. As she whirled it could be seen that the full skirt was lined in emerald green, and there were touches of the green on the puffed sleeves. Mrs. Carpenter had chosen white tulle over silver lamé and Mrs. Blair was wearing white satin with red roses in her dark hair. Her gloves matched the roses in color. Mrs. Dick's white crêpe was simply made, with a full skirt and rhinestone trimming in a wheat design.

Every one in the receiving line wore long gloves, all of them white except Mrs. Cummings', Mrs. Blair's, and Mrs. Cable's. Mrs. Cummings' were of pale pink satin matching her gown. Mrs. Smith was in pink, too, but hers was a dusty pink, strapless. The only strapless one on the hostesses, but not the only one at the ball. Mrs. Douglas was another in pink. Her skirt was of pink crêpe and her bodice of magenta velvet. Mrs. Cable was stunning in a satin gown of black and American beauty stripes, made with a bustle and a short train. Her gloves were black.

Blue and silver lamé was worn by Mrs. Gardner. And Mrs. Odell had chosen chartreuse velvet with sable trimming. Mrs. Ryerson wore gray taffeta with a halo of rhinestones in her dark hair. Mrs. Stevenson's gown was gray, too. It was of satin with a shell pink bodice. The governors had sent their wives sprays of handsome purple orchids to carry.

The invitations to the ball stated that 10:30 was the hour for the party to start. With the card of admittance sent by the secretary after an acceptance had been received was another card reading, "It is requested that guests arrive not later than 11:30." Few paid any attention to this admonition, however, for at most of the dinner parties the guests were not finished dinner until long past that hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Cummings were the first to arrive at the ball; they came in at 11:10. Shortly after them came the Blairs and then appeared the first guests, the W. Roy Carneys. They were followed by Mrs. Carpenter, whose husband was at home drinking hot lemonade to try and get rid of a bad cold. She was escorted by Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne. The young Watson Armours came in next. After that the number of guests present increased more rapidly.

Among others at the ball were Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell and their sons, Barrett III. and Lee Higginson Wendell, and their wives; Miss Mary Alice Bacon, Miss Louise Blossom, Miss Judy Butler, Miss Betty Armour, Miss Mary Paul Welling, Miss Nancy Otis, Miss Mary Gardner, Miss Janet Swift, Miss Adair Orr, Miss Betty Keith, Miss Anne Winston, Miss Anne Bryant, Miss Mary Adams, and Miss Marian Farwell.

Others present were the Stewart Harveys, the senior and junior Byron Harveys, the junior Fred E. Fairmans, the Augustus A. Carpenters, the Arthur Meekers, the Morris Johnstons, the E. Harris Brewers, the Charles H. Swifts, the Tiffany Blakes, the Edward Byron Smiths, the junior Herbert S. Stones, the John L. Cochrans, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, the Herbert E. Bradleys, the Clarence B. Mitchells, the John I. Shaws, and Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell L. Rogers.

Attends Annual Assembly Ball

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr. was one of the many who dined at the Casino last night and then went to the Palmer house for the Assembly ball. The junior Harveys were dinner guests of his parents who were entertaining for another son, Stewart Harvey, and his wife. The Stewart Harveys just recently returned to Chicago to live from Kansas City, Mo.

Many to Take Holiday Trips for New Year's

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH the Onwentsia, Indian Hill and Glen View clubs in the country and the Tavern in town forgoing New Year's Eve celebrations it looks as though almost every one were expected to celebrate at home or in public places. Many like to go away, of course, to start the new year, and with New Year's day a Sunday many more than usual will spend that holiday week-end out of the city.

The Scott Dows and Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Sims will go to French Lick Springs for that week-end, leaving here Friday night and returning early Tuesday morning. They have been invited to lead the grand march at the New Year's Eve ball.

The Saddle and Cycle club is having a dinner-dance on New Year's eve and the Casino, as usual, will be taken over by the 'teen age boys and girls that night, for the Junior Assembly is to be given there. The assembly is for boys over 16 and girls over 15 who are not old enough to be on the debutante invitation list. Mrs. John Lewis Cochran is chairman of the committee in charge of this year's dance. Her daughter, Eleanor, will arrive at home this morning from the Ethel Walker school at Simsbury, Conn.

Cliff Dwellers Will Hold Dinner-Dance.

The Cliff Dwellers will hold their traditional watch party on the night of the 31st, and many of the members are planning to greet the new year at a late dinner-dance there.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra and the Chicago City Opera company are both planning special gala programs for New Year's eve. The concert, to be conducted by Dr Frederick Stock, will include music by Wagner, Massenet, Von Reznicek, Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Kodaly and Weinberger.

The opera will be "The Barber of Seville." A midnight supper will be served in the Opera club after the performance and there will be dancing in the foyer.

Many Week-End Parties to Start Holiday Gayety.

The first week-end of the Christmas holidays is filled with parties. Most of them have been planned for debutantes, but there is a generous sprinkling of subdeb and young married affairs as well.

The first debut party of the two week holiday season will be given tomorrow by Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, Mr. and Mrs. George Bates Harrington, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Werner Lawson to introduce their daughters, Miss Julia Follansbee and Miss Ann Harrington, students at Bryn Mawr, and Miss Sally Lawson, who returns today from Vassar.

The party is to be a luncheon at 10 o'clock at the Onwentsia club. Only young people have been invited and there will be dancing until the 200 guests disperse to other parties. Mr. and Mrs. Lawson are planning a tea to introduce their daughter to their own friends later this month, if there is time. Miss Lawson, Miss Follansbee, and Miss Harrington were classmates at the Girls' Latin school.

Some of the buds and their beaux have been invited to an informal party Miss Harriet Welling, Mr. and Mrs. Corwith Hamill, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Orr, and Mrs. Arthur Orr are giving tonight at the Dunham Woods Riding club. The party is for three debutante cousins, Miss Nancy Orr, Miss Nora Perkins, and Miss Alice Wyeth, and for Miss Wyeth's elder sister, Miss Florence Wyeth, who was a classmate at Vassar of Miss Welling and Mrs. Hamill.

The guests have been asked to wear warm clothes, for there is to be a hay ride—not a sleigh ride, unfortunately—and square dancing after dinner.

Miss Florence Wyeth and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, are leaving tomorrow for their Palm Beach home, but the younger Miss Wyeth will stay here for the rest of the holiday season. Mrs. Arthur Orr will be an absent hostess, for she is at her Montana ranch.

Miss Katherine Lefens Gives Party Tonight.

Another gay party tonight is a dinner-dance Miss Katherine Lefens is giving for her nephew, Lefens Porter, and Mrs. Porter, and her niece, Mrs. William Denison Dunning, and Mr. Dunning. The party will be given in a vacant apartment at 60 Scott street, the building in which Mr. Porter's mother, Mrs. Frank S. Porter, makes her home.

Miss Sally Crowder is entertaining at an eggnog party at home in Winnetka tomorrow afternoon for three debutantes, Miss Nathalie DeClerque, Miss Maryphyllis Barber, and Miss Virginia Ballard. Because there are so many parties just now Mrs. A. Clarke Moore has postponed until Easter a luncheon she was to have given tomorrow for Miss DeClerque. Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. DeClerque, parents of the debutante, also are putting off until Easter a party they planned originally for Christmas week.

Two young bachelors, Ernest Byfield Jr. and Vincent Conlan, are entertaining about 100 of the post-debutante set at a "Come as an Ad" party tonight in the Polo room of the Ambassador East hotel. Miss Joan Ford and her fiancé, Harger Rollo,

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Scene Stealers.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 16.

SUNDAY—Errol Flynn chased Hitler, Mussolini, and Chamberlain off page 1 by winding up a right hand and dumping Aiden Roark on the carpets at Liz Whitney's good will polo party. . . . It was a North of Ireland vs. South of Ireland argument, and arguments of this sort always conclude with one of the debaters on the ground, or under it.

Joan Blondell and Dick Powell took up that section of page 1 not devoted to Flynn by announcing that they were ending their terms at Warners. . . . Arrival of Anthony Eden was lucky to get mentioned at all, as page 2 was devoted to the filming of the first scenes in "Gone with the Wind."

MONDAY—Hitler made another stab to get on page one, but it was no dice. . . . George Burns took over the headlines by pleading guilty to smuggling, and Jack Benny, Jack Pearl, opera singers, acrobatic acts, and Fink's mules also were mentioned. . . . James Roosevelt defended his new job with Sam Goldwyn, and in Boston it was announced that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt would take over Jimmy's insurance job while son Jimmy learned how to distribute motion pictures. . . . In Hollywood Sam Goldwyn denied insinuations that he had engaged young Roosevelt because of the government's anti-trust suit, pointing out that the Goldwyn company owned no theaters and was not subject to the suit. . . . The diplomats were shoved back with the classified advertisments. . . . Picture sections showed views of Errol Flynn at the preview of "Dawn Patrol."

TUESDAY—Japan tried to win page 1 attention, but Ruth Etting blocked them out by telling a Los Angeles jury about her married life with Col. Gimp, and portly Myrl Alderman shed his shirt to show the talesmen where a bullet had creased his stomach.

Pictures of the Gimp averting his head as the "Little Lady" passed him in the corridor stole the play completely from the world's leaders. . . . Hitler informed his New York press agents that they were fired, as of recent date, pointing out that he hadn't had better than a two column cut all week long.

WEDNESDAY—Mussolini made a feeble effort to get a break on page 1, but he was tossed for a ten yard loss when the Philippine bond case at New York dragged in the names of Loretta Young, Joe Schenck, Binnie Barnes, Jean Negulesco, and other Hollywood celebs.

Between the charges and the denials the front pages were used up completely. . . . Politics tried a hand, but Ruth Etting bounced back by eloping with Myrl Alderman, and the Gimp authored a special article in which he wished them both luck.

THURSDAY—The dictators went into a huddle and tried to dream up something that would restore them to attention, but their concerted drive was a flop . . . for this reason: Clark Gable announced at Los Angeles that he would ask Mrs. Rhea Gable for a divorce.

As between Hitler, Mussolini, Chamberlain, and Gable, the picture editors and news editors had no choice. . . . They threw the dictators into the wastepaper basket and dragged out cuts of Carole Lombard in a bathing suit.

At Los Angeles the Gimp took the stand and asserted that he had not pulled a rod until Alderman had pulled some artillery out of his hip pocket. . . . At Washington, D. C., the revenuers named fifteen Hollywood glamor girls and matinée idols as tax delinquents. . . . At Hollywood twenty movie stars collaborated in a bill of rights broadcast that monopolized the news reel and ether waves. . . . Hollywood had its biggest day, dominating every known medium of publicity for twenty-four solid hours. . . .The dictators were pretty mad, believe me.

FRIDAY—Picture sections today were devoted to shots of the glamor girls posing with Gov. Happy Chandler of Kentucky at the Carthay Circle world première of "Kentucky," a horse opera in technicolor. . . . Gov. Chandler's eulogy of California's sunshine was delivered in a driving rainstorm at the Trocadero.

At New York the M-G-M minority stockholders' suit moved into the last reel, with Nick Schenck taking the stand for the defense to explain that the only crime he had committed was to make a profit for his stockholders year after year. . . . Mrs. Clark Gable, who has been vehement in her assertions that she hasn't denied a divorce to Gable, told newshawks that his desire for a divorce was news to her and refused comment.

Voice Culture Is "Must" on Beauty List

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"The voice and its cultivation should be the first 'must' on every woman's beauty list. Talking pictures have made American women more conscious of the voice as a vital part of the personality, but they are not yet fully aware of its importance. You've got to speak beautifully before you can be beautiful." This wise counsel comes from Amy Ellerman, eminent concert singer and teacher of famous screen beauties such as Irene Dunne and Lynne Carver.

Miss Ellerman says that there are only a few things necessary for proper voice control, which almost any one can practice. The first is to be sure to speak slowly. Many persons spurt their words in a torrent as though afraid that their listeners will run away before they have finished. The faster you speak, the less clearly, which means that people will be irritated because they have to struggle to understand you. The next fundamental is proper breathing. Always be sure to take deep breaths when you are talking, because too little breath in the lungs means that your voice will be shallow and rasping.

"It would be best," suggests Miss Ellerman, "to get into the habit of deep breathing. Don't take a few deep inhalations in the morning and then forget all about it. Go through the day thinking of your lungs and filling them deeply at all times. After a while it will become a habit."

Last of all, one should be conscious that the voice has as many different emotional colors as the painter's palette. Try to select the proper tone color for what you are saying. In other words, don't try to be solemn with the high head tones that are usually reserved for the latest joke.

"And don't be so cocksure that this advice is for your friends and not for yourself," says Miss Ellerman. "You may not realize that you are the worst offender of all."

Seasonal Monikers.

There's a girl named Carol Holly in Kenosha. Wonder if she knows Racine's Mary Christmas.

Yuletide.

The town is up to its ears in Christmas. Santa Claus on every street corner, bells jingling and carillons chiming, empty lots filled with Christmas trees, shoppers with arms filled with packages [and one bright lad with his in a pack on his back!]. A woman in a wheel chair on the avenue even had bells on her chair.

* * *

Men were festooning the canopied entrance to the Drake with long festoons of Christmas greens last evening. . . . A chauffeur was delivering boxes of mistletoe Mrs. Eugene F. McDonald was sending to friends from a barrel sent her from Oklahoma. . . . Florists' windows are filled with silvered trees, trees frosted with white. . . . A terra cotta Madonna in one window becomes a Christmas shrine with the addition of lilies and pine cones. . . . In another the simplest and loveliest Christmas arrangement we've seen, evergreens tipped with candle wax looking like a heavy coating of frozen snow, combined with large pine cones, candles, and a plain brown halolike circle of wood.

Russian Ballet.

The arrival of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo means Christmas is imminent, too. The new ballerina most likely to catch the fancy of Chicago audiences is Alicia Markova, a black-haired, brown-eyed, delicate young English woman whose real name is Alice Marks. She looks and dances a little like Pavlowa, her admirers think. In the ballet Swan Lake she wears three diamonds in her crown that Pavlowa wore in the same rôle. In Giselle she wears a necklace that belonged to Pavlowa. She is an enthusiast for ice hocky, roast duckling, and cats.

* * *

Personally we welcome Danilova back—"Shura" to her friends. She's our favorite dancer, next to Massine, of course. Massine, artistic director, weighs his usual 140 pounds. In twenty years he has not lost a pound nor gained one. His secret: Never diet; travel across the United States every year in a trailer with your own cook; rest two weeks every summer on your own island off Capri, and work every day and most of the evenings the rest of the year!

* * *

Among the first things a ballerina unpacks are her icon—if she's a Russian, which she hangs above her dressing table, and a tube of fish glue, whatever her nationality, with which she secures her ballet slippers at the heel.

* * *

Pockets Full of Dreams.

The bank sensation of the week occurred at the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank yesterday. There was a long line at the "Checks and Drafts" window, patrons being delayed by an ordinary looking little man at the head of the line who was digging cash out of his pocket. He extracted handfuls of small denomination bills until he had $25,000 piled up on the counter. From one pocket he produced seven $1,000 bills.

Doubles—Henry Fonda and Lloyd Laflin.

Final 'Carmen' Includes Two Chicago Debuts

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Such are the resources of the Chicago City Opera company that last night's "Carmen"—the third and final 1938 presentation of the Bizet classic—enlisted the services of a Don José [Andre Burdino] and a Micaela [Jean Tennyson], who had never before sung these rôles in Chicago. The conductor [Henry Weber] also was new—in the sense that he had not directed either of the earlier 1938 presentations of this particular opera.

With Dusolina Giannini repeating in the title rôle her Thanksgiving night success, Mr. Burdino played a José who sang with vibrant magnificence in the "Flower Song" and who gave to the whole enactment his characteristically Gallic poise and polish. The sword play in the second act, indeed, was a little more Gallic than anything we had bargained for. Such elegance is hardly typical of tavern brawls.

Miss Tennyson used her liquid voice to good advantage in the less distraught portions of her music. Sometimes this handsome young soprano emits notes and whole phrases of a sensuous beauty calculated to bring any drifting listener to attention. In more taxing passages she is compelled to struggle against a troublesome vibrato and against the tendency of her small voice to sound strained.

That the performance was one of the peppiest on record was largely due to the work of Henry Weber down in the pit. He made the prelude fairly smoke with the vigor of his drive, and succeeded in giving the opera terrific momentum right at the start. Throughout the evening the wilder and more gypsyish sequences profited notably by the aliveness of his baton.

Let nothing of the above imply that opportunities for lyrical beauty were slighted. The conductor saw to it that all the Micaela music, for instance, displayed to the full the tenderness and sympathy which the composer had lavished on it.

The other characters went to men and women who have played these parts in the earlier "Carmens" of the season. The only exception was Lodovico Oliviero, who made a debonair El Remendado and gave the second act quintet the benefit of his restraint and his musicianship.

Speaking of the general vigor of the performance, certain episodes of the first act cry for special mention. Such screaming and running about—all over a little thing like a stabbing—have seldom been seen. Douglas Beattie, as Zuniga, looking thoroughly bewildered as he tried to make sense out of the thousand accusations pouring into his ears, added to the scene a few deft comic touches of his own.

Series of Special Movies for Children Ends Today

Commonwealth Edison to Have 13,000 at Yule Party

More than 13,000 children and adults are expected to attend the annual Christmas party to be given today by Commonwealth Edison company for children of its employés. The party will be at the Medinah temple, 610 North Wabash avenue.

The Housewife

Those clever, decorative colored cutouts that come already to stick on wall, door, mirror or furniture, without using any paste, are now available in a series of Christmas motifs. It's loads of fun to work with them, using your own sense of design, and they're so inexpensive that you can supply yourself with a number of packets.

You can decorate the mirror over the mantle, for instance, with Christmas stars, deer, trees and snowflakes, and then bank the mantle shelf, itself, with branches of spruce and balsam. Or apply some of these paste-me-ups to your front door, or to the walls in the children's room. They'll all peel off easily when you have finished with them. And they are all beautiful in themselves for they have been created by artists.

Her Second Choice

By Elizabeth York Miller

(Copyright, 1938, By Elizabeth York Miller.)

SYNOPSIS.

Nora Stacy receives a letter from India from her fiancé, irresponsible Jim Murdock, breaking their engagement. Heartbroken Nora writes Jim she'll marry the next man who asks her. Jim's family live next door to the modest English cottage where Nora lives with her aunt, Mrs. Dorothy Calender. When Bob Matherson of Fairways, rich young bachelor and recent neighbor, proposes to Nora she accepts. Three days before the wedding Jim returns and demands that Nora run away with him. Nora feels morally pledged to Bob, who has settled an income on her aunt. For a wedding present Jim gives Nora her love letters to him—except the one in which she vowed to marry the next man who asked her. Mrs. Pearl Almy, a former attachment of Bob's, who rents a cottage on his estate, gets the letter and sends it to Bob, hoping he'll call off the wedding, but Bob goes through with it. Their wedding night Bob has a showdown with Nora. He tells her he married her for convenience, too. They agree their marriage will be in name only. Bob and his sister's husband, David Longton, are in the aircraft armament business for the government. Cissy Longton tells Nora that Mrs. Almy, who used to work in their office, is suspected of giving away the firm's secrets to a rival.

INSTALMENT XVIII.

A SERVANT DISMISSED.

Nora's tour with the housekeeper progressed.

It had its bright spots. Beals' department and the kitchen premises were in good order, but for these Beals and Cook were responsible. The housemaid's cupboard was in a shocking state, and in less than no time it was plain to Nora that Mrs. Cooper was a slattern and quite superfluous where Fairways was concerned. The house would run much better without her.

But Nora Matherson would never have done what she ultimately was prompted to do except for the queer hints Cissy had thrown out. In the light of those hints she felt she had no choice.

She had insisted upon inspecting the maid's bedrooms and the tour was over now, from Mrs. Cooper's point of view.

"If you will excuse me, madam, I must have a further word with Cook about the food. . . ."

They were on the ground floor, again, and the housekeeper was getting more and more uneasy.

"Where does this door lead to?" Nora asked.

"My rooms," Mrs. Cooper said. "And I'd take it kindly, madam, if you left them until later. The housemaid hasn't had time to tidy up yet."

She was planting herself solidly before the door and Nora might have given way except for something that happened.

Suddenly there was a familiar yap from behind that closed door.

"Have you got a dog?" asked Nora.

"Yes, madam . . . no—that is——"

There was alarm in her voice. It cracked a little.

Nora brushed her aside as though she had been a fly instead of twelve stone of solid flesh, and opened the door.

Crouched by the fireplace, holding Bonzo by the jaws so that he couldn't bark, was Pearl Almy.

For an instant there was a glare of fear in the woman's eyes, and then she straightened up with a sharp little laugh.

"What is this—a voyage of discovery?"

"I'm sorry, madam," spluttered the housekeeper. Then she said hastily to Nora: "Mrs. Almy ran in to have a little chat with me, like what she sometimes does of a morning. I'm sure there is no harm in that, whatever you say. I'm sure Mr. Matherson wouldn't object——"

"Certainly not," Nora said smoothly. "You are out early this morning, Mrs. Almy. If you have finished your chat with Mrs. Cooper won't you come into our part of the house?"

"Yes, I wanted to see you," Pearl Almy said: "Or has Bob rung you up himself?"

Nora was not going to discuss Bob in front of the housekeeper. She made no direct reply, but tacitly invited Mrs. Cooper's visitor to follow her.

She led Pearl Almy straight through to the big lounge hall, in fact to the main entrance door.

"And what was it you wanted to see me about?" she asked, her voice so quiet and well controlled that the woman would never have guessed she was seething inside.

"Only that Bob rang me up about half an hour ago," the ginger kitten said. "He had just got to his office. There was a robbery there last night and one of the safes had been opened. It was the safe where they keep their blueprints—if that means anything to you, Nora."

Nora held Pearl Almy's eyes by main force.

"It probably means something to Bob," she said.

"He wants me to come straight up and have lunch with him," said Mrs. Almy.

"Then I mustn't detain you."

Nora opened the door.

"I thought I ought to tell you—I thought you might not like his taking me out to lunch. . . ."

The green eyes had a malicious gleam.

"I couldn't possibly object," said Nora, with a smile.

Still Pearl Almy lingered.

"Well, I think it's sweet of you not to mind. You see, although I'm not in the office any more I can still be of help to Bob now and again."

"Indeed, I do see. . . . Good-by."

She had been too short with the little sneak. The woman would think she was jealous. Well, let her think what she pleased. Only one thing stood out with any clarity in Nora's mind, now, and that was that both the housekeeper and Pearl Almy had been very much upset by her discovering their little rendezvous.

There was an entrance from the garden to Mrs. Cooper's sitting room, and nothing could be plainer than that Pearl Almy was conducting some sort of backstair intrigue with the housekeeper.

Nora returned to the housekeepers' quarters where she found Mrs. Cooper industriously tidying up. A littered ashtray and a half finished bottle of port had disappeared from the sideboard.

"I think you will understand, Mrs. Cooper. I must ask you to pack your belongings and leave this house as soon as you can. The chauffeur will take you to the station, and if you will give me an address where you can be reached I will see that you get a month's wages and board money in lieu of notice."

The woman looked as though she could hardly believe her ears. Whatever she had been expecting, it wasn't that.

"Well, I must say, this is a pretty how-d'ye-do! May I ask——"

"Yes, you have a right to know. It is chiefly for impertinence. I strongly object to your manner toward me. I don't think we would get along together at all."

The housekeeper put her hands on her hips, assuming a belligerent attitude.

"I'll take my dismissal from the master and from no one else."

"You'll take it from me," Nora said firmly. "Unless you want a lot of unpleasantness. I am running Fairways now."

"I know what it is. It's on account of Mrs. Almy coming in to see me."

"Yes, I object to that, too," said Nora.

Inwardly she was quaking, but no sign of it showed in her voice.

All the time she was thinking to herself, "What does it mean? . . . What is going on here behind Bob's back?"

The housekeeper was a massive woman, squarely built, even to her face. She would have made two of Nora, but the latter stood up to her without flinching.

"I'll leave you to get on with your packing," she said.

When she reached the little boudoir which Bob had given her for her own sanctum, for a moment she thought she was going to faint.

When she had calmed down a little Nora rang for Beals.

Nora couldn't help wondering whose side the butler would be on.

"You rang, madam"

"Yes, Beals, I—has Mrs. Cooper told you she is leaving?"

"Yes, madam. Er—h'm—Mrs. Cooper gave me the keys to give to you, madam. And she wishes me to tell you she will probably be stopping at the cottage with Mrs. Almy for a few days."

These Books Belong in Your Child's Life

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

(Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.)

Among books that belong in your child's library, besides the type one finds in lists of suggested titles are two groups: books about the first Christmas and religion, and books of poetry. These surely are books that need to be owned to be enjoyed.

I can recommend the following as the best of the many that we went over carefully:

"The Lord's Prayer," beautifully illustrated in color by the d'Aulaires, published by Doubleday Doran, price $1.75. For younger children.

Also for younger children "The Little Book About God" by Lauren Ford, publisher the same, price $2.50.

"A First Bible" done in a dignified, traditional and beautiful way, with illustrations by Helen Sewell, published by the Oxford University Press, price $2.50. This, for older children.

For still older children, "The Story of the Bible," by Hendrik Willem Van Loon, published by Boni, price $1.

In the second group of must books, because your child is pretty sure to like poetry, given a chance, are books of poems by one author, and also anthologies.

Starting young and going up in years we have:

"Mother Goose"; "A Child's Garden of Verse," by Robert Louis Stevenson; "Poems by a Little Girl," by Hilda Conkling, published by Frederick A. Stokes, price $2, which is very lovely, and "Sung Under the Silver Umbrella," published by Macmillan, price $2, which is also choice.

For older readers:

"Branches Green," by Rachel Field, published by Macmillan, price $1.50.

"Death and General Putnam," a collection that teen age children enjoy. Published by Dutton, price $2.

"Poems of American Patriotism," chosen by Brander Mathews, published by Scribner's, price $1.75.

Review Board Calls 'Citadel' Best '38 Film

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures announced today its choice of the best films of the year ending yesterday. The committee on exceptional photoplays made its choice on the basis of artistic merit and importance.

The committee said that "since American and English films have become so closely related, through interchange of artistic and technical personnel," the movies of the two countries were "considered together as English speaking films. Among them 'The Citadel' is considered the best picture of the year, and 'Grand Illusion' the best among the foreign language films. 'Grand Illusion' is considered the best film of the year from any country."

The ten best English language films in order of preference were "The Citadel," "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "The Beachcomber," "To the Victor," "Sing, You Sinners," "Edge of the World," "Of Human Hearts," "Jezebel," "South Riding," and "Three Comrades."

Six foreign language films selected were, in order of preference, "Grand Illusion," "Ballerina," "Un Carnet de Bal," "Generals Without Buttons," "Peter I.," and "Professor Mamlock."

On the basis of popular appeal the committee chose "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "The Citadel," "You Can't Take It with You," "Boys Town," "Marie Antoinette," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "Algiers," "In Old Chicago," and "Four Daughters."

The committee considered the following performances worthy of special praise [these preferences are listed alphabetically]:

Lew Ayers in "Holiday" and "Young Dr. Kildare."

Pierre Blanchar, Harry Baur, Louis Jouvet, and Raimu in "Un Carnet de Bal."

James Cagney in "Angels with Dirty Faces."

Joseph Calleia in "Algiers."

Chico in "The Adventures of Chico."

Robert Donat in "The Citadel."

Will Fyffe in "To the Victor."

Pierre Fresnay, Jean Gabin, Dita Parlo, and Eric von Stroheim in "Grand Illusion."

John Garfield in "Four Daughters."

Wendy Hiller in "Pygmalion."

Charles Laughton and Elsa Lancaster in "The Beachcomber."

Robert Morley in "Marie Antoinette."

Ralph Richardson in "South Riding" and "The Citadel."

Margaret Sullavan in "Three Comrades."

Spencer Tracy in "Boys Town."

Good Morning!

Five tiny maidens—the world's most famous five—are now demonstrating how a quint' ticks when she gets to be four years old.

"Five of a Kind" is practically two pictures in one. The grownup part—which leads to the introduction of the Dionne ladies, concerns the adventures of two rival reporters, a man and a girl, who are hectically active in checkmating one another's activities in news gathering and broadcasting—for each is featured on a radio program.

Christine Nelson's success in securing a radio interview with the quintuplets shifts the scene of action to Collander, Canada, and, in their native haunts, so to speak, the little girls are seen making doll beds, preparing their doll babies to sleep in them; singing, playing on tiny pianos, and meeting and falling in love with five puppies, contributions of a charming young man of their old age, Master John Russell. A lamb if ever I saw one!

Later they do a minuet for you, garbed in the quaint costumes of another day—and, come to think of it—the present. All of the sequences in which they appear—chatting volubly in French enhanced occasionally by a soupcon of English—are fascinating. The mites seem normal, happy, healthy children.

So naturally and lovably does Jean Hersholt fit into the picture as their doctor guardian that you really think of Dr. Luke as Dr. Dafoe. Only once does he slip up professionally. After being ultra careful not to admit a lady who has sneezed into the presence of the quints, the doctor puts a whistle handed him by one of the children, into his mouth, blows it and gives it back. This act, you will feel, is not quite in keeping with the strict sanitary precautions observed at the quints' camp.

Your view of the youngsters and the excellent work of the adult players are all that make "Five of a Kind" worth while. Because the fiction vehicle is a poor wagon to have hitched to so many really brilliant stars.

See you tomorrow.

Asks Jews and Christians to Exchange Professors

Exchange of professors between Protestant and Hebrew theological school to further amity between Jews and Christians was advocated yesterday by Rabbi Joshua L. Liebman of K. A. M. temple. He spoke at a luncheon in the Palmer house of the Chicago round table of Jews and Christians. Dr. Liebman has returned from the east after lecturing and holding student seminars at nine Protestant theological seminaries.

Here Are Three Knitted Articles for the Infant

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

Everything for baby is designed with the idea of warmth, softness, and protection. The hot water bottle cover is one of the favorite knitted devices because it takes no time to make and is a marvelous protection for the infant. The boots are not only for protection and warmth, but for charm as well. No devoted mother ever has enough shawls or carriage covers, and here is one which may be made in a short space of time and with simple stitches.

For instructions for knitting the baby's boots, shawl, and hot water bag cover, No. X-154, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Dinner Tomorrow for Louise Strawn.

Mr. and Mrs. De Forest Hulburd are giving a dinner party tomorrow night for Subdebutante Louise Strawn and her guest, Mary Hoyt Cowles, who attend the Brownmore school in Santa Fé, Ariz. Miss Cowles is spending just one night with Miss Strawn on her way home to Neenah, Wis., for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Austin's youngest daughter, Elizabeth, will entertain at a dinner party this evening in her parents' home. Later Elizabeth and her guests will go to the dance that fourteen of the members of the senior class at the Roycemore school are giving at the Country Club of Evanston.

The Misses Barbara and Patricia Austin are arriving at home this morning from Vassar college for the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. John G. Shedd to Be 85 Tomorrow.

The young Watson Armours are giving a family luncheon tomorrow at their home in Lake Forest for her grandmother, Mrs. John G. Shedd, who is celebrating her 85th birthday tomorrow. Mrs. Shedd's grandsons, John Shedd Reed and John Shedd Schweppe, will not return from Yale and Harvard until just a few days before Christmas.

The family will be together, however, on Christmas, at the Lake Forest home of Mrs. Shedd's other granddaughter, Mrs. John Peale Bent, and Mr. Bent. Young Johnny Bent, who is about 2, will be the center of interest that day, of course, for he is the only great-grandchild of Mrs. Shedd.

Mr. Reed and his mother, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, probably will leave Chicago for the last half of his Christmas vacation, but where they will go is undecided.

Two More Parties in Holiday Spirit.

Two parties to be given just in the spirit of Christmas are a luncheon the John J. Bowens of Lake Forest are giving tomorrow in the Pump room of the Ambassador East hotel, and a cocktail party Mrs. Lee Graham is giving in the same room tomorrow afternoon. The Bowens have invited about 80 guests to their "brunch."

Among Mrs. Graham's guests will be Mrs. Henry T. Roberts' sister, Miss Betty Sue Cantrelle of Tulsa, Okla., and David Craig of Sydney, Australia.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Jr., are giving a small luncheon at home in Lake Forest tomorrow for Ira Nelson Morris.

Tavern members and their children have been invited to a Christmas party tomorrow at the club. It is to be a buffet luncheon for both generations, with plenty of entertainment for the youngsters. Miss Helen Jepson is to be an especial guest at the grownups' share of the festivities.

The Lake Shore Athletic club's annual children's Christmas party will be given tomorrow afternoon around a 20 foot Christmas tree in the lounge.

Henry Fields Return Today.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Field are arriving at home today from a quick trip to England. They went abroad after the recent death of his stepfather, Algernon Burnaby.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Williams and his daughter, Mrs. J. Hamilton Merrill [Joan Williams], have returned east, where today they will meet Norman Williams Jr. upon his return from Oxford. Mr. and Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Merrill came to Chicago for the funeral of Mrs. Merrill's grandfather, William J. Chalmers.

If Mrs. Chalmers does not go east for the holidays it is probable that young Mr. Williams will come here to see her. Mrs. Merrill lives in New York and the Williamses live in Woodstock, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Sherman of Winnetka will have as their guest over the week-end Miss Lucy Jamieson, dean of the Chevy Chase college in Washington, D. C. Miss Jamieson and Mrs. Sherman both attended Chevy Chase college, after which Miss Jamieson studied two years in Paris. She became dean of the college in the fall.

Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley left yesterday for Chester, Conn., to spend the Christmas holidays with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Philip S. Owen, and their baby, Deborah.

De La Salle High School Plans for Golden Jubilee

De La Salle High school will celebrate its golden jubilee year with a series of events, Peter B. Carey, president of the alumni association, announced yesterday. The celebration will begin with a card party and dance at the Congress hotel on Feb. 4. Proceeds will be applied on the $75,000 debt on the gymnasium and library constructed by the Christian brothers.

Frock with Skating Skirt

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Granted that the skating costume fulfills its major rôle on the rinks, its silhouette has been borrowed for smart daytime frocks.

The skirt of this two-piece costume has as much flare as the skating skirt. It begins to develop width at the hipline until, by the time the hem is reached, its gores are wide and the flare plentiful.

With this graceful skirt are two blouses, both provided for by the pattern. You may make either or both of them. One has a plain, high V neckline, short puffed sleeves, and a zipper fastening down the front. It's a brief blouse as to length, but long on chic.

The other blouse is dressier. It has a high and square neckline, stitched to harmonize with the infinitesimal pocket effects on the bodice. The closing is scalloped and adopts buttons for its chic. The sleeves are long.

This costume may be made of silk or woolen, or a combination of the two. Colors may be varied, too, and plaids have their inning.

Style No. 2926 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 inch material for the blouse with scalloped front, and 2⅞ yards of 39 inch fabric for the skirt.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The woman who is mad about perfumes won't have any trouble at all this year in deciding what kind of a Christmas tree she likes best. She'll point immediately to the Christmas tree that is literally hung with perfumes, eleven of them. It's a blue tree, dazzlingly shiny, with a star on top AND lights. It's ornamented in a distinctly new way: With smart little flacons of fine, very popular perfumes.

These trees are in two sizes. The smaller one is a grand gift, but can be used, too, as decoration for dinner table or buffet, supplying a little present for the women present. The large one is most imposing. If you're having a big Christmas party and want something de luxe in the way of atmosphere that will have a special charm for the ladies, make a note of it. It's simply dripping with pretty bottles filled with pretty perfumes.

Don't forget the gift certificates for beauty services. These are soul-satisfying presents of a practical flavor; we can't imagine any woman not liking one. ELEANOR NANGLE.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

One of the most interesting of recent letters to this department comes from a woman in Christopher, Ill., who describes the boiled puddings which her mother used to make. Her mother operated a seaside hotel near Cardiff, South Wales, and was famous for her Christmas plum puddings.

"Mother had a large boiler built in the wall," she says. "We put the puddings into large basins and tied a cloth over each. Several neighbors brought their puddings over to boil at the same time. All day long and part of the night these puddings boiled. It was an exciting time for the children who watched."

We've been unable to find a Slovak recipe for Mrs. M., Chicago, and will be most happy if some one among our readers can furnish it. The recipe, she says, is for "sisky." She says she clipped the recipe from THE TRIBUNE years ago, but it seems to have disappeared from our files.

This recipe for "hasenpfeffer" has been asked for frequently during the last few weeks. It comes from our new booklet, "How to Cook Wild Game" [yours for a 5 cent stamp].

HASENPFEFFER.

Cut a dressed rabbit into pieces for serving. Place in a crock and cover with equal parts of vinegar and water [2 or 3 cups of each]. Add ½ cup sugar, 1 sliced onion, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and 1 teaspoon mixed pickling spices, and allow to stand in a cold place for two days. Drain meat, wipe, and brown well in a fourth cup of hot fat, turning frequently. Gradually add 1 cup of the spiced vinegar mixture in which the rabbit was cured. Cover and simmer until tender, about ½ hour. Make gravy from liquid left in pan.

And here's a Christmas wassail bowl, reprinted by request. The beverage is served hot from a punch bowl. Baked apples are a traditional ingredient of the wassail bowl.

Yuletide Wassail.
[Serves Eight]
6 baked apples
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup sugar
1½ quarts ale or beer
Grated rind of 1 lemon
¾ cup sherry wine

Peel apples, core, and fill centers with sugar. Bake until tender at 350 degrees. Cool. Add spices and sugar to a pint of ale or beer, and heat, but do not boil. Stir occasionally. Add lemon rind, remaining ale or beer, and sherry. Stir occasionally until very hot. Put apples into a punch bowl and pour the hot beverage over them. Serve from bowl.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Bridge, like golf, is a humbling game. Just about the time you think you are getting reasonably good a catastrophe overtakes you. Here's a hand that came up the other day. As the cards lay, there were various avenues of successful play for a small slam, but a foursome, which has set you up as the arbiter, would like to know the percentagewise course, or wherein lies the greater safety, in addition to the proper bidding.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH

SOUTH
♠ K 4
♥ A Q 7
♦ A K J 8 6
♣ A 7 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 diamonds	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 spades	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
6 diamonds	Pass	Pass	Pass

"West led the five of diamonds.

"One player claims that, after the first trick, the ace and king of spades should be led, followed by the spade jack on which South should play a small club, which would bring the small slam home, provided East did not hold four spades to the queen and return the fourth spade. In this way no finesses are taken.

"Another claims that, after one round of trumps, a small club should be led to the queen, for even if East holds the king and returns a club the declarer can play for a spade finesse after going up with the club ace.

"Another claims that the spades and hearts should be virtually ruffed out after the first trick with the hope that the spade queen would fall on the third lead of that suit, thus permitting a club discard on the spade ten.

"And the actual declarer finally admits that, after three rounds of trumps, he led the king of spades and then took the spade finesse, which failed. When his ace of clubs was forced on the next lead he had to surrender a heart trick, even though the heart finesse worked, and he learned the sad lesson that he should have considered the hand more studiously before drawing trumps. Incidentally, had he tried the heart finesse before the spade finesse, he still could have made it this way.

"Yours in humility,
"J. G., New York City."

The bidding was horrible, but, strangely enough, the final contract was an excellent one. South, despite his five-plus honor tricks, did not have an opening two bid, inasmuch as he had six and one-half losing tricks. [In counting a trump suit for a two bid, winners should be counted as though it were a side suit. Thus, in diamonds, South had two and one-half winners in the A K J and one winner in the fifth card.] North's two spade response was all right. South's spade raise was atrocious, with only the K-4 as support. North's three no trump was ghastly. He should have given a strong diamond raise. This, however, was remarkably compensated for by South's assumption that North had very good diamonds, as witnessed by the six diamond bid.

Now for the play. There is something to be said for all suggested lines of play, but analysis reveals that the best plan is to lead a low club toward dummy at the second trick. If the club king goes up [as it actually would in this case] declarer's troubles are virtually over. If the club king lay in East's hand, there still would be several lines of play for the contract, including a possible squeeze. Also, if on a low club lead toward dummy, West ducks, it can be assumed with a fair amount of safety that West does not hold the club king and the club ten can be put in as an attempt to force the king. A heart finesse, of course, is not to be considered, inasmuch as its success would not advance declarer much further toward his goal.

Write your bridge troubles and problems to Ely Culbertson, care of The Tribune, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Glittering Belts Among Best of Christmas Loot

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Glittering baubles labeled belts have suddenly appeared among the best Christmas loot and have started stampedes of shoppers. Lots and lots of good fancy imagination has been lavished on these waistline accents. An otherwise dejected dress can be transformed into something very snappy and dress parade with the right kind of a belt.

Some of these belts are expensive and some are medium priced, but all are worth every penny of the price tag. See the belt of the hour, most appropriately christened because the numerals from one to twelve are appliqued onto the black suede, the Roman numerals being in gleaming gold kidskin.

Other black and gold winners feature fanciful appliques in leaves, scroll and big blocky designs. Nail heads, in either gold or shining silver, decorate other suedes in black, brown, navy, and high colors. Wide barbaric looking corselet belts are laced smartly through three pair of loops directly in front.

Spectacular jeweled belts, wide and resplendent with simulated big chunky jewels, blaze luxuriously against any dull toned dress. Big square cut stones like topaz, sapphires, rubies and emeralds are inset into belts of suede kidskin or velvet. Unusual colors like cerise, chartreuse green, vivid red and old gold are plentiful this year. Many of these high colored belts can be matched with long slip-on gloves.

Another new belt idea is the lether affair in bright red, green beige, navy or black with wide, swanky slots, outlined in gold metal, through which big elongated studs are snapped. Attached to the front is a metal heart and a flat oblong where a name or monogram can be engraved.

Evening belts of blazing bright rhinestones come in narrow and wider widths with decorative buckles. All widths of silver and goldskin are abundant, so are the stunning metal mesh belts to wear on dress or fur coat. Some of the most ingenious belt concoctions of metal and buckles are ready for Christmas shoppers.

PIRATES TRADE TODD, DICKSHOT FOR BEES' MUELLER

ALSO PAY CASH TO BOSTON FOR YOUNG CATCHER

Cards Send Henshaw to Minors.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—The Pittsburgh Pirates' search for a young catcher ended today. The Pirates, who collapsed in the final weeks of the 1938 campaign, traded Al Todd, veteran catcher, and Johnny Dickshot, utility outfielder, for Ray Mueller of the Boston Bees. Pirate officials also said a considerable amount of cash was given to the Bees.

Mueller last season shared the Bees' catching duties with the veteran Al Lopez. He appeared 274 times at bat and had an average of .237. He also was with the Bees in 1937, batting .257. Mueller was born in Pittsburg, Kas., on March 8, 1912. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 175 pounds.

Todd 33 in January.

Todd, who batted .267 last season, came to Pittsburgh in 1936 from the Philadelphia Phillies in the deal which sent Catcher Earl Grace and Pitcher Claude Passeau to the Phillies. He will be 33 years old on Jan. 7. Todd batted .273 with the Pirates in 1936 and .307 the following year.

Dickshot was born in Waukegan, Ill., on Jan. 24, 1912. He is 6 feet one-half inch tall and weighs 195 pounds.

Dickshot played in 29 games in the 1938 season and batted .229. He came to the Pirates from Buffalo of the International league, where he batted .365 in 1936. He never found his stride in two years with the Pirates. His organized baseball career began shortly after leaving Waukegan High school in 1930. He immediately won a regular outfield position with the Dubuque, Ia., team and that season batted .309.

Before turning up in the Bees' camp Mueller obtained minor league experience with the Harrisburg club of the New York-Penn league. In 1934, Mueller batted .325 with Harrisburg. He was farmed out to Knoxville in 1936 and returned to Boston in 1937.

HENSHAW TO MINORS

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Roy Henshaw, the St. Louis Cardinals' small left hand pitcher, once again is headed for the minors. Henshaw today was traded to the Rochester club of the International league for Kenneth Raffensberger, a 21 year old pitcher. Rochester is a Cardinal farm.

Henshaw was on his way to the minors during the 1938 season, but Commissioner K. M. Landis forced the Cardinals to keep the pitcher. Henshaw's 1938 record with the Cards was 5 victories and 11 defeats. Raffensberger won 15 and lost 11 games for Rochester last season.

GIANTS OPTION THREE

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Three New York Giants' players today were sent on option to the club's Jersey City International league farm. They are Pitcher Tom Ferrick; Babe Young, first baseman, who had come up from Richmond, and Glen Stewart, third baseman from Fort Smith.

CUB TRADING STAF RETURNS EMPTY HANDED, HOPEFUL

Talks Up Deals That May Get Results.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs' executive staf—there were six members in addition to Manager Gabby Hartnett—has only a handful of punched train tickets to show it went to New York for the annual National league meeting and returned safely.

But between various varieties of dinners and formal league sessions the delegates representing the 1938 pennant winners were able to force their way through hotel lobbies, thus being able to drop trading seeds where it would be easy for rival clubs to watch the growth.

Some of these seeds may bloom into real swaps, or at least a swap, after the arrival of the year of 1939. At least that is the optimistic view of Clarence Rowland, the Cubs' trade man, who came home yesterday accompanied by Vice President Boots Weber, Secretary Bob Lewis, Press Agent Charley Drake, and Bill Veeck Jr., who has no title. President-Owner P. K. Wrigley will arrive today and Hartnett will not show up until he has filled a few banquet dates in the vicinity of his New England birthplace.

Still After Cardinals.

The optimistic Rowland hasn't given up on either Joe Medwick or Johnny Mize, the two sluggers now the property of the St. Louis Cardinals. More than a year ago Rowland began hounding the Cardinal bosses on the subject of Medwick's sale. He made no headway. During the past summer he added Mize's name to his tune. At the New Orleans baseball gathering last week he again gave it to President Sam Breadon and Generalissimo Branch Rickey. He repeated the act in New York. The Cardinal chiefs continued to say there wasn't a chance on either proposition.

But the Cub bids, one for Medwick and the other for Mize, are reported to be attractive. Money such as the $185,000 the Cubs paid for the weak armed Dizzy Dean last spring is available. The Cubs also have tendered a list of players from which the Cardinals can pick a couple after the check has been written. After the first of the year, which brings with it a new income tax calendar, the Cardinal owners may become interested. At least that is the expectation.

Also Seek Mulcahy.

The Cubs also are awaiting response to another idea planted during the New York session. To capture either Medwick or Mize would help to correct a flaw in the present batting layout commanded by Hartnett, but there still would be a lack of weight in the pitching department. With the idea of cutting down the latter deficiency, the Cubs are aiming at Hugh Mulcahy, the Philly youngster, who doesn't look so hot on paper. He won something like ten while losing twice that number last season but anything can happen to a fellow belonging to a team like the Phils. He gave the Cubs plenty of trouble on various occasions, and that's why they think he has possibilities.

GIANTS TO AIR GAMES.

New York, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Following the lead of the Brooklyn Dodgers, the New York Giants will broadcast their National league baseball games next summer, President Horace G. Stoneham disclosed tonight. Details have not yet been worked out, he said, and will depend largely on the desires of the sponsor.

"We're positively going to broadcast our games," he said. "The rights to our games ought to be worth $150,000 or more. We have had several proposals."

Whether the decision of the Giants will mean the New York Yankees, only remaining club in either major league holding out against radio, will change its policy has not been determined.

Mount Carmel, the defending champion, and St. Michael scored victories in the opening round of the fifth St. George Catholic High school basketball tournament in the St. George gymnasium in Evanston last night. Mount Carmel beat Fenwick, 31 to 23, and St. Michael eliminated De La Salle, 35 to 30.

Mount Carmel's steady play had Fenwick at a disadvantage throughout, the south siders leading, 14 to 8, at the half and 25 to 16 after three-quarters. Ryan was the most effective scorer for Mount Carmel with 11 points.

De La Salle shot its way to a 20 to 11 lead at the half. With Servatius leading the attack, St. Michael came back to take a lead that it never lost. Servatius made four field goals and four free throws.

De La Salle's failure to sink free throws was a large factor in its defeat. It made only two in sixteen attempts. St. Michael made eleven of its points from the free throw line.

The Magdalene.

With bleeding hands she dug from Calvary
A little clod of earth deep-dyed in blood
The day her Love hung dead upon a tree,
And Roman guards kept watch beside the rood.

She kissed the clod until her ashen lips
Were dripping red; then haunting memory
Seemed all her human features to eclipse,
Leaving the softer lines of sanctity.

And when at last she sought her silent cell
She measured time no more by weeks and years,
But by the constant cataract that fell
From her bleached eyes—the torrent of her tears.

And lo, one day they found her body cold,
Stretched on crude boards that served her for a bed,
And crushed against her heart like miser's gold
A crumpled clod of earth stained brownish red.

Twenty points by Dick Lounsbury, Chicago center, and twenty-eight more by Joe Stampf and assorted Maroons gave Chicago a 48 to 11 victory over Armour Tech in the Midway fieldhouse last night.

Before he gave way to a substitute with 7 minutes to go, Lounsbury revolved under Armour's basket for nine goals. A pair of free throws brought his night's work to twenty points.

Stampf, spectacled Maroon sophomore forward, contributed four goals and four free throws.

Armour started with a rush, scoring six points to Chicago's one in the first 4 minutes. Chicago's decided advantage in height and marksmanship began to tell in the fifth minute, however, and the Maroons moved forward steadily to lead 26 to 9 at halftime. Lounsbury scored 11 points in the first half and Stampf scored 10.

Armour made only two points in the second half, on a long basket by Sher. The Maroon defense kept the Tech shooters well out on the floor most of the way.

CLARK LEAVES DETROIT; NAMED COACH OF RAMS

Signs Two Year Contract with Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Earl [Dutch] Clark, one of the outstanding football players of all time, today signed a two year contract as coach of the Cleveland Rams in the National Football league. Simultaneous with his signing, it was announced in Detroit that he had resigned as coach of the Lions several days ago.

Clark succeeds Art Lewis, who took over the Rams in midseason when Hugo Bezdek was discharged and led them to four victories, one over Clark's Lions. Lewis will remain with the Rams as assistant to Clark and line coach.

Terms of Clark's contract were not announced, although it is understood he will receive $10,000 a season, the amount he is said to have been paid as coach of the Lions. His appointment came as a surprise to Cleveland fans, who were under the impression last week's conference between Cliff Battles, former Washington Redskin star, and Ram directors had resulted in agreement.

Starts With Portsmouth.

Clark came into the National league as a member of the Portsmouth Spartans in 1930. Unknown except to his coach, George [Potsy] Clark, the former Colorado college all-around star soon became the ranking quarter back in professional football. He reached his peak as a player after the Spartans had been moved to Detroit and when Potsy Clark resigned in January of last year to become coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Dutch was named to succeed him.

As the youngest coach in the National league last year, he led the Lions to a tie for second place with Green Bay in the western division. This year the Lions came down to the last game needing a victory to tie the Packers for the division championship. Philadelphia whipped them, 21 to 7.

Asked to Stay in Detroit.

Rumors of his resignation were denied at the time of the Philadelphia upset, although it was known that Clark twice during the season had attempted to quit over differences with Owner George A. Richards. Each time he had been persuaded to remain. Efforts were being made to have him reconsider as late as yesterday when he left Detroit to confer with Ram directors.

Lewis, a former Ohio Wesleyan tackle, resigned as assistant coach at his alma mater last spring to become assistant coach and play tackle for the Rams.

Despite his success on elevation to the head coaching job, Ram directors regarded him as too young and inexperienced. He is only 26 years old. They informed him of their intention of giving him some other position and hiring a new coach. Lewis answered that he would remain with Cleveland in another capacity only if Clark were named head coach.

DORAIS OR SUTHERLAND.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Treasurer P. M. Thomas of the Detroit Lions today announced Earl [Dutch] Clark had tendered his resignation several days ago. The resignation was voluntary, Thomas said, and was tendered against the wishes of other club officials.

Clark's resignation again revived rumors that Harry Kipke, former Michigan coach, would take charge of the Lions next fall. Kipke is a Lion director and at present is a salesman for a Detroit firm.

Sources close to Lion directors, however, insisted that Kipke was not a candidate for the job and that Clark's successor would be either Gus Dorais, of the University of Detroit, or Jock Sutherland, whose University of Pittsburgh teams have been outstanding for years. Both are understood to be in communication with Owner George A. Richards, who is at his winter home in Beverly Hills, Cal.

WELSHMAN, OUT ON FEET IN 14TH, SAVED BY BELL

Crowd of 10,443 Sees New York Battle.

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Tommy Farr's record of American ring reverses still is intact. Great Britain's unrecognized heavyweight champion was hammered into his fourth straight defeat tonight in fifteen rounds of dramatic heavyweight fighting in Madison Square Garden by the younger, cruder, unschooled Lou Nova, a husky from Alameda, Cal., who glories in fighting.

Suffering this fourth setback in as many American appearances, Farr experienced perhaps the most punishing beating he has absorbed since he first came to this country. Only by amazing courage and a smattering of generalship, which was in striking contrast to the inexperienced work of his younger foe, did Farr escape the ignominy of his first knockout in an American ring.

Out on Feet in Fourteenth.

Farr was out on his feet through the fourteenth round. The crowd of 10,443, which paid gross receipts of $26,337, saw the strange picture of a boxer being counted over while still erect on his feet.

In the fifteenth round, too, Farr was out on his feet, groggy, practically helpless, fighting instinctively in a counter-assault that was mere camouflage against a youngster who had victory within his grasp—and could not take full advantage of his chance.

Because Nova also was weary he stumbled and floundered in his quest for a knockout almost as much as did Farr in his desire to avert disaster.

Tommy Takes a Whipping.

In fifteen rounds against Joe Louis, in ten rounds against James J. Braddock, and in 15 rounds against Max Baer, Farr did not take the demoralizing strength-sapping beating he took tonight from Nova.

Nova did not knock Farr down, although he came within the proverbial eyelash of scoring a knockout. Inexperienced, lacking in knowledge of ring maneuvers and incapable of adjusting himself to advantageous conditions in his first 15 round fight, Nova gave Farr a systematic beating.

At the finish both men were near exhaustion. If Farr survived those two exciting closing rounds on his experience, Nova survived on sheer nerve. He almost collapsed in his corner after the battle.

Decision Not Unanimous.

The decision was popular with the crowd, but was not unanimous. Referee Eddie Josephs voted the fight a draw, giving each man seven rounds and declaring one even. Judges Joe Lynch and George Kelly voted for Nova, one giving him eight rounds and the other 10.

Nova's thudding blows surprised Farr in the first, the Britisher's steadier attack overcame youth and inexperience in the second and third, and they alternated thereafter, Nova gaining ground until the fourteenth.

Although there was no official knockdown, it seemed for a time in the 14th round as though Farr was on the way down—and out. Nova had appeared completely done at the end of the 13th, but from somewhere, in that next round, he drew on a hidden source of supply to come closer to a kayo over the rugged Briton than either Louis or Baer did in beating him.

Nova Goes to Work.

During the first minute of the round Farr took the lead. Then Nova, although his own left eye was gashed and his arms weighed like lead, started firing. He threw a succession of right and left hand shots to the head and face, and Tommy was badly hurt.

Following up his advantage, Lou belted his rival all over the ring. Finally he caught him in the Briton's own corner and pummeled him unmercifully. How Farr remained standing no one will ever know. His eyes were glazed, his arms hung at his sides. He was helpless—so helpless, in fact, that Referee Josephs pulled Lou away and started counting over Tommy. He reached a count of two, when the bell rang halting the round. His handlers managed to get him on his feet for the final heat, and he pulled through.

LARRY BUHLER SERIOUSLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Lawrence [Larry] Buhler, University of Minnesota full back, suffered severe injuries tonight when an automobile he was driving skidded and crashed into a street car pole.

The 21 year old football star was pinned in the wreckage so tightly it was necessary to use a crow bar to bend the steering wheel and instrument board to extricate him.

At St. Luke's hospital Dr. M. O. Thoreson gave him a good chance to live unless complications set in. The injuries were described as multiple lacerations of the head, chest injuries, a broken nose, and possible internal injuries.

MORTON WHIPS PROVISO, 39-23; WAUKEGAN WINS

La Grange and Hinsdale Fives Triumph.

Waukegan and Morton last night triumphed in two heavyweight basketball games in the Suburban High School league. Waukegan defeated New Trier, 26 to 25, in Winnetka, and Morton won from Proviso, 39 to 23, on Morton's court.

Parker, forward, and Dowd, center, led Morton to its victory over Proviso. Parker collected five baskets and two free throws and Dowd contributed ten points. Graham and Pierce shared individual honors in Waukegan's triumph over New Trier, the former scoring one field goal and six free throws and Pierce getting two baskets and six free throws.

Led by Egbert, who scored four baskets and two free throws, La Grange routed Maine, 41 to 23, in a West Suburban conference heavyweight game in La Grange. In another league contest Hinsdale's heavies, paced by Thomas, forward, defeated Riverside, 38 to 33.

A field goal by Luttrell in the final seconds enabled Thornton to win from Bloom, 38 to 37, in a South Suburban league heavyweight game in Thornton's gymnasium.

Glenbard remained undefeated in the West Suburban league by whipping Downers Grove, 33 to 31, on the latter's court. Olsen dropped a long shot with seconds remaining to play for the winning points. Schmidt of Glenbard scored 19 points.

SMILIN' JACK—SLICING IT THIN

Tip to Hunters: Tennessee Has Ducks Aplenty

BY BOB BECKER.

Wonderful mallard hunting in the Stuttgart, Ark., country; good duck hunting on Reelfoot lake, Tennessee, until the recent full moon; both goose and duck hunting excellent along the Gulf coast. These are some of the reports from shooting areas in the southern zone where the hunters may toss shot at the waterfowl until after Christmas.

When we hunted quail in Tennessee last week, we checked on Reelfoot, the gathering place of thousands of waterfowl every winter. Robert Morris, a resident of Spillway at the south end of the lake, told us that during the full moon hunting had slowed up considerably, for the birds weren't flying much during the day.

Find Many Species of Ducks.

There were ducks of many species on the lake including canvasbacks, Bluebills, teal, ruddy ducks, mallards, and blackjacks.. Lyman Barr of Highland Park, who spent a day on the lake shooting bluebills and blackjacks reports seeing large flocks on the lake with but few ducks working to blinds.

We found our old friends, the jacksnipe, enjoying Tennessee marshes when we hunted quail in the vicinity of Medon and Jackson. The hunters down there pay little or no attention to jacksnipe. So when we heard about scores of jacksnipe in a marsh near by we put some shells in our pockets and hustled over to see what we could do with the little "bog hoppers" that stay in the lowlands.

Snipe Filled Marsh.

The marsh [as Ike Holland our Tennessee guide has told us] truly was filled with snipe. Before we could get our feet into wet ground about 18 jacks flushed from the bog. The trouble was that there were too many of the birds in the marsh for good shooting.

HAWKS, RANGERS MEET FOR 3D TIME; EACH HAS VICTORY

Gottselig Draws Away in Scoring Race.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

It is time to contemplate the New York Rangers, now that the Toronto Maple Leafs have gone away for the second time without being chased as fugitives from a murder rap.

Cajoled, perhaps, by the Hawk press agent before the Leafs came here on Nov. 20, we warned of impending mayhem. The contest turned out a sweet and mild affair which ended 1 to 1.

Thursday night this annotator was en route home from New York and was so afraid the mayhem which had missed on the earlier occasion would show up as nothing less than manslaughter that the smoking car radio carefully was avoided while the Hawks-Leafs' second match was being fought. This one, too, was a tie, 4 to 4, and very spirited, though, according to reports, a very polite function.

They'll Be Gentlemen.

So let us this morning not smoke up any thought of viciousness as preparation is being made to receive the good Rangers in the Stadium tomorrow night.

Let us simply look forward to a brisk, low scoring hocky game between the third place world champs and the Rangers, who presently are tied for second place, though they will have a chance to rise in Toronto tonight. The record of Ranger-Hawk games this year presages such a contest.

On Nov. 17 the Rangers came to town. At that time the Hawks were undefeated. They had beaten the Americans here 6 to 1, the Maple Leafs 2 to 0, the Canadiens 3 to 2 in Montreal and the Canadiens 4 to 3 here. They expected to beat the Rangers. Well, they didn't. The Rangers won, 1 to 0, and looked much stronger than the score indicated.

By Nov. 27, when the Hawks limped into New York, symptoms of their late famous slump had started to develop. On the same trip they had lost to the generally inadequate Red Wings and the night before they had been bumped by the Americans. Things looked bad for the Hawks as they appeared at Madison Square Garden on that Sunday night, Nov. 27. The Hawks won, 1 to 0.

Gottselig Leads Scorers.

Two Hawk players are tops and bottoms on the list of ten leading scorers in the National league. Johnny Gottselig, Hawk left winger, who has been the leader all season appears to be going away. Johnny, by scoring two goals and an assist Thursday night increased his total to 18 points which is five more than the total of Tommy Anderson of the Americans, who is runner up. The elite circle of ten stars includes Joffre Desilets, who has ten points, six goals and four assists.

The list of pacesetters:

	Goals.	Assists.	Points.
Gottselig, Blackhawks	9	9	18
Anderson, Americans	6	7	13
Blake, Canadiens	8	4	12
Wiseman, Americans	4	8	12
Stewart, Americans	5	6	11
Schriner, Americans	5	6	11
Cain, Canadiens	5	6	11
Cowley, Bruins	2	9	11
Haynes, Canadiens	3	8	11
Desilets, Blackhawks	6	4	10

BLIND BROOK TO MEET ARTILLERY TEAM TONIGHT

A triple header, including one intersectional and two Metropolitan league games, will comprise the indoor polo program tonight in the 124th field artillery armory. Each contest will pit a civilian team against a military trio, with Leon Mandel's Rangers meeting the 122d field artillery in the opener, Herb Lorber's Chicago Ramblers taking on Fort Sheridan in the second game, and Blind Brook of New York opposing the 124th field artillery of Chicago in the evening's windup.

Blind Brook will be at full strength tonight for the victory it needs to remain in the series. The 124th field artillery took the first game last week, 14 to 5.

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, and John Henry Lewis today signed contracts to battle fifteen rounds in Madison Square Garden Jan. 25. The original date of the bout was Jan. 27, but it was moved up because it conflicted with another program.

Kankakee Will Honor Bergner, Stella Dec. 27

Kankakee will honor two of its foremost young sons at a community banquet on Dec. 27. They are Harry Stella and Allen Bergner, the two Kankakee boys who recently were elected 1939 captains of the football teams of the United States Military and Naval academies.

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, will be toastmaster for the banquet, at which both Stella and Bergner will be presented with gold watches. Other speakers will include Gen. Robert Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck and company; Admiral Haynes Ellis, commandant of the Great Lakes Naval station; Senator-elect Scott Lucas of Havana; Elmer Layden, athletic director and head coach of Notre Dame, and Representative Jessie Sumner of Milford.

A number of civic minded citizens of Kankakee and Chicago are endeavoring to bring the Army-Navy football game to Chicago next fall. The service classic has been played here only once, in 1926, when the two teams battled to a 21-21 tie on Soldiers' field.

Yesterday a committee of prominent Chicagoans prepared a set of resolutions which they plan to forward to President Roosevelt in an effort to have the 1939 game, already scheduled to be played in the Philadelphia municipal stadium, transferred to Chicago. No members of the committee, however, have suggested any plan for underwriting the expenses of a game played in Chicago. These, it is estimated, would be approximately $500,000.

WARNER FAVORS OPEN FINANCIAL AID FOR ATHLETES

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 16.—(AP)—After forty-four years of football coaching, Glenn Scobey Warner has come to the conclusion it would be a "fine thing" if athletes could be given financial assistance, openly and above board.

He explained today, however, he refused to be the Moses who would try to lead the gridiron forces out of the wilderness.

"I'm tired of sticking my neck out for opponents to take a crack at," drawled Pop, who is wintering at his Palo Alto home, after completing his sixth year at Temple university.

"The idea of subsidizing football players openly, instead of beating around the bush, is as old as the hills," he said.

"Such matters usually eventually work out the way the public feels about them. The popular opinion now seems to be that the boys ought to be helped. If something on a national or sectional scale could be worked out I think it would be a fine thing.

Football Has Its Needy.

"We all know athletes are being helped out now in various ways. Some receive assistance through the alumni. Some schools give scholarships of varying value. Others use disbursements from the athletic fund.

"You can figure this problem from top to bottom, stand it on its head or run it through a meat grinder and get the same answer—football always has had and alway will have its quota of players who need financial assistance. They most always get it. That's why the idea of an agreement as universal as possible would appeal to me."

SOUTH LETS DOWN BARS

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association moved today to eliminate "hypocrisy" in its eligibility rules by letting down the bars and placing its chief aim on the maintenance of ideal scholastic standards.

Without debate, the thirty-six member athletic organization voted unanimously to strike from its bylaws a provision that an athlete "must not receive any gift, remuneration, or pay for his athletic services."

The association also loosened its regulations regarding eligibility of athletes who previously were barred from all collegiate sports if they had participated in professional baseball. An amendment adopted read:

"A student who has played baseball in any league recognized by the national baseball commission shall not be eligible to participate in college baseball." It was explained that a student might play professional baseball and participate in all other sports.

COURT REMANDS SHAUGHNESSY'S CONTRACT SUIT

New Orleans, La., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Clark Shaughnessy, the University of Chicago's head football coach, today won another point in his fight to collect the $68,067.12 he claims is due him for coaching at New Orleans' Loyola university.

The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals today reversed a previous ruling against Shaughnessy and ordered the case remanded for further proceedings. The previous decision, made by the federal District court, had dismissed Shaughnessy's suit against B. S. D'Antoni, New Orleans and Loyola athletic backer, with whom the former said he had negotiated a ten year contract in 1927.

SPANISH REBELS DIVIDED ON PLAN TO RESTORE KING

Falangists Want Ruler to Pledge Fascism.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Divided opinion in rebel Spain was reported today on the possibility of a restored monarchy. This possibility was raised yesterday when the Spanish rebels, in a decree, acted to restore to former King Alfonso XIII. of Spain his citizenship rights and his wealth.

The differences were reported to have developed in connection with a visit which a delegation is expected to pay to the exiled monarch and his son Juan in Rome.

News of this visit came from Morocco, in a report which indicated that the mission was composed mostly of Falangists. These supporters of Gen. Francisco Franco and the Spanish rebels are Fascists, who favor totalitarianism for Spain—a government similar to that of the Italian Fascists under Premier Mussolini.

Agree to Juan—Conditionally.

The Morocco report said the mission proposed to support the restoration of the house of Bourbon in Spain, in the person of Prince Juan. It would be prepared to do so, however, only on condition that Juan agree to a régime patterned after the Falangists' pro-Fascist policy of "vertical syndicalism," it was said.

A year ago it was reported that the varied pro-monarchist elements of the Spanish rebel régime would favor the restoration of Juan. Both the Carlists, a monarchist group which for years supported a rival of the Bourbon house, and the pro-Alfonso elements were said to be agreeable to Juan's taking the throne.

The reported new condition laid down by the Falangists, however, is likely to meet opposition from these groups, it was reported.

Alfonso Is Pleased.

From Rome came assertions that former King Alfonso expressed "natural pleasure" when informed of the action taken yesterday by the rebel régime in his former kingdom. It was not indicated, however, that he would make plans for an immediate return.

He has been out of Spain since April, 1931, when he left the throne in the early days of the Spanish republic. The former king is 52 years old. Prince Juan is 25.

FRENCH GENERAL WEEPS AS CZECH ALLIANCE ENDS

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Gen. Ludwig Louis Eugen Faucher, chief of the French military mission in Prague, left for France today. This brought to an end a twenty year old military understanding between Czecho-Slovakia and France. Czecho-Slovakia was a main link in France's "iron ring around Germany."

With tears in his eyes, Gen. Faucher kissed the Czecho-Slovak flag when he departed. At the station were Defense Minister General Jan Syrovy and army and civic officials.

Gen. Faucher on Sept. 23, during the crisis leading to the cession of the Sudetenland to Germany, offered his services to the Czecho-Slovak government in case war developed. At the same time he requested the French government to release him from the army.

He was reported to have told Eduard Benes, then president, that he was "ashamed" of France's part in the British-French pressure on Czecho-Slovakia. Gen. Faucher later withdrew his application and remained in the French army.

HEARST PAPERS MEET GUILD IN STRIKE PARLEY

Representatives of the Chicago Newspaper guild and the publishers of the Chicago Evening American and the Chicago Herald and Examiner met yesterday to discuss settlement of a strike that the guild, a C. I. O. affiliate, called at the Hearst plant Dec. 4. The meeting was held in the offices of the Illinois state department of labor at 205 West Wacker drive.

After the meeting, the management issued a statement asserting that "very many" strikers had returned and had been put back to work without discrimination. The publishers said further that many of the jobs on the two papers had been filled, some had been found unnecessary and that for remaining vacant jobs they were willing to rehire those who applied for work.

A guild statement reported that the publishers said they would deal with striking employés only on an individual basis and not collectively. No further meeting date was set.

D. R. ANDERSON FUNERAL TODAY; JOLIET LAWYER

The funeral of D. R. Anderson, Joliet attorney for thirty-three years and dean of the Will county bar, will be held at 2 p. m. today in the chapel at 201 Clinton street, Joliet. He died Wednesday in the Passavant hospital at the age of 73. Mr. Anderson lived at 509 Western avenue, Joliet.

Despite the loss of an arm and a leg in a mine accident, Attorney Anderson worked his way through school, receiving his law degree at the University of Michigan. He was a former law partner of Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle and had served as Grundy county superintendent of schools.

His widow, Elva, three brothers, and three sisters survive.

G. L. OHRSTROM CHARGED WITH FRAUD BY SEC

Sweet's Steel Stock Sale Involved.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., Inc., securities dealers, were accused today by the Securities and Exchange commission of fraud and making false statements in a registration statement. The commission scheduled a hearing for Feb. 1 to determine whether the firm's broker-dealer license should be suspended.

George Lewis Ohrstrom, president of the company, was one of Wall street's youngest and most spectacular investment bankers in the heyday before the depression. He founded his firm in 1926, at the age of 32, and by 1930 had financed the construction of the seventy story $20,000,000 Manhattan company building at 40 Wall street. He is still chairman of the company which operates the building.

Ohrstrom's firm has branches in Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, and Newark, N. J.

Steel Shares Involved.

The SEC's charges against the company dealt with its activities in stock of the Sweet's Steel company. Ohrstrom failed to disclose its participation in an offering of Sweet's Steel common stock made in 1937, according to the SEC.

By "rigging" the over-the-counter market for the stock, the Ohrstrom firm was able to sell it to the public at artificial prices established on the Chicago Board of Trade, the SEC alleged.

It also charged that Ohrstrom & Co. violated regulations of the federal reserve board by extending credit in excess of the legal limit and by permitting cash withdrawals by customers whose accounts were restricted.

Statement False, Says SEC.

Ohrstrom's registration statement for Sweet's Steel stock listed Amott, Baker & Co. of New York as the sole principal underwriter, "whereas in truth and in fact, as George L. Ohrstrom well knew, Amott, Baker & Co. was not the sole principal underwriter," the SEC complaint read. Amott, Baker was not named in the commission's charges.

According to the SEC, the Ohrstrom firm took over an option to acquire 72 per cent of Sweet's Steel common stock from one J. F. A. Comstedt, who acted as a "dummy." Ohrstrom then bought about 92,000 shares at $4 a share and resold them to Amott, Baker & Co. for $5.25, the commission said. It was charged that Amott-Baker was only a "front" for the Ohrstrom firm, which was held to be the actual underwriter when the stock was later offered publicly.

Big Commission Alleged.

Ohrstrom's registration statement, the commission asserted, estimated that underwriters of the Sweet's stock would receive 33⅓ per cent of the price in commissions and discounts, but actually these concessions amounted to 75 per cent.

Ohrstrom was prominent in big utility financing deals in the late '20s and was particularly active in promoting the natural gas industry. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1918. He joined P. W. Chapman & Co., distributors of securities, and shortly stepped out to form his own investment banking firm.

YALE & TOWNE OBSERVES 70TH ANNIVERSARY

Stamford, Conn., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—The Yale & Towne Manufacturing company, founded in December, 1868, tonight began a two day celebration of its 70th anniversary. It wa sformed by Linus Yale Jr. and Henry R. Towne to manufacture locks.

A large audience, including about 500 men employed by the company for 25 years or more—one of them for 67 years—heard talks by W. Gibson Carey Jr., president of the company, and public officials.

From a small shop with 40 men the company has grown to be one of the largest manufacturers of locks, builders' hardware, electric hoists, industrial trucks, pumps, chain hoists, and door closers in the world. It has two plants in Chicago and one in North Chicago.

Reo President Out; Brother Becomes Boss

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Directors of the Reo Motor Car company today removed Rowland Campbell as president and general manager. He is former operator of a chain of midwest stores who gained control of the company late last summer.

The action came in the midst of another phase of a year-long fight between stockholders' factions for control of the company, one of the oldest in the automobile industry. The Reo plant closed yesterday.

Displaced Donald Bates.

Last summer Campbell, after an intensive proxy fight, displaced Donald E. Bates, veteran president of the company to its former important position in the motor truck field. Campbell was made president and general manager at a board meeting Sept. 28.

The filing of a petition by twenty stockholders in the Ingham county [Lansing] court Monday asking appointment of a receiver for the company revealed that Campbell's brother Thomas, a New York attorney, had been given charge of the company. He has the titles of chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

Demotes Chief Engineer.

The board today also demoted Howard Flogus, former engineer for General Motors corporation, from his post as chief engineer, but retained him in the Reo employ.

A few hours before the board meeting, Rowland Campbell issued a public statement declaring that "eastern directors" had assumed charge of the company and that the "Michigan directors" had resigned. He said the present board was composed of Thomas Campbell, John B. Moore, J. P. Smith, P. W. Bradley, and George Stone, all of New York City, and himself. In that statement, he asserted he had been "exiled" by the board to spend two months visiting branch offices and dealers.

BONUS GRANTED TO EMPLOYES OF LIFE SAVERS CO.

A $65,000 bonus was distributed among employés of the Life Savers corporation yesterday at a Christmas party held in the company's plant at Port Chester, N. Y. The party was in celebration of the candy concern's twenty-sixth anniversary.

The Sunshine Mining company, Wallace, Idaho, announced a Christmas bonus totaling about $40,000, which will be shared by the silver producer's 550 employés. Each worker will receive 4 per cent of his 1938 earnings. Last year a 5 per cent distribution was made, and in 1936 the distribution was 3 per cent.

Glossary of Oil Terms—2.

Yesterday we gave a number of common terms in the oil field worker's language. Today we continue the glossary:

Spudding—Breaking the earth's surface to start a hole to test for oil.

Kelly—A square end of pipe which fits into the rotary table and is the principal point of contact and power in establishing the rotation of the drill pipe and bit.

Drilling In—Penetrating the producing layer within the earth with tools.

Swab—A device with a series of rubber cups which is run into the hole to lift the fluid, or oil, in order to clear the hole. This is similar to bailing, but is used only when there is oil or light drilling fluid in the hole.

Doodlebug—Term applied to unorthodox methods of working geology; usually applied to "oil finders," users of twigs, trick radio devices, magnets, etc., for finding oil. The term is applied to both the instrument and the user.

Cores — Samples of formations which are recovered with special devices so that the specimens are in large pieces representing undisturbed rock from depth at which it is cut.

PROBE REVEALS FOREIGN PIRACY OF U. S. PATENTS

Congress Is Blamed by Glass Interests.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Failure of congress to protect American developers of new processes from foreign "piracy" made it necessary for the Owens-Corning Fiberglas corporation to exchange its valuable patent information with foreign interests. This was brought out this afternoon at the final session of the monopoly committee's hearings on the glass container phase of the investigation.

The last witness, Charles B. Belknap, executive vice president of the Owens-Illinois Glass company and a director of Owens-Corning Fiberglas corporation, brought the observation from Senator O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], committee chairman, that the glass interests "regulate foreign as well as domestic commerce."

Raises New Question.

The chairman told reporters the question may be asked whether the interchange of these valuable patent ideas with foreign interests is desirable, and whether congress may not now provide the necessary protection.

Belknap testified that the Owens-Corning Fiberglas patents were involved in cross-licensing agreements with interest in Holland, Italy, France, and Scotland. He pointed out that while the American concern retained rights for the United States, Canada, and Mexico, a Dutch license had exclusive rights to grant licenses for use of the processes in South America.

He was asked by Hugh B. Cox, special assistant to the attorney general, whether these contracts did not amount to "a private tarif system." The witness declined to accept that interpretation. He declared that in the absence of adequate legal protection against the foreign companies, his corporation had considered it "a duty" to make the licensing contracts.

Controls Output and Prices.

O'Mahoney summarized the testimony in a statement that the container group appeared to be controling production, prices, the entrance of new manufacturers into the industry, and division of sales areas geographically. Possibly the group was using the patent grant so as to "obscure" its constitutional purpose of promoting the arts and sciences, he said.

He took occasion, however, to compliment members of the industry on "the candid quality of the testimony we have heard."

Taking no position in the matter, the chairman said the testimony raised the question whether patentees should be allowed to use their patent "monopoly to restrict production and price; whether congress should allow patents to be issued on basic processes many years after such processes have been actually used.

Extremes Are Shown.

Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of enforcing the anti-trust laws, said that the glass container industry and the automobile industry had been used in the hearings by the department of justice only to show extremes of aggressive and nonaggressive uses of the patent system.

Government investigators today produced figures to show that the Hartford-Empire company of Hartford, Conn., which holds essential patents for the production of glass containers, received last year a net return of 67.77 per cent on the capital employed in its operations. These figures were described by a company official as substantially correct.

The 67.77 per cent figure was based only on capital invested in operations and did not take into account more than $2,000,000 invested by the company in marketable securities. The company's net income on its total capital of $5,458,717 was $1,934,120.28 in 1937, a return of 35.43 per cent. The department computed the company's average return on operating capital at 9.99 per cent from 1912 to 1937.

Coal Commission Postpones Opening of Cost Reports

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—(AP)—The bituminous coal commission postponed today until "a date to be later designated" opening of basic cost reports of coal producers for public inspection. The action was taken under a court order directing the commission to withhold opening the reports pending an appeal to the United States Supreme court, by companies which sought unsuccessfully in the United States district court to restrain the commission from revealing cost figures. The Utah Fuel company has announced intentions to appeal to the Supreme court.

Gt. Western Road Orders $300,000 Worth of Rail

The Chicago Great Western railroad yesterday placed an order for about $300,000 worth of rail and fastenings with the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation. The Norfolk & Western placed orders for 600 steel box cars. Of the order 500 for standard 40 foot cars went to Pressed Steel Car company and 100 of 50 foot length to Greenville Steel Car company.

JAPANESE AMAZED, RESENTFUL OVER U. S. CREDIT TO CHINESE

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 16.—News that the Export-Import bank had granted China a credit of $25,000,000 was received in Japanese diplomatic and military circles today first with a feeling of incredulity and then with amazed resentment.

This credit will not be instrumental in ironing out many serious Japanese-American differences, it was said. Instead it is expected to stiffen Japanese opposition to American protests against the Yangtze river trade restrictions.

The Japanese say that American credit sources must realize that credits to China will only serve to prolong Chiang Kai-shek's campaign of resistance, and that Japan is entitled to regard such financial accommodation as a distinctly unfriendly act to Japan.

It is said that every month's prolongation of the war puts a further severe strain on Japan's own economic resources.

CHICAGO STORE SALES HELPED BY YULE BUYING

Christmas buying bolstered department store sales in Chicago during the week ended Dec. 10, the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago indicated yesterday.

The turnover last week declined 4.6 per cent below the volume for the comparative week in 1937. However, the drop from the year ago level was not as sharp as that made in the week ended Dec. 3, when the decline was 8.8 per cent.

For the entire nation, department store sales declined 2 per cent, compared with those of the similar week in 1937, the federal reserve board stated. In the preceding week the drop was the same.

The New York district sales slumped 5 per cent, which was next to the largest decrease for the week. The Chicago area volume slipped 2.7 per cent. Sales in the Dallas, Tex., section dropped 6 per cent, the largest decline for any area during the week.

REPORT ILLINOIS LIGHT, GAS RATES CUT $5,622,000

The Illinois commerce ordered utility rate reductions in 1938 which will save customers $5,622,000 annually, Chairman James M. Slattery said yesterday in his annual report to Gov. Horner. The largest saving was for electricity users who will pay an estimated $2,694,400 less a year because of the reductions. Telephone users will save $2,683,000 annually and gas customers $231,259.

The company making the biggest reduction was the Illinois Bell Telephone company. The cut, it is estimated, will be $2,650,000 a year.

The commission in the last year has had 1,527 cases come before it. It granted forty-eight authorizations for stock and bond issues totaling $469,687,212 compared with $138,396,626 a year previous. The chief financing was in the refunding operations of the Commonwealth Edison company, which was granted four authorizations totalling $347,358,065.

Business Bits

The nominating committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce has voted to retain Oscar G. Mayer, packer, as president of the group for 1939. It also named C. W. Berquist, public relations superintendent for the Hawthorne works of Western Electric, to succeed F. B. Ernst as the vice president of civic affairs; John L. Clarkson, insurance underwriter, as general secretary, and Frank A. Hecht, former manufacturer, as a director. Other directors and officers were renominated. Elections will be held in January.

F. L. C. Bond, general manager of the central region of the Grand Trunk Western railroad, has been appointed vice president and general manager, to succeed C. G. Bowker, who held the office since 1932. Bowker will retire Dec. 31 after more than fifty years of railroading.

Bert O. Bay, former executive vice president of the Northern Natural Gas company, has been elected president of the utility to succeed Frank H. Brooks, who will retire Jan. 1.

North Shore's Rally from Its Strike Is Slow

The Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad is making slow progress in winning back passengers which it lost to competitors as a result of its recent strike, officials of the electric road disclosed yesterday. Employés of the road walked out on Aug. 16 because of a proposed wage cut, and returned to work on Oct. 6.

Passenger revenues obtained from the limited train service between Chicago, Waukegan and other points north to Milwaukee in November showed a decline of 21.45 per cent from November, 1937. In the period Oct. 6 to Oct. 31 the decline from 1937 was 31.7 per cent.

Revenues obtained from "other interurban business," which includes commuter business, in November showed a decline of 16.57 per cent from November, 1937. For the October period the decline was 23.4 per cent.

Operates at Loss.

From Oct. 6 to Nov. 30 revenues obtained from the limited train service showed a decline of 25.6 per cent from the corresponding 1937 period. Revenues from the interurban business, including commuter, declined 19.3 per cent.

During the period Oct. 6 to Nov. 3 the road was operated at a loss of $35,624 before provision for depreciation of property.

Officials of the road said that the freight business in November seemed to be approaching normal. Figures covering the freight operations have not yet been completed.

Weather is Factor.

Although the poor showing in the passenger business is laid largely to the loss of riders to competitors, the good weather is blamed to a lesser extent for some of the loss. Last year at this time weather was unfavorable, causing fewer persons to drive autos between the cities on the road's lines.

As a result of the reduced number of passengers using the road, officials said that some cars had been taken off, thereby reducing the number of workers However, all the trains on the schedule in effect before the strike are being operated. Officials hope that the campaign now being conducted among citizens of north shore towns on behalf of the road may have a favorable effect.

SOUTH. PACIFIC'S CHAIRMAN WILL RETIRE IN 1939

Hale Holden announced yesterday that he will retire as chairman of the board of the Southern Pacific company next year on reaching the age of 70. He will retire under the company's pension plan age limit. The office of chairman will be discontinued and the duties consolidated with those of the president. A. B. McDonald is president.

Holden is one of the best known figures in the railroad world. He has held his position with the Southern Pacific for ten years. Prior to that he was president of the Burlington railroad.

The road also announced that John G. Walsh, former treasurer of the Erie railroad, has become vice president of the Southern Pacific in charge of finances. His headquarters will be in New York.

Zander to Join Chicago Federal Home Loan Bank

Henry G. Zander Jr., realtor, yesterday was appointed public interest director and vice chairman of the board of directors of the Federal Home Loan bank of Chicago. He was formerly Illinois state manager of the Home Owners Loan corporation, resigning on Aug. 1, 1937, to reënter the real estate business. The late Henry G. Zander Sr., his father, was chairman of the board of directors of the Federal Home Loan bank. His place has not yet been filled.

WEEK'S AUTO OUTPUT SETS NEW 1938 HIGH; TOTAL 102,905 UNITS

Automobile production in the United States and Canada this week set a new high total for the year of 102,905 units, Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., estimated yesterday. The total last week was 100,705 and the total in the corresponding 1937 week was 82,025.

Ward's said that sentiment throughout the automobile industry indicated that the lag in production and sales during the fortcoming winter weeks will be less than seasonal.

The Hudson Motor Car company reported that retail sales in the week ended Dec. 10 were substantially ahead of sales in the like 1937 period. William R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales, said the gain was the eleventh consecutive increase over the corresponding 1937 week.

Sales of Oldsmobile sixes and eights in the first ten days of December totaled 5,077 units, the second largest total for the period in the history of the company.

HUTCHINS SILENT ON QUITTING N. Y. EXCHANGE POST

Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, refused last night to confirm or deny reports that he was resigning as public trustee on the board of governors of the New York Stock exchange.

"I think that any statement in regard to a member of the board should come from the president of the exchange," he said.

He would not comment on the report that his disagreement with the board resulted from its attitude toward further action in the Richard Whitney fraud case.

"It's up to Mr. Martin to do the talking," he said, referring to William Martin, head of the stock exchange.

In New York Martin could not be reached.

Canada's November Exports to U. S. $4,295,872 Higher

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Canada's exports to the United States in November totaled $35,584,371, the dominion bureau of statistics reported today. This is an increase of $4,295,872 compared with $31,288,499 in November, 1937.

Gay Lobbyist Seeks to Buy Airplane Firm

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Bernard B. Robinson, "social lobbyist" in 1936 for the Associated Gas and Electric company, has offered $200,000 for the assets of the Kinner Airplane and Motor Corporation, Ltd., it was revealed here today. Earl Herring, trustee for the corporation, recently announced a $200,000 offer had been made for the company's assets, but the identity of the prospective purchaser was not disclosed until today.

Bernard B. Robinson.

Robinson's extensive questioning by a congressional committee for his lobbying activities against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill in 1935 revealed amusing insights into the "work" of a Washington lobbyist.

Associated With Hopson.

Robinson was closely associated with Howard C. Hopson, former dominant figure in the Associated Gas and Electric system, and was a partner in the investment house of B. B. Robinson & Co. of Los Angeles and Chicago.

Robinson's offer, which excludes about $25,000 in cash and accounts receivable, became known with a request today for a court order to make possible a sale of the Kinner assets. A hearing will be held before United States District Judge Harry A. Holiber on Jan. 4 on the trustee's petition. The company, with headquarters in Glendale, Cal., is in reorganization under Section 77B of the federal bankruptcy act.

Robinson, who lives in Reno, Nev., maintains an office at 39 South La Salle street, Chicago.

Flies High in Washington.

Before the congressional committee investigating lobbyist activities against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, Robinson told how he crashed Washington social and political circles with the aid of a charming smile and an unlimited expense account. He revealed that by staging cocktail parties, gay dinners, and impromptu gatherings at which liquor flowed freely in his hotel suite, he had an imposing list of friends in a few weeks.

Robinson testified he spent $7,200 in the five months he was in Washington and that most of his expenses were paid by the Associated Gas system, since he was acting for Hopson, who then headed the system.

Many senators and representatives were included among the persons Robinson interviewed in connection with his attempt to learn the governmental attitude toward the utility bill.

BETHLEHEM GETS FEDERAL AWARD FOR CARGO SHIPS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—(AP)—The maritime commission approved today a $9,654,000 bid by the Bethlehem Steel company for the construction of three combination passenger-cargo vessels.

The ships will be built for the Mississippi Shipping company [Delta Line] of New Orleans. They will be constructed at Bethlehem's plant at Sparrows Point, Md.

The commission said the vessels, costing $3,218,000 each, will be among the finest of their class afloat. They will be 490 feet long with a 65 foot beam, have a speed of 16½ knots, and accommodations for 63 passengers each.

TVA CONTROLER RAPS FEDERAL ACCOUNTANTS

Office Incompetent, Says Kohler.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Tennessee Valley authority turned loose a flood of acrid words today against another agency of the federal government—the general accounting office.

Replying to testimony of accounting office auditors before the congressional committee investigating TVA, E. L. Kohler, the TVA controler, accused the office of incompetency, irresponsibility, and inaccuracy. Spokesmen for the accounting office had accused TVA of obstructing efforts to audit its accounts.

"If interference must still be alleged," Kohler told the committee, "let the tables be turned. The controler general has consistently and insistently hampered and obstructed the proper and reasonable fiscal administration of the authority."

Assails Former Controler.

Mentioning names freely, he assailed former Controler General J. R. McCarl, Acting Controler General T. N. Elliott, and a number of subordinates.

At one point, obviously referring to McCarl, he said the controler general "regards himself not as an accountant, but as a glorified watch dog of the treasury." He said he had surrounded himself with a "narrow-visioned legal staf that recognizes no superior except a decision of the supreme court directly in point."

He said the accounting office had made no "real audit," but had presented a "disorderly miscellany." Most of the objections to TVA accounting practices resulted from "superficial observations that would not have been raised by a professional auditor," he said.

Methods Had Been Careless.

Kohler said he had joined TVA in May, 1938, after 25 years of accounting practice in New York and Chicago. He conceded that TVA methods had been "careless" in the past, but said that this "attitude had been corrected."

Besides his testimony about the accounting office, Kohler also produced a mass of financial statistics on TVA. These showed that the agency lost $310,171 on its power activity in the fiscal year ended June 30.

A preliminary financial statement of the authority's entire operations, showed a deficit of $748,664 in the five years the authority has been selling electricity. The statement said total revenue was $2,355,271 in the 1938 fiscal year, and $6,645,447 for the five-year period. Direct expenses for the 1938 fiscal year were $2,279,571 which left income of $75,700 before allocation of common expenses. For the five year period this income was $405,217.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 16.—The reaction that set in on the stock market on Thursday gathered momentum today, with the result the list closed irregularly lower. Sporadic attempts to rekindle the recent buying enthusiasm failed. The majority of changes were fractional.

Trading fell off from that of the two preceding sessions. Today's total was around 1,147,240 shares. Altogether, 870 issues were traded, with 481 declining, 201 advancing, and 188 closing unchanged.

The break of 4⅝ points in Loew's both common and preferred shares was accounted a somewhat disturbing influence on the general list. Failing conclusive reason, the pressure on the shares—particularly the common—was attributed largely to the stockholders' suit charging payment of exhorbitant salaries to certain officers. Other amusement shares also were under pressure. Paramount lost ½ point on the largest volume of the day. Twentieth Century-Fox sagged nearly 1 point.

Steels and motors were forerunners on the downside. United States Steel slumped 1⅝ points. Bethlehem, Republic, Chrysler, General Motors, and Greyhound slipped fractionally.

Aviations bucked the trend for a brief period. Douglas, Sperry, United Aircraft, and Glenn Martin showed prominent for a time, but they backed away to close fractionally lower.

Coppers, rubbers, oils, and heavy equipment shares were hesitant. Fractional declines were the order.

A number of power and light shares moved counter to the general tendency.

Most rails turned lower despite some highly favorable October returns.

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Mixed trends ruled the bond market today as the domestic list, led by the rails, moved lower and better demand for foreign dollar issues enabled many to close at fractionally higher prices.

The recent buying splurge in carrier loans, apparently induced by better business prospects, waned and profit takers forced most issues to yield a portion of the week's gains. The decline in the railroad group set back some issues a point or more. In the first transaction of the year Milwaukee State Line 3½s sold at 32, off 25 points. U. S. government issues were quiet and narrow.

Chicago Stocks.

Declines were general among Chicago stocks yesterday. Sixty-two of the 121 issues traded finished lower, and the Tribune average of 20 stocks closed at 11.00, off 0.20. A total of 48,100 shares changed hands, in addition to 19,900 Commonwealth Edison rights.

Volume leaders were irregular. Commonwealth Edison common dropped ¼ to 26¾. Swift International slipped ¼ to 27⅜, Aviation and Transportation was off ¼ at 3⅛, Northwest Bancorporation dropped ⅜ to 6½, and General Motors was off ½ at 50⅛.

Bendix Aviation finished at 25⅛, up ⅜, and Middle West was up ⅛ at 6⅝. Midland United and Chicago corporation common were unchanged.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks sagged $2 to $3 a share yesterday in sluggish trading, dealers reported. Chicago Title and Trust stock declined $2 to $140 bid, $144 asked and First National shares lost the same amount to close at $223 bid, $227 asked. A decline of $3 occurred in shares of the Harris Trust and Savings bank to $292 bid, $302 asked. Other leading bank stocks were unchanged.

CORN DECLINES; DEMAND SLOWER FOR CASH GRAIN

Corn prices were on the downgrade yesterday. Selling was induced by reports of a slow demand for cash grain and lack of export business. Although there was a moderate rally from the low point, futures closed with losses of ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel. The December delivery led the decline.

Country elevator operators were reported yesterday to be consigning larger amounts of cash corn to Chicago to be sold in the sample market. The increased receipts met with a slow demand and the damper cars of grain sold at a decline of ⅛ to ¾ cent a bushel relative to the December future. No export sales were reported.

Commission houses bought May corn at 52 cents a bushel in the early trading, but the demand was not sustained and the market eased quickly.

World wheat markets showed an easy undertone yesterday. Futures on the Chicago Board of Trade closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower. Liverpool prices were ⅛ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower.

SOUTHEAST RAIL HEADS VOTE TO CUT BASIC FARE

Seek to Regain Revenues Lost to Competitors.

Presidents of the southeastern railroads voted yesterday to reduce the basic passenger fare for coach travel to 1½ cents a mile. The present rate is 2 cents a mile. It is expected that the reduced fare will go into effect in January.

The southeastern railroads were the first to try to regain passenger revenues lost to competitors on the highways by slashing their fares. For many years the basic rate in passenger coaches was 3.6 cents a mile—a rate which caused the transfer of a large part of the railroad business to the highways.

Fare Boost Cuts Traffic.

These roads cut their basic fare to 1½ cents a mile but later boosted it to 2 cents a mile in an effort to offset the effects of rising costs and decline volume of revenues. It was found that the tendency after the increase went into effect was to drive passengers back to the highway competitors.

Reports from New York yesterday told of a growing movement on the part of the eastern roads to reduce the 2½ cent a mile basic fare for coach travel, which has been in effect since July 25. Since the rate was boosted to 2½ cents from 2 cents the passenger revenues have declined, blasting the hopes of the managements for a boost in revenues to offset mounting operating costs.

Eastern Roads Delay Cut.

The eastern roads were the last to try the experiment of fare reductions as a means of bringing back travel to the rail carriers. They put the 2 cent rate into effect on June 1, 1936, long after the southern and western roads had found that the lower fares raised the travel volume.

The western roads have had their present basic passenger fare of 2 cents a mile in effect since Dec. 1, 1933. A proposal to boost the rate, made last July, was turned down by the presidents.

Authority was granted the eastern roads yesterday by the interstate commerce commission to adjust Pullman fares downward to stimulate travel to the New York World's Fair. The adjustments, which will become effective April 23, will enable the eastern lines to put into effect a sliding scale, based on the distance from New York.

Joint Tax Returns.

Investors' Guide: Your articles on income tax provisions are proving very enlightening to me. In this connection, I should like to learn the proper procedure in figuring capital gains and losses where the question of a joint return for the husband and wife is involved. When a joint income tax return is filed, may the wife deduct losses on stocks she has sold from gains made by the husband on stocks he has sold, or vice versa, if she happens to be a better speculator than her husband? Or are separate schedules necessary and the transactions of each treated individually? How do you decide when to file a joint return, anyway?—L. P.

Answer: When a husband and wife file a joint tax return, all of their combined income is treated as coming from one individual. It is immaterial whether a particular profit on the sale of stocks was made by Mr. or Mrs.—it all goes into the one account.

In some cases, however, it may be advantageous to file separate returns instead of a joint return for income taxes. When combined income [including net capital gains or losses] of the husband and wife is large enough to place them in the upper surtax brackets, it is better to file separate returns. If the income is separated into two accounts, the total surtax to be paid will be smaller than if the total income for both husband and wife is lumped in one account.

As you probably know, a married man is allowed a personal exemption of $2,500 in figuring his taxable income. If he and his wife file separate returns, each is permitted an exemption of $1,250.

Probably the simplest and most workable method for deciding whether to file joint or separate returns is to figure the tax both ways and choose the method which results in the smallest tax.

New National Gypsum Preferred.

Investors' Guide: What is the National Gypsum company doing with the funds from the sale of its new $4.50 preferred stock? How do you rate this stock? Please tell me about its call provisions.—R. P.

Answer: National Gypsum last month issued 60,000 shares of new convertible preferred stock on a $4.50 a year dividend basis. The stock was offered at $100 a share. Most of the proceeds from the sale were used to retire more than $4,800,000 of preferred stock which was on a 5 per cent and 7 per cent dividend basis.

The stock is a business risk—good quality now, but in such a position that it should be checked frequently.

The new preferred is callable at $105 a share until Nov. 30, 1943, and at 103 after that date.

Drug Executive, Exposed as Felon, Takes Own Life—Six Other Members of Musica Family Unmasked

F. Donald Coster, unmasked as Philip Musica, ex-convict, shoots self to death in home at Fairfield, Conn.

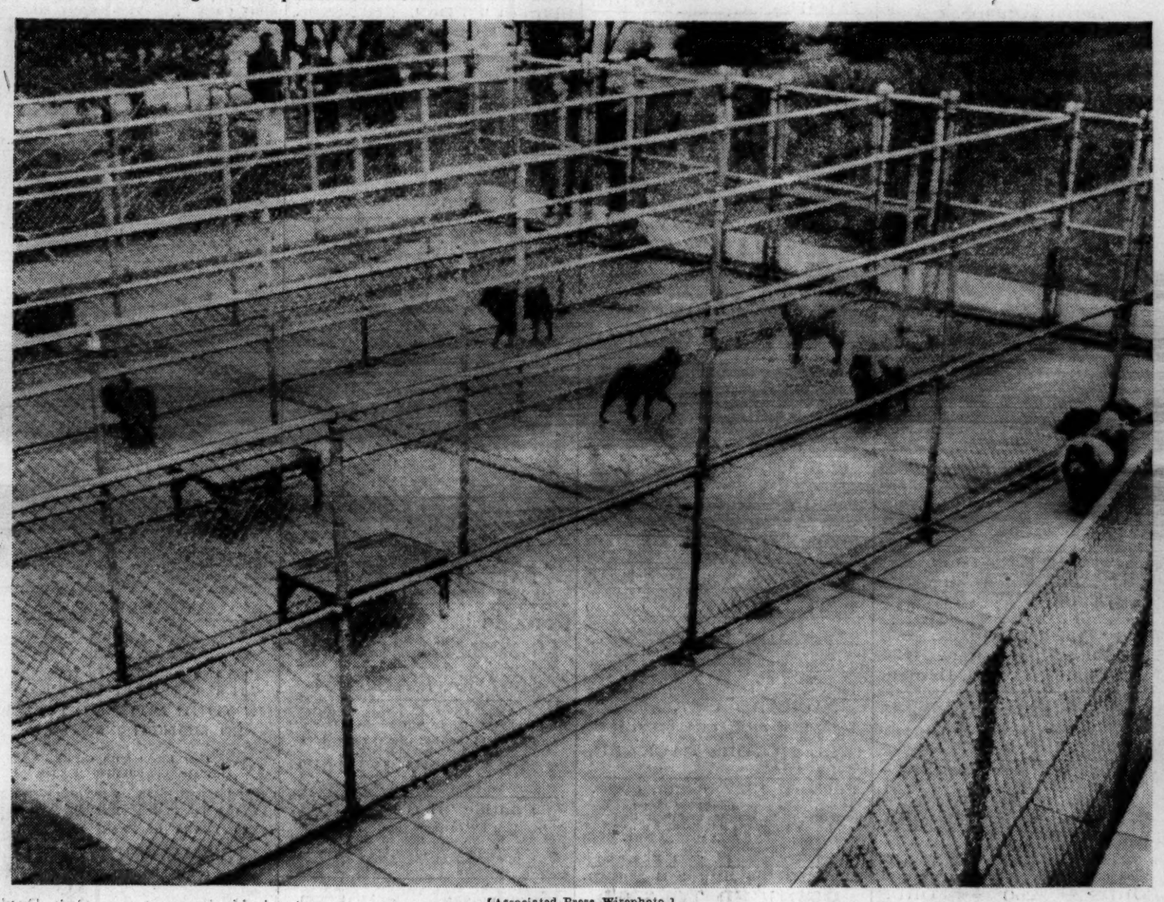
Two portraits of Mrs. Carol Jenkins Coster, wife of McKesson & Robbins president who ended life. She was in home at the time of shooting. These pictures were taken at a Florida resort when the Costers were on a vacation.

George Vernard peering out of window of Brooklyn home to argue with police who came to arrest him.
[Associated Press Wirephoto.] (Story on page 1.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
Philip Musica, later known as Coster, as he entered reformatory at Elmira, N. Y., in 1909 after bribery conviction.



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
Coster, or Musica, liked dogs and he maintained this impressive layout for his pets at Fairfield, Conn., home. Most of the dogs are aristocratic chows. Coster killed himself rather than go to jail. He would have been unable to make bond.

Chief of Police Arthur J. Bennett of Fairfield, Conn., examining gun with which super swindler took his life.

George Vernard, indicted in McKesson & Robbins failure, is identified as Arthur Musica, brother of Philip.

The third Musica brother, George, who has been known as George S. Dietrich, assistant treasurer of firm.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
Herse waits outside Coster home to take his body away while spectators stand about discussing the sensational suicide. Coster spent the night before his suicide drinking and talking with his brother-in-law, Leonard Jenkins.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
Detective in bathroom of Coster home where swindler shot himself as he faced arrest for second time.
